MAUNFACTURERS AND ART.

From the great manufacturers of the country modern art has received its most liberal, but not always its most enlightened, support. Many a self-made-man, in the hurried desire to form a collection and to advertise his newly acquired riches on his walls, runs the risk of making purchases which would more appropriately be consigned to the lumber room. His ostentatiousness is prone to shine in a florid ornamentation, to the prejudice of a subtler and more refined taste, whose purity and simplicity fail to satisfy him. Even the lower orders are steadily influencing the future condition of art. Education, in some form or degree, is being forced on them. On the one hand, they are enabled to apply a more mature, but still imperfect, understanding to the industries of art; on the other, art has to be lowered to the level of their capacities and requirements. There has appeared, in consequence, a distinct and novel class of art, which rather appertains to the domain of mechanism, from the merits of its style and the rapidity of its reproduction. In such cases art drifts away from its parent stock, and in hollowness and superficiality grows on a par with the sham gentility it is destined to cover. Chromo-lithography, galvano-plastic, oleography, have undoubtedly served to diffuse the knowledge of art, but art itself is degraded into merchandise, and the artist is tempted to produce compositions for the factory, instead of loftily expressing his sense of the ideal. Of the many recent inventions which have been applied to art, photography is one of the most popular, and, though it has rendered inesstimable services to science and industry, as well as conferred many boons on mankind, it has, perhaps, more than any other counterfeit of art tended to damage true art. Photography offers nature to copyists and imitators in a stiffened and conventional form, and from the cheapness of its acquirement relegates to obscurity the would-be successors of Cosway and Ross. Thus art has long ceased to be the appange of a select and limited class. No longer at the mercy of the haughty patrician, no longer dependant on the veto of an inexorable judge, art defiantly throws down the gauntlet to criticism, content with the suffrages of the groundlings. Instead of receiving, it dispenses its favors. Art ceases to feel its way timidly in the shade, it disdains to linger until, discovered by some appreciative eye and aided by some loving hand, it is raised and cultivated and brought to perfection. Forced out into the public glare and under the public gaze, it has expanded into a luxuriant growth, and scatters a profusion of blossoms to the oi polloi with indiscriminate lavishness.

NO GOOSE.

Julius Cæsar records that the ancient Britons accounted it impious to eat goose, and Galen condemns the same bird as fit only to be put on a level with the ostrich. Shade of Father Christmas! to call the goose no better than the ostrich! Who would dream of eating an ostrich—that omnivorous biped which is said to be able to digest anything short of lace collars, because that was the only item found in the stomach of a tame ostrich which mysteriously expired after a hearty meal of rusty nails and miscellaneous etceteras, among which happened to be some of the family washing of its proprietor. But Galen was no worse than Aristotle, who commended the flesh of hawks; and, indeed, Galen himself recommended the flesh of foxes. He restricted the season, however, to the autumn, when they were busy feeding on the stolen grapes of the vineyards. Yet, while Galen, along with Herodotus, considered the flesh of dogs most excellent, Galen, along with Pliny, repudiated horseflesh as utterly abominable. We have not come to eating horseflesh in this country, but in many parts of the Continent it is exposed for sale as freely as beef and mutton, and that it is quite as palatable the present writer can testify. Herodotus tells that in Persia not only was horseflesh eaten, but also that camels were roasted whole at times of great rejoicings, just as, in our grandfathers' time, whole oxen used to be roasted on special occasions.

A SOCIABLE SPIDER.

Says a letter in the Cincinnati Enquirer: Some years ago I was living in St. Louis. All day long I was busy, but in the evening I was my own master. Letting down my curtains and poking my fire to a steady blaze, one evening, I drew my chair up to a table near the wall and began writing. Soon I was surprised to find that my room had another occupant, no other than an immense black spider, which advanced sociably toward me upon the table. I was quite surprised to find that he showed no fear, but sat looking at me with attention. I pulled a straw from the broom and drew it gently over his body and legs, to his great delight, for ten minutes, when he retired. The next evening he reappeared, to my surprise, and went through the same antics with the broom straw, to his evident pleasure. This was kept up all that lonely winter, and the solitude of my evenings was greatly relieved by my big spider friend, who came out regularly every night for a frolic with me and the broom straw.

SORTING RAGS.

Owing to the superior thrift of the people, probably, the quality of most foreign rags is not equal to ours, as they consist mainly of the well worn and very dirty remnants of the cheapest and coarsest grades of goods. Of course there are some fine rags, but the quantity is small compared with the poorer qualities. The rag dealers in New York are trying very hard to convince the authorities that there is not as much danger of catching the cholera from the rags received in bales and boxes as from those brought in on the backs of the dirty immigrants arriving almost daily. The authorities may admit the force of the argument, yet not see their way clear to admit the old rags, even if there was not a hundreth part of the danger, as it is their duty to avert all the danger they possibly can. So far none of those employed in sorting the rags or handling them have been smitten with cholera or any other plague, but it stands to reason that the germs of the desease may be transmitted in this way. Is it not singular that ragpickers, sorters and handlers are so free from the disease? Those who are engaged in the business are apparently as healthy as any other class; in fact more so than some. Take the girls who sort and wash rags, and compare them with shop girls and sewing girls. They are, as a rule, the fresher and ruddier of the two when they get the grime and dirt washed off. At first glance it would seem they must take a great deal of dirt into the lungs, but such is not the case. The windpipe and bronchial tubes are so well supplied with mucous secretions that almost any particle of dust that is inhaled has been caught before reaching the more delicate passages of the lungs. The greater portion is caught near the upper portion of the windpipe, and is easily coughed up.

BEATEN AT HER OWN GAME.

Some fifteen or twenty years ago, when the junk business was much better in Maine than it is at present, tin peddlers were about as numerous as tramps. They used to barter their goods for rags, iron, copper, etc., and in that manner would realize a double profit from their transactions. Quite a good income could be made in the business, and it was therefore indulged in quite extensively by those who had but a small capital to invest. There were then about eight peddlers running carts from Biddeford into the surrounding country towns, and each, of course, exerted himself to build up as much trade as he could. But sometimes when he came in contact with a person whom he thought he could not hold, he would try and make as good a bargain as possible. Some of these merchants were rather tricky in their dealings with their fellowmen; but sometimes it was the reverse, the customers displaying considerable imposition in their part of the transaction.

One of these rag venders was one day driving through the town of York, in search of business. He came to the residence where the housewife was evidently preforming her semi-annual task of house-cleaning, and thinking she might be burdened with a surplus amount of rubbish, called at the door. The woman said she had some rags in her possession, and invited him to come out to the barn to weigh them. The bag was not more than half full, and the peddler thought that either his steelyards had gone back on him, or that it was the heaviest lot of rags he had ever handled. As he was lifting the bag to carry it to the cart the mystery was easily explained, for he felt the jagged surface of a good sized stone concealed in the bottom. He, however, was equal to the emergency, and not uttering a word, he started for his team. She led the way, and as they passed a stone wall at the roadside he slyly took a huge stone from the top and slipped it in with the rags. All at once he decided to empty the contents upon the ground, and by putting them in a separate place, make room in the cart. So he turned the bag upside down and out rolled with the rags the two stones. The woman was greatly surprised and could not account for the matter, but he assured her that the children had probably throw them in while at play, and he could easily weigh them and deduct the difference. He put the rags into the cart and then carefully ascertained the the weight of the stone. On subtracting the difference scarcely anything remained to testify to the weight of her rags, but of course she could not say anything, and the peddler paying her a few coppers, and thanking her for her trouble, drove off, chuckling to himself at the thought of having beaten her at her own game.

DISCOLORED PIANO KEYS.

The yellow color of piano keys is often due to grease absorbed from the fingers of the player, or it may arise from the piano being in a dark place or being generally closed. Inferior qualities of ivory do not retain their whiteness without precautions. Good ivory keys, having a liberal exposure to the light, ought to retain their whiteness for many years. Ivory is bleached by exposure to sunlight for periods varying from four weeks to six months, or by immersion in turpentine near the surface, and exposure to the sun for three or four days.

Superior Excellence.

The reasons for PERUNA'S superior excellence in all diseases, and its modus operandi, are fully explained in Dr. Hartman's lecture, reported in his book on the "Ills of Life and How to Cure Them," from page 1 to page 10 though the whole book should be read and studied to get the full value of this par excellent remedy. These books can be had at all the drug stores gratis.

W. D. Williams, U. S. Pension Agent and Notary Public, New Vienna, Clinton County, Ohio, writes: "I take great pleasure in testifying to your medicines. I have used about one bottle and a half, and can say I am almost a new man. Have had the catarrh about twenty years. Before I knew what it was, had settled on the lungs and breast, but can now say I am almost well. Was in the army; could get no medicine there that would relieve me."

Col. E. Finger, Ashland, Ohio, writes: "I am happy to say I have used several bottles of your medicine called PERUNA, and my health has been greatly improved by it. I cheerfully recommend PERUNA to all who suffer with heart trouble, as being an invaluable medicine."

Rev. J. M. Ingling, Altamont, Ill., writes: "My father-in-law, who resides with me has been using your PERUNA for kidney disease, which has afflicted him for forty years and could get no relief until he saw your medicine. I induced him to try a bottle, which he did, and the one bottle of PERUNA and one bottle of MANALIN has given him more relief than all the other medicines he ever used."

Mr. Robert Grimes, Rendville, Ohio, writes: "My wife has been an intense sufferer from chronic catarrh, and after every other remedy had failed she commenced to use your PERUNA and MANALIN. They have helped my dear wife more than anything she has ever used. She has now taken two bottles, and is so much better that she will never quit its use until she is entirely well. It has wonderfully improved her sight. We think PERUNA and MANALIN will cure any disease."

R. Palmer, Pastor of the A. M. E. Church, No. 192 Canal Street, Wilkesbarre, Luzerne Co., Pa., writes: "Having used your PERUNA, and by experience became acquainted with its value, I write asking you to please send me five bottles of PERUNA and one of MANALIN by express and oblige, your humble servant."

Cook Bros., Prospect, Marion County, Ohio, writes: "We have a good trade on PERUNA; our customers speak well of it.

DOWNS' ELIXIR.

N. H. DOWNS'

Vegetable Balsamic

ELIXIR

For the cure of

Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Influenza, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir is used its efficacy is at once manifested, convincing the most incredulous that is not incurable, if properly attended to.—At its commencement it is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflamation, when the cough is rather dry, local fever, and the pulse more frequent, the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflamation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration.

It heals the ulcerated surfaces and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are of so drying a nature as to be in great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the cause, consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well. Send address for pamphlet giving full directions, free.

Price 25 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 per bottle.

PYÆMIA

Is the most virulent form of blood-poisoning. Less speedily fatal, but not less certainly so, is the vitiation of the blood of which the first symptoms are Pimples, Stiles, Boils, and Cutaneous Eruptions. When the taint of Scrofula gives warning of its presence by such indications, no time should be lost in using AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, the only perfect and reliable medicine for the purification of the blood.

SCROFULA

Is a foul corruption in the blood that rots out all the machinery of life. Nothing will eradicate it from the system and prevent its transmission to offspring but AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. This preparation is also the only one that will cleanse the blood of Mercurial poison and the taint of Contagious Diseases. Impoverished blood is productive of

ANÆMIA,

A wretched condition indicated by Pallid Skin, Flaccid Muscles, Shattered Nerves, and Melancholy. Its first symptoms are Weakness, Languor, Loss of Nerve Force, and Mental Dejection. Its course, unchecked, leads inevitably to fatality or death. Women frequently suffer from it. The only medicine that, while purifying the blood, enriches it with new vitality, and invigorates the whole system, is
