

KILLED FOR PAYING HIS RENT.
 London, November 3.—A dispatch from Loughrea, county Galway says: A tenant farmer named Doherty was shot dead while entering his house at Carrigan near this place last evening. It is believed he was killed because he had paid his rent. He had been "boycotted" for some time. Two persons have been arrested for the murder.

News from St. Augustine, on the Petit Chicot River, gives details of the terrible death of a man named P. Leonard. He was 100 years of age, and had been left alone in his residence on Saturday, while his son, a man seventy-eight years old, was absent. For some reason the centenarian lit a fire in the stove. In doing so his clothing took fire from shavings, and in a few seconds he was enveloped in flames. So quickly did the affair occur that he was completely bewildered. He made a desperate rush for the door to alarm the neighbors, but, dazed as he was by the flames that encircled him, could not find the latch. His outcries at length brought a number of neighbors to the spot, when the flames were quickly subdued. It was too late to save the unfortunate old man's life. He died in terrible agony on the day following the accident.
