A TOWN LYING IN RUINS.

A TORNADO'S TERRIBLE DESTRUCTION IN OHIO.

Washington Court House leveled to the Earth—Five Persons Killed, Three Hundred Injured—Loss Over $1,000,000.

Washington C. H., Ohio, Sept. 9.—A tornado last evening at eight o'clock almost completely demolished this place. Not a single store facing Central square out of forty is left intact, and a majority of them are leveled. The storm came from the northwest, and broke upon the town very suddenly, carrying everything before it. The tornado whirled up Court street, the main business thoroughfare, and ruined almost every business block in it, at least forty or fifty in all. Hardly a private residence in the town escaped, fifty 400 buildings going down. The Baptist, Presbyterian and Catholic churches all suffered the common fate.

The Ohio Southern, Pan Handle, Narrow Gauge and Midland Railroad depots were blown into "smithereens," and every building in the vicinity was carried away, making ingress or egress almost impossible. Every wire within a circuit of two miles is down.

The report of the catastrophe was sent by a telegraph operator who tapped a wire two miles west of town, and sitting in a heavy rain storm worked his instrument. The panic-stricken people were taken completely unawares, and fled from the tumbling buildings in every direction through the murky darkness.

A mad frenzy seemed to seize the people, and they hurried hither and thither in their wild distraction, little knowing whether they were fleeing. After the whirlwind, which lasted about ten minutes, a heavy rain set in which continued unabated throughout the night. The Sheriff ordered out the militia, which took charge and helped get order out of chaos.

All the gas went out when the storm came up. The gas works were destroyed. Bon fires had to be burnt in the streets to give light for the searchers. One of the injured is the manager of the Telephone Exchange. He was hurled across the street and had an arm, leg and collar bone broken. Some houses were lifted up and carried bodily several hundred feet.

As soon as a few of the cooler heads recovered their senses, searching parties were organized and the sad work of looking for the dead began. The glimmer of lanterns, procured from farm houses in the vicinity and from the few houses left standing, was the only light they had to work by. Two or three bodies were stumbled upon in the middle of the street, where they were stricken down by flying bricks or timbers. The cellars of houses and every sort of refuge were filled with shivering people, huddled together in the vain attempt to keep warm. One babe in arms died from exposure.

LATER PARTICULARS.

Cincinnati, Sept. 9.—A dispatch from Washington Court House says: Mrs. M. Jones, Edith Floyd, Ella Forshe, Jennie Forshe and Florence Carr were killed, and Herbert Taggart, James Jackson and John C. Van Pelt are supposed to be fatally injured. Fully 300 persons were hurt. The loss will exceed $1,000,000. The council has appointed a relief committee. The militia are guarding the stores whose contents are all exposed. Washington C. H. is a town of about 4,000 inhabitants.

N. MYSTERY ABOUT IT.

There are no mysteries or secrets about the compounding of Brown's Iron Bitters. The preparation of iron is the only one that can be taken without injuring the teeth or stomach. It gives vigor to the feeble, life to the debilitated, and health to the dyspeptic. You need not fear to give it to the most delicate child. Mrs. Emma Williams, of Starkweather, Missa, says, "It relieved my daughter of dyspepsia, and myself of general debility."

Bradford, Sept. 7.—A little daughter of David Norf, of Dubuis, died a few weeks ago. Willis, her 5 year old brother, repeatedly declared that he wanted to die, so that he might go to heaven to see her. On Friday last he asked his mother if he was good enough to go to heaven if he died. His mother told him that she believed he was. Not long after he heard a pistol shot in a room upstairs. She ran up to the room and found Willis lying dead on the floor. In his right hand he held a revolver, with which he had shot himself through the heart.

AN END TO BONE SCRAPING.

Edward Shepherd, of Harrisburg, Ill., says: "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Having had a running sore on my leg for eight years my doctor told me I would have to have the bone scraped or leg amputated. I used instead three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well."

Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle, and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25c per box, J. Zeller & Son's, drug store, Bellefonte.

A NEW TELEGRAPH POLE HAS BEEN INVENTED.

A new telegraph pole has been invented, which, if adopted, will make more business for iron men and less for the lumber men. It is constructed of tubular malleable iron, galvanized, 2 1/2 inches at the top, weight 50 pounds, and will stand a greater strain than the ordinary pole. The bottom sets in a clamp plate, 6 inches square, which grips the ground. Satisfactory tests have been made.

AN IMPORTANT DISCOVERY.

The most important discovery is that which brings the most good to the greatest number. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, cough and colds, will preserve the health and save life, and is a priceless boon to the afflicted. Not only does it positively cure consumption, but coughs, colds, bronchitis, asthma, hoarseness, and all affections of the throat, chest and lungs, yield at once to its wonderful curative powers. If you doubt this, get a trial bottle free, at J. Zeller & Son's, drug store, Bellefonte.

COFFEE-DRINKING IN TURKEY.

The Turks are a nation of coffee-drinkers. They use coffee as the Italians use wine or the Germans beer. Of course alcoholic drinks are popular, but it is illegal to use them in public. Coffee-houses are as plentiful as saloons in a mining town, and in addition itinerant vendors of the drink are omnipresent in the streets. These latter have each a sheet-iron stove, such as tinkers carry, an iron sauce dish with a long wooden handle, a bottle of coffee, a paper of sugar, a can of water, a spoon and a few small cups. When a cup of coffee is ordered from one of these fellows, he retires into the nearest doorway and mixes the coffee in his stove. Then out of the bottle is ladled the coffee, previously ground into impalpable powder, a teaspoonful being taken for each cup to be made. An equal amount of sugar is added, and the whole put in the saucepan and covered with water. Then the pan goes on to the coals, and is allowed to boil up at once. The result looks inviting and smells good, but you feel more friendly with it outside than when you have got it in. If it did not have so many grounds in it, it would be good syrup, but there is altogether too much sugar for it to be good coffee. The coffee-houses are delightfully free from ceremony. I have seen nothing, except a German theatre, that equaled them. They are generally combination concerns, the refreshment clerk being also a surgeon, a dentist and a barber. The rooms are large, but low, and commonly very neatly whitewashed. The only furniture is a set of benches (divans in poetry), that run round the walls, and, in the centre, a stool used as operating chair when the cook is called on to minister to a diseased body or mind. Against the wall hangs a hand-mirror and a case of instruments, and under the benches are a row of arrabbi for the use of smoking customers. The man who is to be shaved, bled, or have his teeth pulled, sits upright on the stool, with no support for his back or head, and gets what enjoyment out of it he can. The smokers and loungers on the benches take no notice of him—or anything for that matter. Coffee-drinking is a grave matter with a Mohammedan, and he takes his pleasure sadly.

On the 26th of October, 1835, was celebrated the opening of the Erie Canal. About a month before, when the community, eagerly anticipating a connection with tide-water, was excited with visions of prospective greatness, and ready for any display, there arrived from New York Major Manuel Mordecai Noah, High Sheriff of the county of New York, Consul at Tunis, and self-styled Judge of Israel. He came with glittering robes and insignia of office to establish the city of Ararat on Grand Island, then covered with a dense forest. Although a loyal and devoted son of Abraham, Major Noah had not succeeded in arousing enthusiasm in his scheme among those of his own faith. As a shrewd man of the world, an able lawyer, a successful politician and the editor of the principal organ of the Tammany party in New York, and withal sanguine that the city would prove a mine of wealth to its founders, he had no difficulty in persuading some of his Gentile friends, among whom was the father of the late Gerritt Smith, to buy nearly the whole of Grand Island, then just surveyed and offered for sale by the United States Government.

On this lonely but extensive island, between the forks of the Niagara, and lying midway between Lake Erie and the falls of Niagara, he determined to build a city of Oriental splendor. Already, before his arrival on the scene, a flag staff bearing the "grand standard of Israel" had been erected on the chosen site, and a stone having an inscription in Hebrew and in English had been prepared to dedicate with imposing ceremonies. This stone, always known in local history as "Mordecai's corner stone," was intended rather as a memento of the founding of the magnificent city of the Jews than as the support of any particular building. In those days the luxurious steam-yachts of wealthy citizens, which now plow the rapid current of the Niagara, existed not in the imagination of the veriest dreamer; even row-boats were wanting with which to convey the crowd eager to behold the spectacle presented by the birth of an Oriental city in the depths of the forest. The brilliant and audacious Noah conceived the idea of having the ceremony celebrated with due pomp within the walls of St. Paul's Church (in Buffalo), twelve miles from the site of his city. To this end were invoked the willing services of all the dignitaries of the town, the military and the Masons, Major Noah, the central figure, appearing as the "Judge of Israel" in black, wearing judicial robes of crimson silk, trimmed with ermine, and a richly-embossed golden medal suspended from his neck.

The bright September day opened with the booming of cannons. The grand procession embraced the best that the town could offer. Halting at the church door, the troops opened each way, and the pageant entered; while the band played the grand march from Judas Maccabeus, the corner-stone of Ararat, the city of refuge for the people who rejected Christ, was laid on the communion table of a Protestant Episcopal church, and dedicated by Hebrew ritual. The Masonic rites were performed with the typical corn wine and oil, the choir sang "Old Hundred," and the rector, in full canonicals, pronounced a Christian benediction. Mordecai Noah never saw the site of Ararat, and the Hebrew race disregarded his grandiloquent proclamation and the tax levied for its building; but its corner-stone, after many curious migrations occupies a conspicuous place in the rooms of the Buffalo Historical Society, where relic hunters are frequently seen copying its inscription.

THE CITY OF ARARAT.

Surface Indications
What a miser would very properly term "surface indications" of what is beneath, are the Pinpoints, Sides, Sore Eyes, Hoarseness, and various other ailments which people are annoyed in spring and early summer. The effects of the atmosphere during the winter months, now makes its presence felt, through the pores of the skin, and produces a general debility, with a feeling of nervousness, languor, and weariness—often lightly spoken of as "only spring fever." These are all signs that Nature is endeavoring to throw off the corrupt atoms which were accumulated during the winter months, and which are now being eliminated through the pores of the skin. To reach health, Nature must be aided by a thorough blood-purifying medicine; and nothing else is so effective as

Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which is sufficiently powerful to crowd from the system even the taint of Heredity. The medical profession endorse AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, and many attestations of the cures effected by it have been made all over the world. It is the language of the Hon. Francis Pickens, ex-Governor of South Carolina, and ex-Mayor of Lowell, "the only preparation that does real, lasting good."
