

FOR THE LADIES.

A New York correspondent gives the following as the reigning styles in dogs among ladies.

The pug is the reigning favorite, but some King Charles spaniels have just been produced which are exceptionally good.

A Scotch collie is an admirable pet, so honest, true and obedient.

Some are very much in favor. They are worth from $50 to $1,000, and I saw one lying on a lady's rug the other day who looked as much at home in the drawing-room as a young lady.

English setters are growing in favor, and the little black and tan dogs are quite the fad.

The Spitz dogs have had a bad reputation for a long time, owing to their supposed tendency to bite.

Scottish collies are the coming dog.

Must be kept in harness.

Mr. Edmund Yates, a London editor, has heard of a Chinaman taking a dog to which all dances break up at the very wailing howl of midnight.

To this person must first establish a character as a proficient dancer by showing ability to waltz up the ball-room as to never deviate from one.

Then to perform the same feat, "doing the reverse." In the event of passing this ordeal the waltzer, if otherwise eligible, becomes a member of the society, and is appointed first or second slipper, which ladies wear as a brooch and men as a trinket to their watch-chain or attached to their coat-button.

The object being to give the waltzer a chance to recognize each other at a dance as experts in the art of Terpsichore.

These ladies wear a dress of a simple slipper, which ladies wear as a brooch and men as a trinket to their watch-chain or attached to their coat-button.

FACTS AND COMMENTS.

M. de Lesseps proposes as the best and quickest method of bringing about civilization in Africa the establishment of numerous telegraph stations between the coast and interior for entertainment and scientific purposes.

The planting of these stations, he maintains, will be speedily followed by the building of railways, and that the two combined will become for Africa as the waterways were for Western plains, and for Australia and the Russians in Asia, the great arteries of civilization.

A gentleman lately counted the hairs on the heads of three damsels; one was blonde, the other a fashionable Tylian (red or gold), the third a brunette.

The victims were all of the same age, and must have been equally non-natural in their submission to such a trying ordeal.

The result of his industry was: Blonde, 140,000; the brunette, 100,000, and the red-haired belle counted only about 88,000, which proved that fair hair is the finest and red hair the coarsest, a fact, by the way, which has long been known.

America is wisely devoting increased attention to her fishing interests, both in inland waters and on the sea.

Immense quantities of fish are being secured. With the exception of the Norwegian herring fishery, the herring fishery of Scotland is the most important in Europe.

The annual value of the herring brought into the United States is estimated at $15,000,000 per annum.
