If I should charge the Pressin the same proportion that lawyers charge for their time. I should get about a thousand dollars for this letter." Here is a case: Mr. Z. L. White (as lovely a fellow as ever wrote a paragraph) new the editor of the Providence Press, and I were associated as correspondents of the New York Tribune. The Alabama Treaty, on whose provisions two continents hung breathlessly, had been signed and sent to the Senate. This was many years ago. A copy came to us as legitimately as any piece of news comes into the Press office, but it happened so that we could not tell where it came from We were brought before the Senate and and setting onions is all the go in our sent to a committee, and we refused to town at present. There is talk of putting answer and tell where the treaty as printed up a telephone from Klinefelter's saw in the Tribune came from. We were locked up for a fortnight. The great public the main line; it is certainly needed as was with us, and we had more applications the houses are a lit le far spart and a good deal of business to be done in the on, and we had cases of wine, cases of brandy, demijohns of whisky, bexes of cigars, woodcock, terripin, canvasback ducks, flowers and such things galore' Senators came to our rooms for drinks and lunches, and the whole thing from beginning to end was a great joke. But-and here comes the point-were, of course, released by a tremendous majority of the Senate, but there were certain legal points Madisonburg hotel. Speckled beauties Wonder whether I. E. Shafer, Lew Roush and Prof. Wolf got any last week of the kind. We engaged a lawyer, and he went into court and asked that our indictment be quashed. That was all, and the indictment was quashed. How much, Mr. Editor, do you think he charged for that five minutes' work? He charged, and I paid him $500 for that job, and I have his name on my check to show it.
