WHILE barn basements make warm and comfortable quarters for stock, there is reason for giving milch cows some exercise in the open yard every day, and on sunny winter days a considerable length of time. It will increase the flow and value of the dairy product, and will also help the cow to prepare for bringing forth a healthy calf in the spring. Too little light, air and exercise are bad for the cow at this time.

SHYING HORSES .- This trick or vice s generally the effect of nervous timiidity, resulting from an excitable temperament. It is aggravated by improper handling. To punish a horse for shying introduces a new cause of fear. The horse will be more alarmed and show more tokens of fear at the prosshow more tokens of fear at the prospect of a whipping than at the imaginary object of danger in the road. Hence one bad habit is confirmed by the introduction of another. It is impossible to whip terror out of a horse or pound courage into one. Kinduess and gentle persuasion are the best weapons to correct the perplacious, babit of shy-to correct the pernicious habit of shying. The less fear exhibited by the driver, and the less notice taken of the shying by using harsh means the sooner it will be given up. A careful, experienced horse-man can generally detect an object likely to cause a nervous horse to sby, and by word or touch will encourage him to pass it unnoticed. When this fails, give him time to look at the object of his fear; pat him and coax him up to it, then take him past it two or three times, till he takes no notice of it.

When defective sight is the cause of this bad habit it is incurable, and if the eyesight is failing, the horse for ordinary driving and riding will be perfectly useless. A mare we knew that had gone quietly in harness for two or three years, suddenly took to jumping the white stone crossings of an ordinary macadamized street, as if they were water brooks. In three months she was stone blind.

MILKING IN THE ISLAND OF JER-SEY -Those who have Jersey cows will no doubt be pleased to know how they do the milking in the original home of their pets: "Tall buckets, narrowed near the top, with widened mouths are used. A linen cloth is tied over the top; then a smooth sea-shell is pushed in the depression to receive the milk. The shell prevents the wearing of the cloth by streams of milk. When the milking is done the straining is also completed." It will be observed that no impurities are allowed to get into the milk. In the usual way of milking in other countries, it is ampossible but that impurities get in; and it may readily be seen that some, at least, may dissolve in the milk before straining. The 'Jersey' people, and all other milkers, will do well to copy after their island

THERE is probably no root more poorly adapted to making good milk or butter than potatoes. They should be fed only sparingly and with a good ration of corn meal, or the milk will be thin and the butter of poor quality. We have found that feeding potatoes in borious. The poultry fancier, when he leaves Agents wanted in every City of the Umon. home for business, ought to feel secure, especially in cold weather. not left his fowls in peril of thirst, and this security he can obtain by using a well made drop faucet. For the cold weather it is a good plan to put the water in the reservoir (any tub, old keg, or firkin will answer for this) every morning hot, and keep old carpets or cloths wrapped about the cask.

Moss is one of the best materials in which to pack garden vegetables for winter, being easy to handle and remove, and preserving the moisture and freshness of the roots, and preventing wilting. There are many places where it may be easily procured from damp woods, from rotting logs or the roots of trees, and in other places from swamps. If in large flakes, these are to be torn to pieces, so as to make fine packing. Placed in alternate layers with such roots as beets, parsnips, turnips or carrots, it preserves their freshness, and it may be used for packing cabbage heads

THE farmers of Ohio are loud in their denunciation of Bohemian oats. They say they give a small yield, and are not fit to grind for oatmeal, and all farmers are advised to let them alone.

BESIDES good form and size, a Berkshire well suited for breeding purposes should show vigorous constitution and good feeding capacity. Neither should a good line of ancestry be lost sight of.

WHEN there is a full crop of fruit the insects are not perceived, but the following year, when there is a light crop, the insects injure no more fruit, but it is more apparent, and all fruit will appear to be attacked.

Just as in everything else, the man who loves the business and furnishes good, comfortable quarters, and sees that the yards are kept clean and exercises judgment in his sales, can make poultry profitable.

Coming Home to Die. Pastor's Study, Messiah M. E. Church.
My Dean Sir.—I feel that I ought to make known my experience with Prof. Wm. C. Wilson's "ACTINA" BATTERY, not only in justice to him, but also that the afflicted may learn where to look for a remedy for scrious and obstinate diseases. For five years I have been suffering with great distress in my head, resulting at times in complete incompetency for work; this, together with a throat trouble causing hoarseness, rendered speaking not only laborious and painful to myself, but unpleasant to my congregation. I have used your "ACTINA" since the 25th of November, 1885. My voice is fully restored, and since using your instrument and wearing your garments I have not experienced any distress whatever in my head. Have worked 16 to 18 hours out of the 24 for the last five weeks, and never felt better in my life. My wife is also wearing the Garments and using the "ACTINA," and finds very great relief, having suffered 3 years from general debility.
