A Philadelphia Lawyer

Prominent in his profession, says: "Don't put my name in print but refer any one you wish to me, and I will gladly tell what the Russian Rheumatism Cure has done for me."

This gentleman was so lame one would have thought him a cripple, and yet 'Three Days' use of our remedy straightened him out all right.

MR. G. W. BAKER, a leading manufacturer of Wilmington, Del., writes Dec. 17th, '85: "From the first day I began to use the Russian Rheumatism Cure, relief followed and my comfort daily increased. The use of my limbs became more and more natural until I felt no discomfort either walking or working. I know of nothing which has so quick and wondrous an effect."

One of Philadelphia's oldest merchants, MR. C. G. BOCKIUS, residing 646 Main Street, Germantown, says: "The Russian Rheumatism Cure has taken all the pain out of my daughter's arm and neck. She had suffered greatly with it for months.

We have testimony of this sort sufficient to satisfy the most skeptical. But if you have the Rheumatism you want relief rather than testimony. You can get it—quick, sure, permanent, by sending for the WAIT.

Canst thou not wait for me, O hurrying years,
Till I go back and gather up the past,
Though 'tis but to shed upon its grave my tears,
That even now are falling thick and fast?

Let me go back and bind the ripened sheaves
That I left wasting in the harvest field.
My night of need has come; these poor, dead leaves
Are all I have my sustenance to yield.

Let me go back and from dimmed eyes the tears
Let me them wipe till they are clear and dry.
Why did I leave them there in other years!
Methinks I thought I ne'er should mourn or cry.

Let me go back—with sad, repentant hands
Gather the unkind words my lips have said,
And bid me walk the years though on scorching sands,
But say to me their sting is lost and dead.

Let all my fair days die, but those I marred
With selfishness and sin—I humbly ask
To have them back, unwounded and unscarred,
To live them better, this to be my task.

Canst thou not wait, but now, O hurrying years,
E'en while I lay at thy swift-going feet
Atonement for the past, of prayers and tears,
That in my cup of rue shall be some sweet!

The shivering vines cling closer to the walls,
Around the house the wind creeps with a cry,
And while the midnight snow weaves cruel palls,
I and my soul are waiting the reply.

—S. B. McManus in The Current.

VARIOUS TERMS OF OPPROBRIUM

Epithets in Use Among Workingmen—"Plug," "Blacksmith," "Scab" "Rat."

Telegraph operators call a poor operator a "plug," after the little metal instrument which divide the switches on the key-board, inasmuch as the plug, or "key," is a comparatively unimportant part of the machinery. Printers designate an unskilled typesetter a "shoemaker" or a "blacksmith." The derivation of the former appellation is from the fact that a compositor who makes errors is obliged to correct them after the type is set up by taking out the misplaced letters and "pegging" the proper ones into their places. Tailors also use the word "shoemaker" to distinguish a poor hand, as an unskilled workman takes his stitches too too far apart, and is therefore better adapted to sew leather, where he can punch the holes with an awl before putting his needle through.

The appellation "blacksmith" is applied to a printer whose fingers are clumsy, and a jeweler also terms an unskilled worker at his trade a "blacksmith" for the same reason. A term of opprobrium which was used by old New York printers to designate an unskilled compositor, was the word "boarder," from the fact that a poor hand was generally a drinking man and spent his time loafing or "boarding" in liquor saloons. All striking trades-workers in common use the generic word "scab" to designate workmen who take the place of strikers. The derivation is obviously from the fact that the scab is a morbid growth, and lives only at the expense of the well-being of the rest of the body. Shakspeare uses the word scab as a term of opprobium, and Webster defines a scab as a "mean, dirty, paltry fellow," which may have suggested the original application of the word to its present use.

The printers and telegraphers, two of the most intelligent class of workmen, are the only tradesmen who have invented names to particularize the scabs of their respective professions. Thus, compositors call a scab a "rat," in contemptuous allusion to the rodents who infest printing offices. Telegraphers have only recently invented a term for scab operators. They call them "contumists," though the application is not of technical derivation, but is probably an attempt to manufacture a word from the Latin contumax, the root of contumacious, to describe a stubborn and obstinate person.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Pop-Corn Luncheons in Detroit.

Pop-corn luncheons are a new fad peculiar to Detroit. The hot pop-corn is served in cut-glass dishes, with graham wafers and cheese cakes. These cheese cakes are made by incorporating flour and butter with a layer of cream cheese folded up and cut into proper shape and baked till of proper color.—Exchange.

The Society Girl of the Season.

The society girl of the season is more natural in her manners than for several years. In New York she is noticed as "strikingly erect, and invariably carrying her head so high that it gives an appearance of unusual hight. Her self-poise and serenity are absolute."

Dealers in precious stones, custom-house officials and detectives are all mysterious beings. They dislike to talk, but the word smuggle often sets their tongues a-wagging.

"I will relate an experience myself and three assistants once had with an expert diamond smuggler some time since," said a gray-haired customs man, "and then you'll see both how easy and difficult it is to smuggle."

The story was told in a graphic manner, as follows: Three large diamond dealers in Chicago employed a young Frenchman, who was considered an expert at smuggling, to procure for them $42,000 worth of the finest first-water gems. In some way the heavy purchase became known to a detective in Paris, who cabled to the officers here to watch for the smuggler. The purchase consisted of 107 fine stones, and the detective in Paris had a "straight tip" from a shoemaker that the Frenchman's high heels contained the gems.

He arrived and was politely conducted to a private examination room. Off came the boots and the Frenchman grew pale as a pearl. The heels were sounded and in a minute later one thickness of leather was taken off. Out rolled a piece of tissue paper and fifty-eight fine white stones. The Frenchman appeared crazy. He fumed, swore and almost wept. In the other heel the remaining gems, forty-nine in number, were found. The Frenchman put on his boots, and seemingly dazed, walked away.

He was a "cute 'un." The "gems" were the finest "Parisian," worth $10 a peck, and the real article was snugly encased in his big box toes. He paid his shoemaker a handsomer price than the sharp detective. Those gems are in Chicago now, and the bogus ones adorn a hundred shirt fronts in the custom house.

Women! Yes, they are the best smugglers of all; any custom house officer will confirm this fact. They have more ingenuity than men and more innocence wherewith to look the examiner calmly in the eye. How many ladies who go regularly abroad and pay their expenses by smuggling is not and never will be known. They are many, nevertheless.

SOME OF THE CUTE DODGES PLAYED.

One of the cutest dodges ever played on the tariff enforcers is related of a young and pretty lady who lived and probably still lives in Boston. She had gone to Berlin on a visit during her trip abroad and while there saw four beautiful diamonds. Her means would just allow her to purchase them and pay her way home. In her dilemma she conceived a plan. Four large cavities were bored into her four largest teeth, the gems covered over and she departed. The duties would have cost her $900, but she smiled on the officer who made the examination and passed innocently from the wharf.

Large quantities of diamonds, pearls and rubies are frequently baked in bread, sold with an understanding to the steward, who sees that they are so dry and hard at the end of the voyage that he must give it to a 'longshoreman who has a large and hungry family. As 'longshoremen don't feed their families on precious stones the bread is broken and its contents placed in little chamois-skin bags and carried to the honest dealer in gems.

When the gems are hidden in trunks false bottoms are never resorted to. The dodge is too old and transparent. A regular line of small auger-cells are made in the sides and bottom. These are filled with the gems and a new paper inside cover pasted neatly over. Woe to the smuggler who happens to have one of those cells cracked open. The eagle eye of the law is always looking.

"Only one professional smuggler in a hundred is ever caught. They make it a study, science and business. They pass right under our noses and in front of our eyes with hidden fortunes. Accident or information from the other side are our only means of hauling 'em in."

So said an officer who considers himself one of the sharpest in the service.

Lady examiners in the employ of the custom house are equally as cute as the smugglers sometime, and are frequently the captors of big government hauls. She knows where in a woman's apparel is the most likely place to find smuggled goods. They are sometimes mistaken, however, as well as the men. Not very long ago a German woman was reported to arrive on a certain steamer with a fortune in jewels on her person. She came and was duly examined. The scrutiny she underwent was so severe that the lady custom house officials apologized over and over again.

The foreigner smiled and said that she did not blame them for doing their duty, and supposed some malicious person had sent the dispatch to annoy her. She entered a cab and the hat she wore was decked with a fortune in gems. They were covered with wax and represented a bunch of grapes. These the official ladies had admired when they examined the hat-lining and cover.

The ways and devices for smuggling are almost as numerous as the stars, and the jewels brought to America without paying tribute to Uncle Sam are frequently as bright.—New York Journal.

A Razor Warranted Not to Cut.

"The latest thing out for street fakirs," said a man who makes his living supplying goods to the merchants of the pavement, "is a safety razor. It is one of the neatest things put on the market for many a year, and the boys expect to do well with it. The razor-blade is circular, and is protected by a little metal guard which is said to make cutting of the face impossible. All a man has to do is to skim the mechanical razor around over his face, just as he would a wash-rag, and in a minute or two he is shaved. You know there are a good many men who would like to shave themselves, but who can't learn to handle a razor. These are the men whom the boys expect to catch. The way they'll talk economy, and figure up that a man spends enough in a year for shaves to clothe him, will be a caution. The safety razor ought to be a good racket.—Chicago Herald.

The Subject of College Rivalries.

President Eliot, at the recent Harvard dinner, made some sensible remarks on the subject of college rivalries. "Whatever of fun there may be in the rivalries between our colleges," he said, "real antagonism between them should be avoided. The total number of men resorting to the colleges of the country has not kept pace with the progress of the population. This is not true of Harvard; but of the great mass of the colleges together it is true, and I think that the antagonism between colleges, working on the public mind, is responsible for this. As to numbers, I wish to say in behalf of Harvard that we distinctly repudiate numbers as a test of success when applied to colleges."—Frank Leslie's Illustrated.

The Origin of an Old Custom.

The notion of one heat driving out another gave rise to the old-fashioned custom of placing a burned part near the fire to drive out the fire; a practice certainly not without benefit, acting on the same principal as the application of turpentine and other stimulants to recent burns. This was one of the many instances of homeopathic doctrine in old times.—Dr. Bucknell.
