--- Near Scotia, a social event transpired on Saturday evening, such as does not usually occur in any and every part of this community. The crowd was equally divided between colored people and whites-the dancers on the platform partaking of the same admixture. Stover, of the Bellefonte marble works, for whose generoaity the con-gregation feel thankful to him. The stone is elegantly polished, and the carving "1885" was done with a faultless hand, and on the whole it is a sample of the work usually turned out by Mr. Stover in monuments and tombstones. The stone is of the finest marble, and of well-suited proportions, showing that Stover's marble yards are equal to any

The Lord, according to Mr. Finkle's view, is to be served in temples befitting His character, and calculated to draw out the best service of the soul. From the material temple the speaker drew attention to the lighter and more enduring temple of the Spirit. The sermon and speaker left their impressions for good behind them.

FOR STEALING TWO HORSES.

Henry McGovern Comes to Grief for a Sun day Night Crime-The Chase.

Huntingdon, July 23.—A man giving his name as Henry McGovern, was taken before Justice J. R. Patton yesterday morning and committed to jail for steal ing two horses, worth $150 each, from L G. and L. K. Cline, near Burnt Cabins, Fulton county, Sunday night. He took them from a pasture field and left the horse he had been driving, which was of little value, tied to the fence.

L. G. Cline, one of the owners, started in pursuit on Monday morning, and could trace the thief who attracted the attention of all the people along the road by his rapid driving. Even during the night the loud rattle of the wheels of his vehicle could be heard by the farmers. Cline came in sight of McGovern near Marklesburg, this county, yesterday afternoon, after which they had a breakneck race for five or six miles.

Seeing that he could not escape with the horses, McGovern jumped from the wagon near McConnellstown, five miles from this place, and took to the woods, coming in this direction. Word was sent to Policeman J. H. Westbrook, who watched for the fleeing thief on the south side of the Juniata river, opposite the foot of Fourth street. There he saw his name and, calling assistance, arrested him, and in the struggle ricelyed some

AVENGED HER HONOR.

Bedford, Iowa, July 21 .- The most exciting tragedy that ever occurred in this part of the state took place in this city yesterday afternoon. Ida Kimball is the pretty fifteen-year old daughter of one of the leading business men of this city. She is a brunette and is one of the most popular girls in the city. She was well developed for her age, and among strangers would have readily passed for a girl of eighteen. She has had the best of home training, and much money has been spent on her musical education, which was the means of her meeting T. M. Giles, the leading music dealer of the city. Giles is a young married man of family and of good address. He was very popular, and his business was more than ordinary prosperous. Ida was a frequent caller at the store where she bought music. At home nothing unusual was observed in her demeanor. She was somewhat quieter, perhaps, than usual but that was all. After dinner she re tired to her room, and was not again seen by any member of the family until after the tragedy.

It is supposed that she left her home between two and three o'clock and went directly to the music store, where she engaged Giles in conversation. Suddenly she sprang directly in front of him, drew an ivory-handled revolver from her pocket, fired twice in quick succession, and without a word turned and left the store. Two or three persons who were present at once ran to assist Giles, who was lying apparently dead, with blood gushing from a ghastly wound in the head and one in the breast. He remained unconscious until the time of his death, which occurred at five

Miss Kimball at once returned to her home, where she calmly announced that she had killed Giles. To her horrified parents she explained that over a year ago Giles had seduced her; that he had since repeatedly compelled her to submit to him; that she was now in a deli cate condition, and, as he could not give her reparation, she determined to kill She has not been arrested, will be soon. She seems to be perfectly collected, and shows no remorse for her deed, but is greatly worried over her mother's condition. Throngs of people surround the house, but no demonstration has been made.

CARDINE COMPOUND. A NEW, SAFE AND RELIABLE REMEDY for the positive cure of Headache in its various forms, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Stomach and Kidney Disease. This remedy is to counteract the too prevalent habit of using Monphia, which is dangerous to life and must be abolished. This is just the remedy for weak women, suffering continually with headache, constipation, etc., and who need something to impart vigor to the general system. This is no cure-all, neither is it a so-called patent nontrum, but the prescription of a regular graduate. Has proved efficient in thousands of cases, and can be relied on as efficient and safe.
