

Patience.

Patience climb up the hillside of life: Patiently meet with its turmoil and strife; Carry its burdens and cares as they're due, Patiently, hopefully, all the way through.

A SOCIAL PRESCRIPTION.

Arthur Brenton was a young man possessed of some money and a good deal of ability. But something else, in turn, possessed him, namely, a passion. It was not a passion that led him into any folly, unless overwork he counted as dissipation.

same things, was pure insanity. Let us be just to Reed. He felt very sorry for the fact; but he decided that his duty at present was to keep the mournful secret to himself.

and become engrossed in some intellectual pursuit, I should expect it to do her a great good. But that is a hard thing to manage.

the hostiles attacked a camp of peaceable Indians, situated quite near Camp Apache. There was no warning given of attack. The poor Indians were totally unprepared, when suddenly the Apaches swarmed in upon them and commenced an indiscriminate slaughter.
