PAINT APPLIED TO HATS, -Straw hats and bonnets have become objects for the now always-ready paint brush. young lady who was for some time the envy of her friends for the exquisite shades of her hats, said she painted them with her oil colors, and in this way could have them any tint she desired; and hats in most perfect harmony with her costumes was the result. Another young girl showed us a bonnet she had painted black, remarking, "If I had had that bonnet dyed at a milliner's, I should have paid seventy-five cents for it; as it is, it cost about twenty cents, and I did not have to wait several days for it to be done." Still another enterprising young woman, who knows how to make everything useful, remarked, "I have often colored my straw bonnets with common shoe-blacking, and they look very well indeed," A young lady artist gaye a picnic party just before her depature for Europe last summer. Her hat for the occasion was of her own designing-a large leghorn flat, with wild roses painted on the brim, which was faced with delicate pink silk, and a white lace scarf was folded carlessly around the crown. It was a thoroughly picturesque head-covering, and set off to advantage the blonde beauty of the wearer.

As the proprietor of these mednes I conscientiously offer them to theiblic as safe, reliable and certain medies for the CURE of Consumptionand strength and flesh will increase, and the bad sympwith equal confidence as alme a specific for those morbid conditions the body, which, if neglected, are apt to temate in fatal diseases of the lungs. I claim that use of my remedies will cure Consumption.

L do not claim that the disease can be curafter the lungs are destroyed, for no medic can create new ones: but I maintain that t first stages of Consumption are curable, even whithe lungs are partially decayed. When one ig is sound I am almost certain of making a curf the patient will take proper care of himself apllow my directions.

It may be asked, "How is it that you cknow so much about this disease, and pretend tare it, when so many educated physicians, w have made a study of it for years, pronounce itcurable ?"

The question is a fair one, and shall be fy an swered: I do not claim to know more thother physicians about the causes, nature and pry of Consumption. I suppose that my views these points would be found to agree with those most educated and intelligent physicians. Whould agree that while the final cause is ohre-in other words, while it is not possible to r why Consumption selects this or that person svictim -yet the predisposing causes are:

1st, Inheritance. Consumption is heriary in a wonderful degree. One parent very oftentails it upon the offspring, and both still morequent ly, so that whole families are often sweaway, to it, it ends in ulceration, opens a page into the bronchial tubes, and passes out at 1 mouth by spitting. The place where the tubes grew and ripened now becomes a cavity, a where there are a great many tubercles, of one they make a great many of these little cavit which and death ensues.

2d, Cold. By this we do not mean thomanges long-continued and steady cold, so that addition persons, generate Pulmonary Consumpts Prominent among these influences are insuffict dict, living in an unwholesome air, sedenta habits, grief, anxiety, disappointment, whether the affections or in business, and all other dessing emotions; the abuse of mercury and thefluence of weakening diseases. I also agree with best doctors as to the manner in which the ags become affected. Pulmonary Consumptids also called Tuberculous Consumption, by ich we mean a disease of the lungs caused by percles.

Of course I agree with the facultypon the symptoms and course of the disease; short, feet of it are calculated to represent a ly increasing; then shortness of breath, nickendry, hacking cough, so slight at first, buradualweight of 131 pounds. Some of the ing pulse, then feverish sensations, flust of the purposes, as enumerated, to which this cheeks and heat in the palms of the his and kine of rope is especially adapted are soles of the feet; the slight but growimmaciatheatres, fire brigades and means of tion, with feeble appetite, hemorrhageshcreasescape from dwellings and public build- ing coughs, disturbed sleep, fevered tone, then i as of appetite, expectoration of soften tubercle in the shape of small lumps of jowish, cheesy, or curdy matter, hectic fever, brint eye, chills, night sweats, sharp pains in the es, increasing emaciation and debility, disordel stomach and bowels, diarrhes, nausea, swen extremities, hollow cheeks, sunken eves, akness so great that expectoration is imposie; then death, bringing welcome relief from thortures of this horrid monster. Now, as I have said, I mainly agree ith the medical faculty on these points. Buthen we come to the treatment of the disease I dr from it totally. The doctors believe Pulmory Consumption cannot be cured. Therefore the not try to do anything more than to smoothe patient's path to the grave, and seem guitteckless in the region of my kidneys; I had the most, intense agony; I was confined to my bed and totally unable to change my position or shortened. As soon as tubercles begin appear times. I then heard of Hunt's Remedy; with many leading physicians to beg dosing I bought a bottle, and after taking a few spoontuls the result was magical, and in a few days my pain was gone and my water passed freely, and I could eat most anything; my swelling disappeared. I was a new per-son altogether. The doctors had given me Many physicians send their patients ay from Many physicians send their patients sy from son altogether. The doctors had given had in any poysicians send their parents by from the forme on distant voyages, to Minnesota cFlorida home on distant voyages, to Minnesota cFlorida —anything or anywhere so that they majie easy. For they do not pretend to cure, and thenare no remedies which will do so. Now I say ot only that diseases of the lungs can be cured, ut that my medicines do cure them. The proois, that by their use thousands of Consumples have been and are noto being cured by them. The whole science of medicine is baseon experiments. We cannot by any process of asoning decide that any particular medicine wilhelp or cure any particular disease. How wait found that Quinine will cure Chillis and FevertWhy, by trying one thing after another, until perience demonstrated that it was a specific forhat disease. In just that way the knowledge w gained of my remedies, which are almost a spece in diseases of the lungs.

temporary stimulant, which by reaction lets the organs affected sink wer than before, this not only tones up the stomach, but keeps it toned up. The natural craving for food returns in all its force, so that we have now a stomach hungry for food, and a digestive apparatus ready to make way with it. What next? Any one can answer that question. Put into that hungry stomach an abundant supply of nutritious food to be converted by the strange hemistry of digestion into rich red blood. This will stimulate the heart into stronger action, and t will pump a fuller current out through the arteries; healthy blood will take the place of the thin, blue, flattened fluid in the veins, and soon a circuation will be established which will flow through the lung + without making any unhealthy deposits. toms steadily diminish. At the same time use my Pulmonic Syrup; it is the best expectorant known. It blends with the food, and through the blood goes directly to the lungs, attacks and loosens up the yellow, foul stuff left there by the ripened tubercies, and strengthens and stimulates the bronchial tubes and coatings of the air-passages until they get strong enough to lift it out and expel it by ex pectoration. Then the lungs get over their soreness and have a chance to rest and heal.

So you see that I have not only shown that my medicines do actually cure consumption by expe-riment, but it also seems plain that they, or something like them, would, from the nature of the case, do so.

For a full description of consumption in all its various forms, and also Liver Complaint and Dyepepsia, those great forerunners of Consumption, see my book on "Consumption and its Cure." A correspondent of the Scientific American has been figuring on the red sunset question. He says: To estimate the possible quantity of ashes required to give the red tint observed in the sky, let us assume that an inch of ashes is spread through 10 cubic yards of air. This gives a dilution of 155,000 times. Astronomers tell us the cause of the red light reaches 60 miles high in the air. At the rate of diffusion of the ashes that is assumed, this would require a mass of 42 miles cube, or a pile of ashes 1 mile high, 42 miles wide and 1700 miles long.

D. R. Locke, Petroleum V. Nasby, editor Toledo Blade, writes: "I had on a forefinger of my right hand one of those pleasant pets, a 'run-round.' The finger became inflamed to a degree unbearable and swollen to nearly twice its natural size. A friend gave me Henry's Carbolic Salve, and in twenty minutes the pain had so much subsided as to give me a fair night's rest, which I had not had before for a week. The inflammation left the finger in a day. I consider it a most valuable article."

It has been suggested that the comblike structures on the feet of the prairie chicken are meant to act as snowshoes, and to, prevent the bird trom slipping on the crust and icy limbs of the trees whose browse forms its food in winter. This view receives plausibility from the fact that these combs are shed with the return of warmer weather.

The natives of the Chiloe Islands make use of a curious natural barometer, to which, from its having been first noticed by the captain of an Italian corvette, the name " Barometro Araucano" has been gixen. This novel weather guide was described, at a recent meeting of the Linean Society of New South Wales, as the shell of a crab, one of the "Anomura," probably of the genus "Lithodes." It is peculiarly sensitive to atmospheric changes, is nearly white in dry weather, but exhibits small red spots on the approach of moisture, and becomes completely red in the rainy season. THE LIFE LESSON

LEARNED BY A PROMINENT HUDSON ODD FELLOW.

From the Hudson (N. Y.) Register.

Mr. John Elting, a faithful Odd Fellow (Past Grand "Indelwaid," No. 442) and a member of the Baptiat hurch says: I have been, as most of my acquaintances in Hudson know, a sofferer from dyspepsia for ten years. The symptoms of my malady were those which a million other sufferers in the land would reognize as the'r own Beginning with indigestion, sour stomsch and flatulence. I became so weak that my body became a burden too heavy to carry, and my mind was weighted down by a gloomy despondency. After eating I feit as if I had a ball of glowing iron in my stomach; my abdomen would bloat, and I was afflicted almost constantly with a sick headache. A lady m advised me to nee DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REM-EDY, telling me what an infinite deal of good it had done her and others whom she knew. I began taking it in the latter part of Angust, and used altogether only three bottles, when it achieved in me the most wonderful improvement. I have now gained firsh, and feel stronger, better and happier than I have in ten years. FAVORITE REMEDY cured my friend, R. F. Hermans, of Gheut, of the lingering re-mains of malarial fever and of billousness. Mr. Har vey Thomas, the grocer on Warren str. et, just below the Worth House, says that it has had wonderfully good effects upon him. Scores of my acquaintances say that having once tried it they would never again be without it. I have given it to my children and found it the best medicine I have ever known for regu-lating their bowels and purifying their blood. The knowledge of this medicine I deem the great at lesso of physical life."

Whatever may be the cause, the orign of Pulmonary Consumption is in the blood, 'nenever, from any of the predisposing causes wich I have just now mentioned, the blood become segenera-ted it begins to make tuberculous depois in the substance of the lungs. This must be opped, or death will surely follow. It will not benough to get rid of the tubercles already deposite, and heal up the sores already made, but somethig must be done to stop further deposits. What shi that be?
