ATLANTIC CITY. [From N. Y. Home Journal, January 28th, 1885.]

[From N. Y. Home Journal, January 28th, 1865.] Five or six years ago Atlantic City was unknown except as a summer resort. For a few months in summer thousands througed its beach, and dis-ported in its turf, but with the coming of the au-tumn they vanished, leaving the town to sleep in quiet through the long months of winter. Wise heads, however, saw that there were a mildness of climate, an equability of temperature and re-cuperative properties in the sea air, which would some day attract as many visitors in winter as in summer. An enterprising hotel proprietor kept his house open for one winter as an experiment. People came, a few at first, but all experienced decided benefit, and the number increased from year to year, until its reputation as a great windecided benefit, and the number increased from year to year, until its reputation as a great win-ter sanitarium is now firmly established. Last sea-son six or eight hotels were filled with winter guests, and this winter others have joined the pi-oneers, and there will be anaple accommodations for thousands of visitors. Many conditions combine to make the place a great winter health resort. Its favorable location on the southern shores of New Jersey at a point, it is said, nearer than any other section of this coast to the Gulf Stream, secures for it a gentle-ness of climate unsurpassed on the North Atlan-ie. Behind the town is a yast waste of sand.

coast to the Gulf Stream, secures for it a gentle-ness of climate unsurpassed on the North Atlan-tic. Behind the town is a vast waste of sand, which abserbs the atmospheric moisture, and alds largely in drying and purifying the air. There is no body of fresh water within fifty miles; the soft sea breezes, tempered by the ocean's warm currents, bringing to land the health of the sea, while the land winds are robbed of their damp-ness in their course over the sands. These influ-ences tone down the severity of winter to a de-gree that is remarkable when the thermometer observations of Atlantic City are compared with those of points of the same latitude further in-land. The medical fraternity bear overpowering testimony to the efficacy of the climate in pulmo-nary and other kindred diseases, and their re-stored patients are willing witnesses to the same patients are willing witne

Apart from these considerations the city itself presents a number of desirable features. It is a well governed, handsomely built, and attractive city of some eight thousand permanent residents. All the accessories of city life are at hand. There are miles of handsome avenues, street railway, stores of every description, churches, and an ex-cellent market, supplied with all the abundance of the land. The hotois, originally built for sum-mer use, have been reconstructed and refitted with the appliances necessary for comfort in the winter. Open fires supplement the heat of stores and radiators, while they add a charm of cheer-fulness to their bright surroundings. The houses are built in full view of the sea, and glass-enclos-ed portioces afford both a prospect and a prome-nade for the invalid too walk to face the cager air. Apart from these considerations the city itsel air. One's enjoyment of out of door exercise One's enjoyment of out of door exercise is per-fect. The bright, bracing air, charged with the freshness of the sea, is a constant temptation to walks, sails, or drives. For the pedestrean a hand-some board walk along the whole ocean front af-fords a fine field for exercise. A splendid beach drive of ten miles, and a variety of vehicles of all descriptions, offer fine facilities for driving, while the inlet is famous as well for its sailing as for its fishing. fishing. There is no need of idleness if one cares to be active. No epidemic disease has ever prevailed at At-lantic City. The sanitary measures are in the hands of a board of health, the members of which fully appreciate the responsibilities of their po-stion. Pure drinking water is introduced from the interior, and a system of sewerage is now be-ing provided, which promises to prove a most po-tent factor in preserving the health of the grow-ing town. The topography of the town does not admit of natural drainage, and formerly the re-fuse and waste were carted off by contract. This plan proved unsatisfactory, and it was determin-ed to employ some more effective methods. The committee studied the question with care, and chose as the best what is known as the "West System." By this method the waste and sewer-age are forced through pipes to a central reser-voir, and thence pumped out to a print beyond the corporate limits, where, by the aid of machin-ery the solid substance is converted into phos-phates, and the liquid py filtration, is allowed to flow into the bay. This is the most effective method, and one that has been used with great success. The work of laying pipes is being pushed with great vigor by a New York firm, and the early comhelion of the work is confidently exss.
