DISPENSING MOUNTAIN DUE.

Huntingdon, June 15.—Peculiar methods have been used in carrying on the extensive illicit trade in whiskey which has demoralized the laborers, delayed the work, and caused the contractors so much loss on the South Pennsylvania railroad.

At other places shanties, one and a half or two stories high, were built. The lower story was open to the public and the upper story occupied by the proprietor, who was unseen by and inaccessible to those below.

VERY, VERY LITTLE THINGS, but very important—your blood corpuscles. They are bright red. They are so small that it takes over 3,000 of them in a line to make an inch.

Few things are more fascinating in their way than a study of the subterranean history of man, whether in caves or mounds, whether it be to corroborate written history, or to take testimony that ante-dates all writing.

Says a New Orleans letter: A peculiarity of the young Southerner, male or female, is their early betrothal and eventual marriage, a condition that usually hinders undue dissipation, even if the desire exists.

A new explosive, known as kinetite, is at present being studied in Germany. It consists, it is said, of a mixture of oils and gum cotton, and is superior to dynamite, as its manufacture and manipulation are absolutely without danger.

The house or sobbing wren is a bird peculiar to southwestern Texas. Its melancholy note is described as very impressive. It begins in a high, clear key, like the tinkling of silver bells, and descending gradually from one chiming to another, it suddenly falters, breaks off, and sobs like a child—the song dying away in a gasp.

A BRUTE'S BEASTLY DEED. Springfield, Ill., June 17.—To-day Walter S. Amos, aged 18, attempted to walk across a field, when John Mozier, who was plowing, called him to stop.

AN ANSWER WANTED. Can any one bring us a case of liver or kidney complaint that Electric Bitters will not speedily cure? We say they can not, as thousands of cases already permanently cured and who are daily recommending Electric Bitters, will prove.

A Pure and Reliable Medicine.—A compound fluid extract of roots, levers, barks and berries is Burdock Blood Purifier. They cure all diseases of the blood, liver and kidneys.

Items of Interest.

Writers in the Lancet call attention to the great value of hot water applications to the head in cases of fainting or syncope. They say also that a prompt use of it, applied to the forehead with cloths will very often avert such attacks.

Invalids who depend upon cod-liver oil to sustain their vital forces should be careful to get a pure article. Cottonseed oil is now doing for the cod-liver product what it long since accomplished in the matter of olive oil.

Near Milwaukee resides a man who is such a firm believer in eternal punishment for sin by fire that he has decorated his cellar with painted flames, wooden demons, and other horrible figures. To this place he takes his children to punish them.

A Spaniard named Phillips, butcher at Poplar Creek Agency, M. T., recently lost one of his children by death, and to commemorate the event cut off his left forefinger, and sacrificed a fine mare and a three-year-old steer on the grave of the child.

England has no written Constitution, but is governed by the laws of tradition and the laws of the British Parliament. The so-called "English Constitution" is not a formal document, but the outcome of English history since the days the Romans overrun England.

We smile at the Chinese doctor and call him superstitious because he imports dried and smoked lizards for his patients. Yet it seems, according to the Medical World, that the reptiles are administered in cases of consumption and anemia with considerable success, due to the large amount of azote and phosphorus contained in them.

A society of young women for the suppression of slang has been formed in Cleveland, Ohio. For every violation of the rules a fine is imposed, which is paid over at the end of each quarter to the associated charities. There are, however, many words and phrases that, while they might be classified as slang, are expressive, and by long usage have become part and parcel of the English language.

The Weather forecasts a M. C. Montigny, of Brussels, for the years 1883 and 1884 have been verified by the letter. They have been based on the hypothesis that blue largely predominates in the twinkling of the stars when there is much water in the atmosphere, and that the preponderance of green, or more rarely of violet, is indicative of great dryness.

The Detroit Lancet describes the four plans for reducing obesity: The eating of nothing containing starch, sugar, or fat, called the Banting system, the eating of fat, but not sugar or starch, called the German Banting; the wearing of wool and sleeping in flannel blankets, instead of sheets, or the Munich system; not eating or drinking at the same time, or rather, the allowing a couple of hours to intervene between eating and drinking, the Schwenger system.

Mr. Maekelne, a well-known English investigator of spiritualism, says: "After my twenty years' experience in investigating spiritualism, I have never seen anything take place which I could not reproduce and account for, except the gyrations of a table on two occasions. One of these, without the presence of a medium, by myself and a few friends, we produced movements of the table—a heavy one—which we could not accomplish afterward by exerting all the muscular force at our command."

The public baths of Vienna are said to be the finest in the world. The building is situated in the heart of the city, and encloses a basin one hundred and fifty-six feet in width by five hundred and seventy-eight feet in length, and varying in depth to twelve feet. The enormous quantity of water contained in this basin is renewed three times a day.

Scientific.

On the Western late Railway of Austria extensive experiments were made in 1883 in racing passenger fares with the ultimate result that, upon the whole, the deductions paid on the suburban but involved a loss on the long-distance traffic.

The expenses in connection with the experiments in ascertaining the best source of light for lighthouse illumination has cost the British Government a good round sum. A return shows that up to the end of last November the outlay was more than $6,000 and other indebtedness was subsequently incurred in connection with the same object.

The production of crayon seed has been estimated at 150,000 bales a year. All the northern part of Europe and the United States are the principal centres of the consumption of this article. The manufacturers of essential oil in Germany use a great deal of the seed, and the plant in some parts of that country is to be found in every meadow.

The following is given as a cheap mode of rendering fabrics unflammable. Four parts of brax and three parts of sulphate of magnesia are shaken up together just before being required. The mixture is then dissolved in from 20 to 30 parts of warm water. Into the resulting solution the articles to be protected from fire are immersed, and when they are thoroughly soaked they are wrung out and dried preferably in the open air.

Alloys of indium and allium, L. de Boisbaudran says, do not decompose water appreciably, and only very slowly attacked by dilute hydrochloric acid. The melting point is difficult to determine, because its fluidity increases gradually, the metal remaining for some time in a pasty condition, as if formed of a mixture of perfect liquid with crystalline grains. The melting point of the most fusible of these alloys lies near 18.5° Centigrade.

The Weather forecasts a M. C. Montigny, of Brussels, for the years 1883 and 1884 have been verified by the letter. They have been based on the hypothesis that blue largely predominates in the twinkling of the stars when there is much water in the atmosphere, and that the preponderance of green, or more rarely of violet, is indicative of great dryness.

W. O. Atwater, Chemical Laboratory Wesleyan University, finds, as the outcome of his special experiments, that plants grown in nutritive solutions exposed to the air, but protected from rain and dew, contained at maturity much more nitrogen than was supplied them in nutritive solution and seed; that for this excess of nitrogen the atmosphere was the only possible source, and that the manner in which this nitrogen was acquired by the plants remains still without adequate explanation.

To diminish the dangers of the extra current in the dynamo-electric machines in case of a rupture of the outer circuit, J. Renaud proposes a simple arrangement founded on Faraday's principle of induction used in telegraphy under the name of safety rods to secure the bobbins of the apparatus against atmospheric electricity. It is necessary merely to connect to the poles of the machine an instrument of that kind to form a safety valve, as it were, giving ready passage to the current the moment it becomes dangerous.

M. Arnaud has obtained from leaves the erythrophyll of Bougainville (the red coloring matter) in the form of orange-red crystals. He extracts the color by means of so-called petroleum ether in which chlorophyll (the green coloring matter) remains insoluble. The substance thus obtained has the same solubility in different solvents as carotin. Further marks of resemblance to the latter substance are to be seen in the identity of the melting point, crystalline form, and chemical reactions.

The small red ants, says Prof. C. V. Riley, are undoubtedly the most troublesome of the insects infesting houses, and to destroy them, or even to keep them in check, appears to be nearly a hopeless task, owing to the countless number of specimens and the remarkable pertinacity they exhibit in their attacks. All that can be done is to carry on an incessant and untiring warfare against them by means of liberal and frequent applications of pyrethrum powder, kerosene, or kerosene emulsions, hot water naphthalene, etc.

Reviewing the cost of gas as fuel, Mr. Collis has stated that gas for heating purposes can be produced at one-half the cost of illuminating gas, but as it is not well adapted for storing it should be used as it is made. Gaseous fuel, was much more economical than solid fuel and in support of that assertion he adduced the important industrial fact that where 20 hundred weight of coal had been formerly required to melt a ton of steel enough gas can now be obtained from 13 hundred-weight of coal to effect the same end.
