A GIANT AND HIS TAILOR'S BILL.

A suit, which is stated to have caused great amazement, came off in the Brighton County Court (Pa.) a short time since. The plaintiff, Mr. Ivins, is a gentleman six feet three inches in height, and proportionately stout. Mr. Ivins' attention was attracted to an advertisement of a firm of makers of suits at two guineas, and he thought, as his solicitor remarked, that a suit at that price would not be an extravagance, and requested the advertiser to send an assistant to take his measure. When the assistant arrived, the plaintiff told him that the firm would have rather a losing bargain; to which the assistant replied that it would be a capital advertisement for them, and that they made the little ones pay for the big ones. The plaintiff's measure was taken, and he called to have the suit fitted, when the principal told him that their advertisement did not apply to giants. He afterward obtained a similar suit at another tailor's, and sued the defendant to recover $5., which was the difference between the price he paid and the amount advertised by them. The judge decided that the defendant had made and broken the contract, and gave judgment for the plaintiff for the amount claimed, with costs. Probably both parties will be satisfied. Mr. Ivins has got his suit, and the tailors have got their advertisement, though not in the form suggested by their polite assistant.

SUSSEX AND SMUGGLERS.

Sussex was famous for its smugglers. In fact smuggling was a recognized branch of industry. I have heard of the best people in the country who had made a reputable fortune through smuggling. About 20 years ago a Sussex author, speaking of smuggling, says, "It would be improper to enter into any details which might involve the character of those still alive." Their old cases and retreats are still pointed out. Under the arch that is supposed to separate Hastings from St. Leonards there was once something very like a regular battle between the King's men and the smugglers. A great deal of false glamour has been shed by painters and novelists on the subject of smuggling. The Sussex smugglers were often a terrible crew, shrinking from nothing in their lawless pursuits. They sometimes became pirates and murderers. The Hawkurst gang was especially infamous. Hawkurst is in Kent; but the chief members of the gang were Sussex men. They seized on a custom-house officer who had borne witness against them, flogged him to death, and buried him in a hole on the downs.—London Society.

For applying to wounds made by removing large limbs in pruning fruit trees nothing is better, says the New-England Farmer, than gum-shellac dissolved in alcohol to the consistency of paint. This should be kept in a bottle, tightly corked when not in use and applied with an old brush.
