CONFESSION OF A MURDERER.

He Kills His Father and Allowed His Brother to Hang for It.

Saltsburg, Pa., Sept. 26.—No little excitement has been occasioned in Washington township, Indiana county, by the confession of John Allison, brother of James G. Allison, who was hanged for the murder of his father, Robert Allison, a year ago, that he (John Allison) killed the old man. He says the crime was committed with the object of securing some money that his father was supposed to have hidden in an old chest in the house where the murder was perpetrated. After the bloody transaction the self-confessed murderer asserts that the chest was broken open, but the treasure was not found. Allison has been acting very queerly lately, and it is believed that his guilty secret has made him insane. He has allowed his hair and whiskers to grow very long and shaggy. He wears no coat, and except an old pair of overalls and presents an extremely strange and wild appearance. Allison will be confined and his mental condition inquired into. James G. Allison, who was executed for the murder, was convicted on circumstantial evidence, which was exceedingly direct and strong, but there were many people, at the time of the trial, who thought he was innocent. In the event of the examination establishing the sanity of John Allison, it is possible the case may be tried over again.

Sufferers from the effects of quinine, used as a remedy for chills and fever, will appreciate Ayer's Quinine Cure, a powerful tonic bitters, composed wholly of vegetable substances, without a particle of any noxious drug. Its action is peculiar, prompt, and powerful, breaking up the chills, curing the fever and expelling the poison from the system, yet leaving no harmful or unpleasant effect upon the patient.

A GUNNER'S GUIDE.

Appropos of the approach of the gunning season is the "Paradise for Gunners and Anglers," a neat little pamphlet issued by the Passenger Department of the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad Co., descriptive of the gunning and fishing resources of the Delaware and Maryland waters. The book treats of the game and fish of this section, their haunts and habits, the localities they frequent, and gives extracts from the game laws of the region, and, in fact, all the information a sportsman could desire. It is embellished with engravings of game and fish, and contains an excellent map, showing the water courses, roads and railways of the section. It is a complete manual for the gunner and angler, who would find his sport in one of the best game-stocked portions of the Atlantic States. The book is distributed gratuitously, and may be procured by addressing James R. Wood, General Passenger Agent, Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad, Philadelphia.

By accident a man swallows poison. How frightened he is. How the home antidotes are sent down after it, and in what glowing terms the messenger hurries along the doctor. Yet hosts of excellent people are dying of poisonous elements in their blood. The liver should have removed these, but it is weak and diseased, and so fails of its duty. Do you understand this fact? If so, you will be glad to learn that Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy cures liver complaint.

EXPERIMENTING ON ANIMALS.

Some people object entirely to experiments upon animals. They do this chiefly on two grounds. The first is that such experiments are useless, and the second that, even if they were useful, we have no right to inflict pain upon animals. The first objection is due to ignorance. Almost all our exact knowledge of the action of drugs on the various organs of the body, as well as the physiological functions of these organs themselves, has been obtained by experiments on animals. Their second objection is one which, if pushed to its utmost limits and steadily carried out, would soon drive man off the face of the earth. The struggle for existence is constantly going on, not only between man and man, but between man, the lower animals, and plants, and man's very being depends upon his success. We kill animals for food. We destroy them when they are dangerous, like the tiger or cobra, or destructive, like the rat or mouse. We oblige them to work for us for no reward but their food, and we urge them on by whip and spur when they are unwilling or flag. No one would think of blaming the messenger who should apply whip and spur to bring a retriever, and thus save the life of a human being about to die on the scaffold, even although his horse should die under him at the end of the journey. Humane people will give an extra shilling to a cabman in order that they may catch the train which will take them to soothe the dying moments of a friend without regarding the consequences to the cab horse. Yet if one-tenth of the suffering which the horse has to endure in either of the cases just mentioned were to be inflicted by a physiologist in order to obtain the knowledge which would help to relieve the suffering and lengthen the life, not of one human being only, but of thousands, many persons would exclaim against him. Such objections as these are due either to want of knowledge or want of thought on the part of people who make them. They either do not know the benefits which medicine derives from experiment, or they thoughtlessly (sometimes, perhaps, wilfully) ignore the evidence regarding the utility of experiment.

TERrible FLOODS IN INDIA.

Calcutta, Sept. 29.—Disastrous floods covering an area of 3,500 square miles have occurred in the Presidency of Bengal. A great amount of property has been destroyed and many lives lost. Many families have been made destitute. Houses, crops, cattle, and portable goods of every description, have been carried away by the floods. The Government authorities are distributing provisions and clothing. False Point, which was thought to be the best harbor between Calcutta and Bombay, was struck by a storm wave on 22d, and swept so completely that most of the inhabitants perished.

The victims at False Point number 300. Many vessels were wrecked there.

"My daughter has taken the medicine faithfully, according to directions, and her health and spirits are now perfect. The humor has all gone from her face. I wish every anxious mother might know what a blessing Ayer's Sarsaparilla is in such cases."

LIVING AT THE AGE OF 117.

Troy, Sept. 29.—Caroline Jackson, a colored woman, at the county house is 117 years old. When admitted to that institution five years ago her age was entered on the record as 112 years. She was once a slave. She is still able to walk about and retains most of her faculties.

Should have had her at the Coburn camp to help draw a crowd.

One bottle of Kellers' Catarrh Remedy is in most cases sufficient to cure malaria. It is the only absolute cure for catarrh in the market. Try it. See advertisement in another column.

TWENTY-FIVE RATTLES.

Samuel Kissinger, of this county, brought to this office and exhibited Friday a set of rattles numbering twenty-five, which were taken from a rattlesnake that was killed recently near Brookside. The snake itself was fully 15 feet in length. This monster was dispatched by Fort Johnson and Fred Messner, and is the largest reported around here thus far this season.—Wm. Spont Banner.

The Reporter ventures to say that so far as the length of the rattler is concerned, the thing is a fish story.

"I have used Simmons Liver Regulator with successful effect in bilious colic and dyspepsia. It is an excellent remedy and certainly a public blessing."

WARLIKE NEWS FROM ANNAM.

Paris, Sept. 29.—Advices from Hanoi say that the Black Flags surround the province of Brindinh. A Chinese General at the head of a large force has invaded Annam against the French.

DUTCH RICE.

The finest rice is known as Dutch rice, and comes from Amsterdam. It is grown in Java and milled and polished in Amsterdam by some peculiar process which American millers are very anxious to learn. The "Dutch rice" has more perfect grains, a better luster, and is less broken than rice milled in this country. Many attempts have been made to learn the Dutch process, but they guard it with jealous care and allow no one in their mills. It is suspected that they use oil, as the rice when confined in a bag for some time, gives the cloth a soft, greasy feeling.

Recently the State Department sent out a circular to consular officers requesting information concerning the preparation of rice. The Consuls had no better luck than other people. They recently reported that the manufacturers declined to divulge the secret, saying that it was of the utmost value for them to preserve it, and that they would not furnish the method to their own Government. The Dutch rice is worth one-quarter of a cent more per pound than other rice, simply because of its fine appearance; but when cooked it is no better than other rice.

American millers are secretive about their own processes of milling, and decline to allow strangers to go through their works. There is only one mill in New York City, that of Crampton Brothers, at Monroe and Jefferson streets.

The grain comes from the threshing mill as rough rice or paddy, and requires grinding to free it from the hulls. It is first screened to get rid of the sand, and is then passed between a pair of heavy stones, five feet across, to remove the outer husk. Thence it goes into large wooden mortars, the ironshod pestles of which weigh 250 to 350 pounds each, and is pounded for two hours, when it is ready for screening. Some mills clean the rice by means of wire cards, without pounding. Finally the rice is screened into flour, broken rice, middling rice and prime rice. The prime rice passes into the polishing or brushing screen, which is a vertical cylinder, laid up and down with shreds of sheepskin, and made to revolve within a wire screen. This cleans off the four and gives a polish to the grains.

The best rice produced in this country is grown in South Carolina. The Chinese consume a great deal of rice in this city, and are said to use only the best quality. The majority of New York families serve boiled rice as a sort of paste, with the grains all merged together. In the South, where its cooking is properly understood, it is served with every grain clean and distinct. It is eaten there as a vegetable with pepper and salt, while North it is regarded as a dessert, and eaten with sugar or molasses. It is said that the rice should be put into salted water which is boiling hot. In five minutes the water should be drained off, and the covered pot left for twenty minutes longer on the coals.

CAMP-MEETING BOARDING HOUSE.

A long-waisted, slab-sided brother, with rather a clerical air, walked into a well-known inn on the camp ground and inquired how much for table board.

"Six dollars a week, your reverence."

"And how much for dinner?"

"Six dollars."

"What! The same for one meal as for three?"

"The identical."

"But will you be kind enough to explain the apparent inconsistency?"

"I will, my friend, you are doubtless familiar with the doctrine of the trinity?"

"I trust that I am."

"Well, sir, I've had the boarding-house trinity, the great three-meals-in-one-racket, played on me too many times to get taken in on that lug any more." And then the jovial skipper turned to the bystanders and told how, when first he opened his hotel, gaunt women and hollow-legged men used to come there and engage for dinners only, at half price, and get up at nine in the morning and eat a couple of crackers, and then come in at noon and fill up like demodrearies with enough to last till the next day. Other folks may continue to try it on if they want to, but not for Joseph.

HE HAD EXPERIENCE.

The municipal census-taker was around taking names, and pulled the bell at Bliffsticks' and Bliff came to the door. He was put through the usual formula, and finally the census taker asked the age of his wife.

"Can't tell," responded the husband.

"Can't tell?" echoed the questioner.

"Why? Don't you know?"

"Of course I do."

"Then you must tell me. The law says you must."

"The law? What law?"

"The law of the State."

"What will they do with me if I don't tell?"

"Put you in jail for contempt."

"All right; put me in jail."

"Why, man," exclaimed the astonished official, "you won't go to jail and suffer rather than tell your wife's age, will you?"

"Well, yes," he said, resignedly; "I've never been in jail, and on one occasion I did tell my wife's age."

TRAIN TALK.

There was a long-haired man in the smoking-car, and some of the passengers were making sport of him. They called him a crank.

"Tut, tut, boys," said an elderly passenger, "don't call a man a crank simply because he has long hair. Let me tell you a story. I owned a farm many years ago down East. One day I noticed a long-haired man walking about my place in a very queer way. I asked him what he was doing, and he said he was just looking about a little. But he was there the next day and the next. Finally I insisted on his telling me what he wanted, and he said:

"Well, farmer, there's buried treasure under your farm, and I've been trying to locate the best place to dig for it. I've found the place, and now I will make a bargain with you. You do the digging and we will divide the treasure equally between us."

"I agreed, and went to digging where he told me to. I spent all the money I had on earth putting the hole down, notwithstanding that the neighbors all laughed at me and called the man a long-haired crank."

"You were a bigger fool than I took you for," laughed one of the passengers.

"There you go again," said the old man. "You youngsters judge by appearance and think you know all you know."

"But you never found any buried treasure, did you?"

"Yes, I did; hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth."

"What kind?"

"Coal. The long-haired man was a geologist."

HE HAD PINK TOE NAILS.

"You newspaper fellows are getting to be very enterprising," said a Wall Street man to a New York reporter the other day.

"Yes; but we have to be, or get left by the Chicago boys."

"You seem to get about all the news that is going."

"Yes, that's what we're here for."

"I stumbled against a queer piece of intelligence in print that staggered me. I have been studying about it ever since and doing my best to make out how the reporter got his information."

"What was it?"

"A very impressive announcement that Talmage has pink toe nails."

"And that puzzled you?"

"Yes, greatly."

"Well, I am the reporter who cornered that piece of pulp news, and perhaps I can help you out of your perplexity."

"How did you do it?"

"I went to him in the guise of a corn doctor, and he peeled off his socks at once."

"Thanks. It was an unusual bit of religious information in which I took more than passing interest, I can assure you."

"Why so?"

"The Bible had previously informed me that the feet of those called of the Lord were beautiful; but I had no idea the beauty of their understanding extended to the toe nails also."
