A TRAMP'S REVENGE.
Two Little Girls Saved from a Terrible Death by a Young Farmer.
BUFFALO, Sept. 4.—Mr. D. C. Crawford, of Wesleyville, recently drove a gang of tramps from his premises. One of them lurked around several days waiting for revenge. Saturday he saw Crawford's two little daughters enter the mill, on the upper floor of which a play-room had been partitioned off for them. Following, he fastened the door while they were playing with their toys, and then, descending to the basement, he piled heaps of inflammable material at several points and set them on fire. Soon the lower portion of the mill was enveloped in flames. Ingress and egress were alike cut off, and the girls seemed doomed to die the most agonizing of deaths. They crawled through a hole upon the roof, but were afraid to jump, as the distance was thirty-five feet and the ground thickly dotted with jagged boulders. No ladders were available, nor could they be used if at hand. A deliverer appeared in the person of Alfred K. Bonnel, a young farmer, carrying a coil of rope, to which he fastened a strong iron hook. Hastily strapping climbing irons to his legs he ascended a tall oak tree near the mill, and in a moment stood on a limb high over the children. The young man threw his rope, and so precise was the aim that the hook caught in the smaller girl's dress. Drawing the cord hand over hand she swung clear and was lowered safely into her father's arms. The other girl was then lowered in the same manner, and a few minutes afterwards the boiler burst, blowing the mill to pieces. The hands escaped.

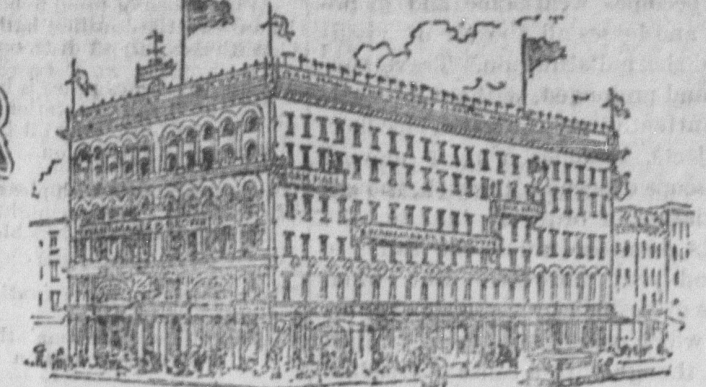

OUT OF THE CAR WINDOW.
A Deserter's Daring Leap from a Swiftly Moving Train.
READING, Pa., Sept. 6.—The 10.30 train from this city for New York had among its passengers a squad of United States soldiers consisting of a sergeant and six privates who had in custody a deserter captured at Harrisburg, and destined for Governor's Island. Nothing unusual occurred until reaching this city. The deserter here complained that the handcuffs hurt him and asked to have them taken off. After some talk about it the sergeant removed them. After leaving here the prisoner curled himself on one of the seats and pretended to be sleeping. While the soldiers were not looking their prisoner raised the car window and suddenly placed his hands close to his head, and then, when the train was rushing along at the rate of thirty miles an hour, shot himself through the window feet foremost. The horrified passengers expected to see the man mangled by the cars, but he landed safely on his feet, stopped a moment to rub his eyes, and then struck out at a brisk pace for the heavily wooded hills near Emmaus. The sergeant pulled the bell-rope and stopped the train, which had run about 200 yards from where the deserter had made his bold jump. After getting his men off the train they started in pursuit, but were unable to get any trace of their prisoner.

BUTLER AGAIN A CANDIDATE.
The Massachusetts Democratic State Convention Called.
BOSTON, Sept. 3.—At a meeting of the executive committee of the Democratic State committee, a call for a State convention to be held at Springfield on September 20 was drawn up and accepted. It was authoritatively stated to the committee that General Butler has decided to run for re-election this fall. The announcement that Governor Butler will be a candidate for re-election is not necessarily a finality. It is the policy of the Democratic leaders to compel General Butler to run, as with no other candidate have they a ghost of a show, but the General will not say "yes" until he is assured of success by something more definite and substantial than reports from the country towns that his star is still in the ascendant. This assurance will not come until the Republicans shall have nominated a weak candidate, and that from the present indications is not probable. The call invites "the Democrats of Massachusetts and all others who are ready to unite with them in defence of the good name of the state as a just and humane commonwealth, and to promote the common welfare by the continued correction of administrative errors and abuses and the reformation of unequal and unjust laws," to send delegates to the convention for the nomination of the usual candidates, and if the convention so determine, to choose four delegates-at-large to attend the Democratic national convention in 1884.

An Excursion Steamer Sunk.
NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—The excursion steamer Gen. Sedgwick while lying at her dock early Sunday morning suddenly went to the bottom. Three watchmen who were sleeping on board barely escaped with their lives and lost all their clothing. It is believed that she caught her guard rail over a pile as she rolled with the waves, and, her weight coming on it, a seam was started below the water line. The Gen. Sedgwick was built in Jersey City in 1875, and was rebuilt in 1882. She was in the dry dock in May, and was inspected by the government inspectors, who pronounced her sound. She registered 400 tons, and was rather larger than the Riverdale that blew up last week. She is distinguished as the vessel carrying a steam calliope.

Mr. Sprague Very Belligerent.
PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 3.—At a meeting of the Quinck company, the stockholders being represented by Assignee Pomeroy and Trustee Farnsworth, Stephen Harris was elected president, and Charles B. Gould, secretary. Mr. Harris proceeded to the office of the company, saw William Sprague, and demanded possession of it as his property. Mr. Sprague said he was no longer president, but represented the president, and if Mr. Harris attempted to take possession he would kill him. Mr. Harris pleasantly remonstrated with the irate man, but Mr. Sprague reiterated his statement that he would kill him, and said that if Mr. Harris went to the office in his absence he had men there who would throw him into a trench a cold cold. Mr. Harris then withdrew.

Young Nutt's Trial Postponed.
UNIONTOWN, Penn., Sept. 5.—The trial of young James Nutt, the slayer of Dukes, has been postponed until the December term of court. Owing to the illness of Clark Breckenridge, a cousin of the prisoner, and an important witness for the defense, the continuance was asked and granted. Judge G. M. Curtis, a prominent New York attorney, has tendered his services as counsel for the defense. The prosecution claim to regret the continuance.
