THE CENTRE REPORTER.

FRED. KURTZ, Editor and Prop'r.

Let every newspaper in the state—Democratic, Republican and Independent, arrange space for a black list for the name of every member of the legislature who takes pay for the twelve days of the extra session covered by the adjournment.

The son of the murdered Captain Nutt, has killed Duker, the murderer of his father—the particulars are given elsewhere in the Reporter. We have no feelings of sympathy for Duker—he was not fit to live after having betrayed and slandered Lizzie Nutt and killed her father. The act of young Nutt in thus avenging the death of his father undoubtedly is murder in a strictly legal sense, for Duker was tried and acquitted, when all but twelve jurors, believed that he should have been hung. But the circumstances that led to the last act in the sad tragedy are such, that the sentiment of mankind will be that Duker deserved what he got. We await with painful interest the trial of young Nutt to learn under what pleading he will receive an acquittal which certainly will arouse no such wide-spread indignation as did the acquittal of Duker.

We know no other way to prevent a dead-lock in apportionments, such as we now have in this state, and as have been witnessed in other states since the taking of the present census, than the amending of the United States constitution, to the effect that no state shall have a representation in congress unless in accordance with an apportionment enacted by the Legislature in the next regular session following the taking of the U. S. census. If such an amendment were adopted, and the two houses of a state legislature were of opposite politics, a compromise would be forced upon a just basis giving each party a fair representation, and if there were mulish stubbornness and no agreement, the penalty would be a locking out from the lower house of congress until reason would reign among the state law-makers or the voters had an opportunity to elect a new set who would obey the mandate of the constitution in this regard.

The Reporter does not believe that the country would go to the demerit box-works if a state were unrepresented in congress—in fact it might often be an improvement on congress to have the empty seats.

Under such an amendment to the federal constitution the Republican senate of this state would have been compelled to meet the Democrats of the house on a fair compromise, or forfeit their present majority in the delegation, by having no representation from this state until an apportionment is framed under the census as the Constitution directs. The effect would be the same in Democratic states where a similar dead-lock might exist in the Legislature, and gerrymanders by either party would be measurably interfered with.

Lancaster has the small-pox so bad that Mayor Macgonigle issued a proclamation requesting all residents of that city to be vaccinated in order to prevent the spreading of the disease, of which there are now a number of cases in the city. So far five deaths have occurred. The county prison, where the small-pox first broke out, is now entirely free from the plague.

Says the Williamsport Sun, and it is the sentiment of all honest men; No man ought to be returned to the Legislature who takes pay for the ten days that the Legislature is not in session. Nevertheless the people would probably prefer to pay them to stay at home.

There has been no appointment for associate judge, for the vacant seat in our county, up to this time, and we believe the Governor has been urged by some to make no appointment until after the nominations in August, and then appoint the nominee. The result will be a lively scramble for the position with the number of candidates increasing as the convention approaches, attended with the usual button-holing of voters, which is one of the unpleasant features of a campaign preceding nominations.

A report of the musical jubilee at Selinsgrove, last week, says: The great musical jubilee in session in this place, has proved to be one of the most notable events that has ever taken place in this part of the state. A chorus of over five hundred trained voices have assembled and participated in the opening exercises to-night, 12. Distinguished persons from all sections of the state are here, as well as from Boston and New York. The town is full of overflowing. Choral societies from all the adjacent counties are here in numbers, and each railway train adds to the hundreds already here. Private families have opened their houses to entertain the visitors. Various and pleasing attractions were given by the specialists, Professor Walter Emerson, cornetist; Helen E. H. Carter, soprano; Mrs. M. D. Shepard, pianist, all of Boston. Professor Distin and son, of Philadelphia, will be present to-morrow. Some twenty brass bands from various sections of the state were in attendance. Prof. W. T. Meyer, of Aaronsburg, was one of the principal pianists.

Dr. Kline, of Philadelphia, asks us to give him a $5 ad for $4, per year, and then send him the Reporter free besides, and says other papers do the same thing. Now what papers are doing that, and will such papers do the same thing for their home advertisers? Not a bit of it.

Senator Wallace's bill to allow county commissioners to increase the rates of boarding prisoners from 25 to 50 cents per day, at their discretion, has now been signed by the Governor and become a law.

In the United States district court a decision was rendered, lately, declaring the civil rights act of 1865 unconstitutional.

The case arose on a prosecution of a conductor on the Houston and Texas Central railroad for excluding a colored woman from a ladies' car.

Mt. Carmel, Pa., had a woman on the rampage the other day. Mrs. Ford came home in a stage of intoxication that led her to be demonstrative and destructive. She demolished everything in the house and after frightening every person in the neighborhood set fire to the building and then tried to burn her nine months' old child on a very hot stove. Citizens and officers prevented her. She was arrested and locked up.

Last week in London the sentence of penal servitude for life was imposed on Dr. Thomas Gallagher, Henry Wilson, John Curtin and Alfred Whitehead, the four men convicted in London of treason felony in connection with the dynamite conspiracy.

The star-route trial is over and the great thieves are acquitted by the jury. The prosecution has cost the government about a million, and the outcome is nothing. The star-routers were at large expense too, but having a big pile of stolen government money in their pockets, they can pay their way and have thousands left.

When the jury entered the court with a verdict of acquittal, Brady at once rushed out and bought out a saloon and opened it out free to all. The star route crowd then went to Ingersoll's house where the entire night was spent in a big spree and wild jollification.

There is a great deal of truth in the German adage, Kleine Diebe haengt man, und grosse laesst man laufen. Rendered in English it is, Little thieves are hung, but big ones are let run.

The Legislature met again on Tuesday evening to go to work on congressional, legislative and judicial apportionments.

In this county, all we have heard, sympathize with Jim Nutt, and think that Duker got what he deserved.

It is rumored that Queen Victoria intends to abdicate.

One of the star-route jurors had a poker fit while in the court room, from excessive whisky guzzling. No wonder the jury soon after brought in a verdict of not guilty when composed of such material.

A new crop of tornadoes in the west again.

For two new cash names sent us by a present subscriber, we will give him the Reporter 6 months free, and the new ones 2 months extra on each $2. This offer good to Aug. 1.

A great panic in Chicago on hard. We always thought the stuff was slippery.

Duker was buried on Saturday; there was a large crowd, but no sympathy manifested itself.

Thomas J. Brady, the acquitted star-router, has been again indicted—this time for bribery.

Phelps must go to the penitentiary. Pity Dorsey, Brady and other star-routers don't go the same way.

Dorsey threatens to sue the New York Times, Herald, Tribune, Philad. Times and other papers for libel. The star-route crowd, why does he go for the small-fry and pass over the big fish like the Reporter?

Duker was killed within two hundred yards of where he killed Nutt on Dec. 24th. Duker's body was taken to the room where Capt. Nutt was killed, and placed upon the identical bed whereon lay six months ago the dead body of Nutt. Both died almost instantly. Both were shot in an unwary moment. Both were taken home dead to their homes over the same road.

We hardly see how a jury can get over finding Nutt guilty, and in the event of such a verdict a pardon should release him—the entire state would favor a speedy pardon. Although many who know the law, through sympathy for Mrs. Nutt, would like to have her son returned to her, yet they see that it is impossible.

"All prisoners shall be bailable by sufficient sureties, unless for capital offense where the proof is evident or presumption great."

Nutt's is a capital offense. The proof that he did the killing is evident, and under the circumstances the presumption is great that he intended to do just what he did do. It is more than presumption; it is absolute certainty.

The Connecticut Republican legislature have split on the election of a U. S. Senator.

THE BOALSBURG WOMEN.

On Sunday last, 17, a large and enthusiastic meeting was held in the Boalsburg Lutheran church in the interest of the Women's Missionary Work. The President of the Women's Society of the Central Penn. Lutheran Synod, Miss Dornblaser, of Mackeyville, was present and delivered an excellent address. An organization was at once effected, consisting of twenty-four members—active and honorary. Mrs. Daniel Hess, of Lioden Hall, was made president of the society. The ladies are evidently in earnest, and good, effective work may be expected from them. It is thought that, with the promising start that has been made and the excellent character of the ladies engaged in it, there is little doubt of the success of the society. A band of Christian women, heartily consecrated and in sympathy with the great cause of missions, at home and abroad, can be helpful to the general church boards in advancing the work. Good reports will be looked for from the active, Christian women of Boalsburg.

A FRIGHTFUL ACCIDENT.

Almost Two Hundred Children Killed.

London, June 17.—An accident from a crash occurred at a children's entertainment at Sunderland, England, last evening, and 178 of the children were killed. An entertainment had been given in Victoria hall by a conjurer, which was attended almost altogether by children, several thousand being present. The accident which was so direful in its effects, occurred in the close of the performance. The body of the hall had been entirely cleared of its occupants when some 1200 of the little ones come rushing down stairs from the gallery. At the top of the first flight of stairs there was a door which only opened twenty inches, and thus but one child was permitted to pass through at a time. At this point, while the mass of children were pushing forward, some of them fell and were unable to rise, owing to others crowding on. The result was that many were pushed down, trampled on and suffocated.

The scene was terrible, and no effort could stop the mad rush of the affrighted children. They came pell-mell, but without much shouting, and soon 178 of them were knocked down and suffocated to death by others trampling upon them. The greater number of the bodies, which were badly mangled from the trampling, laid seven or eight deep. Many of the victims, and others who were not killed, had their clothing torn from their bodies, and this, together with the bleeding bodies of the unfortunate, shows the terrible nature of the struggle. The ages of the 178 children known to have been killed range from four to fourteen years.

A DESTRUCTIVE STORM IN KANSAS.

Abilene, June 12.—A wind storm occurred about 10 o'clock last night twelve miles north of here and did great damage along the line of Dickinson and Clay counties. Thirteen houses, barns and stables were blown down, several persons injured and a little child was killed. The small village of Industry, in Clay county, was almost totally destroyed, all but two houses being blown down. It is also reported that Wakefield, Clay county suffered severely. The storm was accompanied by rain and hail.

A Galveston, Texas, June 15.—A special from San Saba says: The court is now in session at Llano, and State troops have been sent there to preserve peace. There are thirty murderers on the docket for trial, and serious troubles is expected.

There was a tremendous rush at the Philad. Branch on show day. People from all parts of the county went there for clothing, and in every suit purchased the saving amounted to enough for car fare, hotel bill and circus ticket, and a little change over in addition. No other store sells clothing as low as Lewins & Co., and the people are understanding it and know where to go to save money. Give the Philad. Branch a trial and you will not want to go to another place for cheap clothing.

THE IMPORTANT MEASURES OF THE SESSION WHICH HAVE HAD EXECUTIVE APPROVAL.

The more important bills passed by the late Legislature and approved by the Governor are those abolishing the Sealers of Weights and Measures; increasing the gratuity and annuity of the veterans of the War of 1812; repealing the Recorder act of 1873; abolishing the Philadelphia Delinquent Tax office; preventing lapse of time from giving a right to keep electric wires perpetually attached to buildings; making ineligible to the office of District Attorney any person who shall not have been admitted to the bar two years prior to his election; providing for voluntary tribunals to adjust labor disputes; providing for the supervision and control of institutions for the insane; prohibiting the levying of license tax upon persons taking orders for goods by sample for individuals or companies who pay the tax at their chief place of business; fixing the standard weight of a bushel of potatoes at sixty pounds; enabling the Philadelphia Councils to secure testimony concerning the management of the city departments; repealing the act authorizing market clerks to confiscate short weight butter, lard, sausage, etc.; repealing the hunting and killing of web-footed wild fowls; preventing the exemption of property on judgment obtained for fifty dollars or less for wages for manual labor; providing for free evening schools for children unable to attend day schools; exempting building associations from state tax; to protect dairymen and prevent deception in the sale of butter and cheese; regulating the business of intelligence or employment agencies in Philadelphia; abolishing the office of Recorder in cities of the first class; providing for the appointment of a commission by the Governor for the purpose of revising the mining and ventilation laws in the anthracite coal regions; a supplement to an act providing for additional security in case of fire in hotels and other buildings; to protect miners in the bituminous coal regions; a supplement to the act of 1879, "providing for the health and safety of persons employed in coal mines," further providing for the furnishing of traps and timbers to the miners; an amendatory act to the one of 1869, providing for the punishment of cruelty to animals; preventing the placing in peril of life or limb performers at public exhibitions; directing and empowering County Commissioners to resort to condemnation to secure ground for the erection of necessary county buildings, such as jail, court house, etc., where said ground cannot be otherwise secured; supplement to the act "regulating the incorporation of corporations" authorizing the formation of pipe lines for transporting petroleum and giving the right of eminent domain in taking lands and property for such purpose; repealing the act providing for the appointment of steam boiler inspectors in Schuylkill, Northumberland and Columbia; permitting the killing of English sparrows at any season of the year; regulating the term of office of Controller in cities of third class; fixing the compensation of the Judges of the Common Pleas Court; relating to assignments for the benefit of creditors, and fixing a form of bond to be given by the assignee; enforcing the provisions of the seventeenth article of the Constitution relative to railroads and canals; to extend the time for the completion of railroads; relating to the terminal points to which railroads may be constructed; supplementary to an act authorizing the formation and regulation of railroad corporations, approved April 4, 1883, amending the sixth section, making the limit of the original amount of stock and increased capital $150,000 per mile and stock and bonds $300,000. The three last named bills are those known as the Vanderbilt railroad bills.

JAMES NUTT IN ROLE OF AN AVENGER.

Uniontown, June 18.—No event has excited Uniontown in many years as the one of this afternoon, coming as it did so utterly unexpected. Duker met his death instantly, the balls taking effect, and he fell within the door of the post office. The borough is a vast field of excitement to-night over the event, and the story of the deed is on every body's lips. The evening shades were falling as James Nutt passed along Main street, and those whom he met noticed the peculiar look upon his face and he said nothing in answer to salutations. He stopped a moment at the post office when Duker came along, and turning saw young Nutt. The taking of a pistol from a side pocket and leveling it at his father's murderer and the occupied but a second of time, and the people near were started with the report of the shot. Then followed a scene that is beyond description. The son held in his hand the same revolver which his father carried the morning Duker killed him. His victim ran, the first ball entering in the right side, but Nutt followed up the work rapidly. Every shot of the four told. The second and then the third took effect, Duker falling within the post office door. Going up to the prone body and standing over it, Nutt deliberately fired two more shots, one entering the neck at the artery. James Nutt has been preparing for this thing for some months past. He has practiced with his revolver at his home and fully intended to be his father's avenger, only awaiting the opportunity. Duker has doggedly awaited the inevitable. He has repeatedly said, "I shall either live in this town or in the cemetery yonder," and though warned by friends he would go to the Jennings House and keep the rooms where the late tragedy was enacted, preferring to live down public feeling and outlive public contempt. But he never concealed his fear that some day James Nutt would kill him. Only recently he mentioned to Mr. Kennedy that "he feared Jim more than the whole county of Fayette." Nutt said nothing of the shooting but turning around, after looking the dead man over, he gave himself up and is now in the county jail. Through the excitement he appeared cool, calm and collected but his face was of a ghastly pale hue. Public sentiment was on his side. At his home the news completely overcame his mother and his sister Lizzie wept bitterly. It is regarded here an unfortunate occurrence that time and the courts alone can unravel.

THE AVENGER OF HIS FATHER.

James Nutt, the principal and only figure in this retributive justice, is a spare young man, the oldest son of the late Captain Nutt, and about twenty-two years of age. In habits he has always been quiet and unassuming and though living in Uniontown all his life is not very well known. At the time of the killing of his father he was a student at Eastman's business college, Poughkeepsie, New York, but returned home to take position in the First National bank. It has been stated that ever since the lamentable occurrence of last December he has brooded over the affair and determined months ago to revenge the taking away of his father. This has been no secret at Uniontown. Ever since the jury's verdict came in which freed Duker the latter had a fear of an assault by Mr. Nutt, and from the tenor of the telegrams the second act in the tragedy has come with the most direful and fatal effect. There is a story afloat in the said "old county seat along the southern tier" that when the excitement over the first deed was in its height the mother of James drew him on his knees and had him promise that whatever the result might be he would do no violence to the murderer of his father. The story does not say any promise was given.

JAMES VISITED BY HIS MOTHER.

This afternoon for the first time Mrs. Nutt went to the jail and had a long talk. She says she showed a great deal of emotion at the sight of her. In speaking of the shooting, he said: "Mother, I had to kill him. He ought to have had better sense than to laugh in my face when I met him the other day." He does not make any attempt to deny that he shot Duker deliberately. He speaks of the affair as of duty performed. Miss Lizzie Nutt did not accompany her mother to the jail, but remained at home to care for the younger children. She is not so spirit broken as she was last winter. On the contrary her courage appears to be aroused to the highest pitch. Her pretty brown eyes have lost their sad expression, and are bright and full of fire. Her manner, too, has undergone a change. Instead of being shrinking and nervous, she is out-spoken and decisive. Her sufferings have made her strong. She converses charmingly and is very attractive. Her graceful figure was to-day becomingly attired in mourning. "I wish," she said, "you would contradict the report that Jim has been practicing pistol shooting, because he has not been doing anything of the sort. He has always been such a quiet, good boy that none of us thought he would do anything violent."

LIZZIE REGRETS THAT SHE DIDN'T KILL DUKER.

After a moment or so of deep meditation, she sat bolt upright in her chair and then said suddenly, "The only thing I regret about the shooting is, that I did not do it myself. I had made up my mind if he remained here to kill him, and would most assuredly done so had the opportunity been presented. His presence was a constant menace and a disgrace; I know I have surprised you by what I have said, and doubtless others will not understand that so timid a woman could be so revengeful, but it is true notwithstanding. Oh, how I envy Jim in his cell." When told of a rumor that her brother was rather feeble minded, she denied it indignantly. "No sir," she said, "there will not be any plea of insanity in this case; his defense is, that he defended his sister's honor and his father's death. Would not any brave man have done likewise? Jim is a noble fellow and the people will so consider him." Relative to the relation between Duker and Miss Mary Beeson, Miss Lizzie Nutt said: "I have often heard that they were engaged to be married, but do not know whether the report is true or not. When I was engaged to him, gossip had it that he was paying attention to other ladies. Miss Beeson's name was mentioned at the time. I told him of what I had heard. He said that it was all nonsense, and that there was not a word of truth in it. I pity Miss Beeson from the bottom of my heart."

Don Cameron is now in Europe dining and dining with the nobility—he being the ex-duke of Pennsylvania; Don has written to a friend that the only thing he misses in England is a place where he can purchase cheap clothing such as is the Philad. Branch, by Lewins & Co., in Bellefonte, and he now thanks his stars that before leaving the shores of America he purchased a few suits from Lewins.

AS WHEN SHE WAS YOUNG.

"I have used Parker's Hair Balm and like it better than any similar preparation I know of," writes Mrs. Ellen Perry, wife of Rev. P. Perry, of Colbrook Springs, Miss. "My hair was almost entirely gone, but a dollar bottle of the Balm has restored the softness, and the brown color it had when I was young—not a single gray hair left. Since I began applying the Balm my hair stopped falling out, and I find that it is perfectly harmless and agreeable dressing."

PENN HALL ITEMS.

Since it is a mystery to my friends what became of where is the News Boy that writes the items, I am happy to say, here is the original News Boy of O. K. Here is my age. Will give you a few items before having and harvest—my chances are gone so drafted into those lovely holes. Religious services were held on Sunday evening in the Academy building by Rev. J. A. Yearick, assisted by Rev. D. W. Warrick. Mr. Yearick delivered an excellent sermon to a full house; glad the services will be continued. The Salem Reformed Sunday school have purchased a handsome library. The Lutheran school is also making preparations to get one—both schools are in a flourishing condition. The school directors met and accepted the resignation of Prof. Smith, who left for his home in Northampton county. The board decided that Prof. Smith should have the new public school building to teach a school. He was heartily welcome yet, Lewis, old school "chums" success again yet. On Saturday morning the sal-road train met with an accident about two miles east of this place. The front carriage of a freight car was knocked off the car and over the tracks while running at high speed around a sharp curve. The engine dragged the car some distance before it was stopped. Nobody was hurt. On Saturday evening lightning struck the iron rod on the barn of Daniel Burges; the bolt struck off the rod and penetrated through the wall into the stable and killed a steer. Mrs. Wm. Burges was milking at the time; she was stunned but not seriously injured. Our young ladies have returned from the grand musical jubilee at Selinsgrove, and are much pleased with the trip. Mrs. Jane Kofeler has been confined to bed for several weeks having been quite ill; she is now improving. News Boy.

SPRING MILLS ITEMS.

On 14th Engineer S. F. Cherry and wife were thrown out of a buggy—Mrs. C. got her arm broken in falling. Siding Millis orange has purchased a lot of ground for the purpose of building a hall—lot of ground located south of the proposed iron bridge. County Commissioners decided to build an iron bridge, 15 feet wide at this place. Gasco.

FROM MILLHEIM.

Rev. John Kreamer, of Kansas, formerly from this place, is at present paying us a visit. On Sabbath morning he preached a very satisfactory sermon in the Evangelical church. Kansas city mate seems to agree with him—he is the very picture of health. He with his wife will tarry with us until September, when they will return to their Kansas home near Jewell City. To the credit of our landlords Messrs. Fraiso and Musser, we can say we see no drunken men upon our streets, and peace seems to reign and respect both of our public houses. Our young friend Mr. Young who was thrown from a wagon by accident some weeks ago is improving gradually, and we are glad to see him on our streets again hoping he will soon be able to return to his work. The Evangelists will hold a campmeeting near Millheim in Mr. Geisbert's barn beginning on 23 of August and to continue one week. The ladies of the Lutheran church will hold a festival on the Fourth of July at the first door of their church building which is nearly finished. Music will be furnished by the Millheim band. The public is cordially invited to attend. "Felix."

SNATCHED FROM THE GRAVE.

My wife was at the brink of the grave. She had been given up to die by three of Allegheny City's best physicians. They all pronounced her disease consumption. Her finger-nails and lips were blue, was pulseless at the wrist; we were all called to witness her death. At this moment a neighbor brought in Dr. Hartman, who prescribed a teaspoonful of Parker's every hour. She improved from the first dose and in a week she was up, and now (less than six months) she is well. See page 30 in the "Hills of Life," a book you can get gratis from your Druggist. If not, address Dr. H. Hartman, Osborn, Ohio. T. S. Eberlein, South Chicago, Ill.

While no one pities Duker in the fate he has met, yet all people agree that the Philad. Branch has the largest, best and cheapest stock of clothing inside the limits of the state. No deceit practiced by Lewins & Co., they warrant their goods and mark all in plain figures, and have one price for all, rich and poor, high and low. That's the only fair business principle.

Oranges and Florida.

Better than Breezes and Blossoms—Under a New Flag.

Even the balmy air and orange groves of Florida fail to keep its people full of happiness and comfort. Art must help nature everywhere—in the tropics as among the pines of the North. "And chief among the blessings which are adapted to all zones," writes Dr. J. G. Wallace, of Fort Verde, Fla., "is Parker's Tonic. It seems to have the power of a field and the most current disease yield to its action. I have used it in the case of a delicate young lady, with the most gratifying results. It seemed to accomplish with ease what the prescriptions and treatment for this miserable malady—dyspepsia—failed wholly to bring about. I am glad to state that the Tonic has greatly relieved me just recently of a troublesome chronic condition of the stomach of long standing. It is the ideal purifier and invigorant."

Messrs. Hixson & Co. call special attention to the fact that after April 16, 1883, the name and style of this preparation will hereafter simply be "Parker's Tonic." The word "Ginger" is dropped for the reason that unprincipled dealers are constantly deceiving their patrons by substituting inferior preparations under the name of "Ginger" and as ginger is an unimportant flavoring ingredient in our Tonic, we are sure that our friends will agree with us as to the propriety of the change. There will be no change, however, in the preparation itself; and all bottles remaining in the hands of dealers, wrapped under the name of "Parker's Ginger Tonic," contain the genuine medicine, if the signature of Hixson & Co. is at the bottom of outside wrapper. June 18 1883.
