-A large audience attended the Installation of Rev. Land, on Sabbath evening last, in the Reformed church. Rev. Miller, of Rebersburg, preached the installation sermon, which was replete with thought and received the closest attention ; Revs. Yearick and D. M. Wolf assisted in the services. -Having jumped from winter right into summer without a spring one will be obliged to make a similar jump from winter clothing to summer suits. The Philad. Branch has a large and fine assortment on hand at specially reduced prices to suit the times. Suits for men and boys-best stock in the county.

----Hoffer street is soon to be opened. It is one of the new streets leading to the station from Church street, and there will be very fine lots all along it-in fact, some of the finest in town, and when built up will make one of the pleasantest streets in town. Lots can be had at very reasonable prices. Any information in regard to same can be had of Mr. John Hoffer, Bellefonte.

-Prof. J. P. Leitzel, of Girard, Kas., writes to the Reporter : This is the latent spring Kansas ever saw. Wheat is badly damaged-will not be { a crop. Times are dull. Health of people is good and strawberries and cream are now ripe.

Frof. Leitzel has been Sup't of Schools of Crawford county for a number of years, Millheim will be bl showing that his services are appreciated by the friends of education out there. -Meetings from time to time are being held for the purpose of celebrating Lewisburg's centennial and the 4th of July in Lewisburg in a proper manner-on a big scale. new Ev. parsonage will make Bro. Cur-rin feel independent. Lee is saucy since he has got connected with the Centre Hall water works. Solt has his draw kiln in operation. A new set of masons, under Burrell, of Spring Mills, have taken hold of the Luth. church wall. Luse has Bob Bartges assisting him on painting jobs. Mrs. Welch has purchased two of the Hoffer lots and will build on them. The station is getting to be a lively place, since the flouring mill is going. Geo. Thomas, of Bellefonte, would like to get into business at Centre Hall and we'd like him to come.

-Aaronsburg is excited over the proposed reconstruction of its water works. The old log-pipe system is delapidated and has ever been imperfect and attended with constant annoyances and repairs. The question of iron-pipes and a reservoir seems to divide the people some favoring the one some the other.

They have good water down there and splendid head, and with such a system like we have here at Centre Hall all would soon see its excellence, save the constitutional croaker who is found everywhere opposing improvements in general. We do not hesitate to say that we have a more complete and cheaper water supply than the average of towns anywhere, and have the croaker too.

FAMOUS MEN WHO ATE OYSTERS."

In all countries there are records of the excessive fondness of great men for oysters. Cervantes was an oyster-lover, Spain. Louis IX., careful lest scholarship should become deficient in France, feasted the learned doctors of the Sorbonne once a year on oysters; and another Louis invested his cook with an order of nobility as a reward for his oyster-cookery. Napoleon, also, was an oyster-lover; so was Rousseau, and Marshal Turgot used to eat a hundred or two, just to whet his appetite for break- million roubles. fast. Invitations to a dish of ovsters were common in the literary and artistic circles of Paris at the latter end of the last century. The Encyclopædists were particularly fond of oysters. Helvetius, Diderot and the Abbe Raynal, Voltaire, and others, were confirmed oyster-men. Before the Revolution violent politicians were in the habit of constantly frequentton, Robespierre and others were fond of the oyster in their days of innocence. The great Napoleon, on the eve of his names. battles, used to partake of the bivalve,

The learned Dr. Richard Bently could never pass an oyster shop without having a soming up to Bentley in other respects, have resembled him in this. The Scottish philosophers, too, of the last century above plan. -Hume, Dugald, Stewart, Cullen, etc. -used frequently to indulge in the "whiskered pandours" of their day and generation. "Oyster ploys," as they were called, were frequently held in the quaint and dirty taverns of the old town of Edinburgh. These Edinburgh oystertaverns of the olden time were usually situated under-ground, in the cellarfloor, and in course of the long winter evening, the carriages of the quality folk would be found rattling up and setting down fashionable ladies to partake of oysters and porter, plenteously but rudely served. Crates kind of bulb, the form of which varies, Western, ex brands whence flows an oily liquid that drys slowly and does not harden for a long time. The minute drops left on the glass by the hairs may be taken away, even after two or three days have passed, without one having to moisten them, by simply rubbing a piece of fine paper over them. I have devised an apparatus for coloring these drops by cutting a hole in a piece of board, over which I fix a glass alide. Turning the board over so that the glass shall be at the bottom. I have a little cell with a glass floor. With the aid of a piece of paper gummed to the wings, I introduce a fly into this cavity in such a manner that the pulvilli shall rest upon the floor. Then, putting the board under the microscope with the glass alide uppermost, we have the fly's feet under our eyes. The insect, struggling for liberty, places his pulvilli against the glass, leaving, after each effort, traces that may be observed very distinctly. for they are perfectly visible in good light. We may discover, whenever the feet of the fly come again into contact with these tracks or minute drops, that they are composed of a very liquid substance, for they spread quite rapidly on the glass. We cannot admit, as some naturalists assume, that the liquid can hold the the club-shaped hair-ends by enction. If this were the case, the ends would change shape during the suction. and would take the form of a disk. The fly puts its feet down and lifts them up are Price Current subject to Market Fluctuations with an incomparable facility that would not exist if the limb were really acted
