Forgot He Was Married. A young man who until recently had lived at the house of his father, in Augusta, Me., married a few weeks ago and leased apartments in another part of the city. The other evening after completing his day's work, h left the office, went up the street bought his Boston paper, and then climbed the hill to his father's house Entering its familiar precincts, h marched to the wash-roo toilet, and then presented himself a the table. The family, who had be watching his operations, eyed his with amazement, and at last his moth softly inquired: "My son, have y wedded career?" A pale flush st fused the young man's face, whi rapidly deepened into cardinal. Ther he gasped: "I forgot all about being married." Leaving the table amid roar of laughter, the young man hu ried out and walked hastily home where his young wife was impatient! awaiting his coming.
