-The work on the new Lutheran church, in this place, is progressing, tho' the edifice may not be ready for dedica-tion as soon as was intended owing to the delays that were caused by misunder-standing the plans of the architect, which have however, been overcome. There were various unfounded rumors abroad relative to the work, which it may be well to correct here. One was that the plans of the architect had to be changed to secure the intended design of contruction. This is an entirely wrong impression, the work of the architect, Mr. Bolton, of Philadelphia, is that of a master hand, and has not been changed, and his plans will harmonize as per drawings and specifications, in every particular. Another rumor was that the whole work was about to be torn down, on account of sinking of the foundations. There is no ground for this rumor, as the foundation has shown no signs of giving. This rumor no doubt originated from the fact that small parts of the wall and brick work were changed because of failure to put them down as found in the plans and specifications. There has thus far been nothing of a serious nature, and mistakes will happen with any mechan-ic, and in the above instance were of a nature to allow correction without dis-

BRAVERY OF BARHARIANS.

The strenuous and partly successful resistance offered to two of the great military powers of Europe by nations regarded as outside the pale of civilization, and from a military standpoint as puny and contemptible, calls attention to the revolution which is gradually being brought about in the relations of western and enlightened countries to the barbarous or semi-barbarous races of the world. Other things equal, it is probable that there is but little difference in men in regard to that quality of courage which is meant by contempt of death. The Chinaman kneels with a jest on his lips beneath the sword of the executioner; the red Indian bears tortore at the stake with a stoicism and calmness that would have evoked the admiring wonder of a Roman in the Coliscum; the Arab rushes on the bayonet of the British soldier as if death were rather to be sought than avoided. In this respect they display a bravery and an indifference to suffering fully Hall equal to that of an Englishman, a Frenchman or a German,

The deposed emperor of the Aztees bore with patience the cruelties inflicted on him by his Spanish captors ; indeed, no Spaniard could have borne himself more heroically. Yet these same Aztecs. perhaps with Guatemozin at their head, were scattered like sheep before the Spanish invaders. Therefore, it has not been a lack of courage that has led to the overthrow of multitudes of semicivilized combatants by comparatively small forces of Europeans. In other words, man, to whatever race he may belong, is naturally and instinctively inclined to and capable of a valiant defense of his person, of his family, and of his property. He is instinctively capable of facing death with fortitude, and is not naturally a coward. Circumstances, however, and surroundings may engraft cowardice upon him; and terror, born of ignorance and coupled with lack of discipline and a sense of inferiority in physique, and in arms and equipments for defense, may cause him to quail before a foe greatly inferior in

Spartan could become a Sybarite, the Tartar of Manchuria, a denizen of Chinese opium dens, physically helpless in the presence of a hardly-trained and temperate enemy, while another and gradual change might convert the Sybarite into a Spartan and the degenerate Mantchu into a son of the desert. Therefore, the differences which have given western nations a superiority over the semi-civilized and savage are largely, if not mainly, artificial. HINDOO VIRGIN WIDOWS. As the custom of early marriage, or rather infant marriage, is widely prevalent in India, there is seen a vast number of virgin widows here. You might frequently see girls of two or three years married to boys of seven or eight, and many of them becoming widows soon after their marriage. So the number of virgin widows under fifteen is very large. In the last census taken in 1881 the number of such widows in India was estimated to be about two-thirds of the whole number of widows. It is the presence of this large number of infant and girl widows that make the custom of perpetual widowhood the more ap-

The life a widow leads is very miserable. She is not allowed to wear ornaments or put on fine clothing. She must not take fish or flesh. She has to cook her own food, which generally consists, in middle-class families, of a small quantity of boiled rice and vegetables and milk. Twice every month she has to fast the whole day, taking no food or drink. A widow in most cases depends for her subsistence on her brother or some other such near relative, at whose house she resides and where she has to perform all the work of a housewife. In many a Hindoo home the widow is both the cook and maid-servant. In certain homes she is subjected to hard treatment, but in many others, be it noted, her sad lot is most sincerely sympathized with, and care is taken not to hurt her feelings.

> 112121 THE USES OF IVX.

Land and Water says the common belief that ivy trained against the walls of a dwelling-house produces damp walls and general unhealthiness, is fallacious. The very opposite is the case. If one will carefully examine an ivy-clad wall after a shower of rain, he will notice that while the overlapping leaves have conducted the water from point to point until it has reached the ground, the wall beneath is perfectly dry and dusty. More than this, the thirsty shoots, which force their way into every crevice of the structure which will afford a firm hold, act like suckers, in drawing out any particles of moisture for their own nourshment. The ivy, in fact, acts like a great-coat, keeping the house from wet and warm. One more virtue it has, in giving to the ugliest structure an evergreen beauty.
