"You're mashed because you're soft."

A Sermon in Rhyme. If you have a friend worth loving, Love him. Yes, and let him know

That you love him, ere life's evening Tinge his brow with sunset glow. Of a friend-till he is dead? If you hear a song that thrills you

Sung by any child of song, Praise it. Do not let the singer Wait deserved praise long, Why should one who thrills your heart, Lack the joy you may impart?

If you hear a prayer that moves you By its humble, pleading tone, Join it. Do not let the seeker Bow before his God alone. Why should not your brother share

The strength of "two or three" in prayer? If a silvery laugh goes rippling Share it. "Fis the wise man's saying-For both grief and joy a place. There's health and goodness in the mirth In which an honest laugh has birth.

All enriching as you go— Leave them. Trust the harvest Giver, He will make each seed to grow. So, until its happy end, our life shall never lack a friend.

Minerva, our fourth, was equally horror-stricken at the effror tery of a young bookteeper whom her brother Lanrence had introduced into the family circle—a rare thing for one of her brothers to do, for, like all other nen, as far as my limited experience goes, they scarcely ever thought their companions to be good enough to be the companions of their sisters—when he ventured to express his admiration for her. The young man soon after succeeded to a very handsome property, and became a great swell—"a perfect too-too," as I believe the fashionable way of expressing it now is—a kind of being after Minerva's own heart; but she was never invited to ride behind his fast horses, and what was much worse, never again asked to take the head of his table.

Then boil them in a porcelain kettle, taking off the scum carefully. When no more scum rises, mash them and boil them to smooth marmalade. When cold, put them in glass tumblers.

A correspondent of the Baltimore Sun thus describes a filter, which he says he uses with perfect success for all the water his family requires. It is a gallon-glass funnel with a small piece of place of muslin a footor so square. The muslin is filled with say a pint of closely powdered charcoal. Through this he filters the water. At first a little of the charcoal passes through, but it soon becomes a perfect filter.
