PENN HALL ITEMS.

We are all pleased with the good prospects that our railroad will be completed to Bellefonte at an early day. Tell it abroad.—The train of the L. & T.R. R. was on time one morning last week. Mr. Sam'l Wolf, who is 93 years of age, walked to Penn Hall, a distance of three miles, last week, to procure some winter apples. J. B. Fisher received a car load of old corn from Indianapolis which was put in the mill at Farmer's Mills for chop. Fisher, Moyer and Weaver have returned home after a week's hunt in the Seven mountains, all safe—no one hurt. They report deer plenty but the weather too warm to bring them home. J. W. g. Bartges, a traveling salesman, is preparing to go to work in earnest. Prof. D. M. Wolf and Jas G. Evans and wife have taken possession of their new mansion and are now comfortable. The wife of Adam Grenoble is seriously ill. Mr. and Mrs. Grenoble, of Altoona, are here visiting their parents. The mumps are prevailing here to a considerable extent; the school children are much alarmed. Gregg twp. schools, 12 in number, are now in working order and will report much good work. Prof. W. A. Krise has charge of the Penn Hall schools; he meets with good success. Hall my time is up; I must get my lessons. Mr. Editor, I presume you think I, was getting out long lessons since my last items. "Harper's Magazine" begins its eighty-sixth vol-ume with the becember Number. It is the most popular illustrated periodical in America and England, always fully abreast of the times in its treatment of subjects of current, social or indus-trial interest, and always advancing its standard of literary, artistic, and mechanical excellence. Among its attractions for 1884 are: a new serial novel by Wm. Black, illustrated by Gibson and Dielman; descriptive illustrated papers by Geo.
