HE wanted a position in an Austin bank. The President was satisfied with his credentials, but before engaging him put him through a little civil service cross-examination.

"Suppose, now, a man was to come in here to deposit $20 in one-dollar bills, how would you count them?" "I'd wet my finger and lift up each bill until I got to the last one." "Why would you not lift up the last

"Because there might possibly be one more bill under it, and if the depositor was to see it he would want it back, but if the twentieth bill is not lifted up and there should be another bill in the pile the bank makes it, don't you see?" "You will do," said the bank President. "You have been in the business before, but I didn't suppose you knew that trick."

BUSINESS POULTRY, - In riding about the country, one seldom sees pure-blooded poultry. The fancy fowls are in nearly every instance owned by business men. Why is this? Is it be-cause farmers are lacking in enterprise and intelligence? I think the bottom facts are that a mixed lot of poultry proves most profitable, being most hardy and laying best. When one breeds for the one idea of "looks," the tendency evidently is to lessen the egg production. These are my conclusions after twenty years' experience, in which time I have tested most of the new breedsas they came along. It is entirely legitimatefor any one to keepfancy fowls if they have a taste in that direction, and can afford it, as others keep a fast horse or a "poodle dog," but the real business hen is not often the most noted for beauty. Many new breeds have been introduced; we have plenty of poultry magazines pressing their merits, with a host of energetic champions writing up their alleged superior excellences, and yet both poultry and eggs bring better prices than in years gone by. The profit from keeping poultry depends on the management, feed, care, etc., of our fowls, and as the average man only takes an interest in what costs him dear, fancy fowls, at fancy prices, have proved beneficial.

QUINCES EASILY CARED FOR .- The general neglect into which quince culture has fallen has resulted in great scarcity of the fruit and consequent high prices. A well-managed quince orchard in full bearing is about as profitable an investment as a fruit grower can have, and when it is considered that almost the only obstacle in quince growing consists in the preventable attacks of the borer, it seems strange that more attention is not given to its cultivation. The porer enters the stem near the surface of the ground, working its way upward, and anything that protects the few inches of stem above the soil insures the tree against its ravages. The best and easiest way to accomplish this is to dig down to the branching of the roots and wrap and tie a piece of charred paper, reaching not less than six inches above ground, securely around the stem, and level the soil around it. Of course, a careful examination has to be made that the borer has not already made its home in the stem, in which case it should be destroyed by pushing a flexible wire up into its track before applying the paper.

EVERY farmer should take some pains to interest his children in the fowls on the farm, and there is nothing that so quickens that interest as to give them the right to all the money they can make off the fowls. In return for feed, etc., the obligation can be put on them that they place the money in a savings-bank, or buy clothes with it, or put it to some good use, in such a way as may be mutually agreed upon. Children can not be too early taught the knack of making money, and, what is of still greater purpose, the art of keeping it.

LINING FOR STOVES OR FIRE-PLACES.—To common potter's clay add one sixth its bulk of plaster of Paris, about the same quantity of wood ashes; mix all together with water until a thick cement is made; then plaster it thickly and smoothly in the place where the lining is needed, and let it dry. Fire may be made in a few hours, In a day or two, if there are cracks fill them up with a little cement made in the same way, and you will have a perfectly hard and durable fire-brick lining to your stove or fireplace.

IT is one advantage of turnips that they are a crop not damaged but rather benefited by slight freezing of the ground Of course they should not be handled when frozen, but in a day or two after they will have a finer flavor than before. Some of the harsh, coarse taste is removed after light trost has touched the roots. And it will take a pretty hard frost to spoil turnips, provided they are left in the ground until thawed.

THE American Cultivator says that if a heap of manure be placed on one side of an apple tree the branches on that side will produce fruit while other parts of the tree may be barren, which con-firms the belief that the plant food taken up by certain roots is devoted to maintaining corresponding parts of the tree rather than going into a common stock to be drawn upon alike by all, which may account for dead limbs on

IT is a good plan to have a few eggplants in the kitchen garden. The fruit s much nicer freshly-cut than after standing several hours in the market. The plants do best in moderately rich and very mellow soil. Select a warm, sunny spot, set the plants about thirty inches apart, keep the ground clean, and look out for the Colorado beetle, which is as partial to the egg-plant as to the potato.

WHERE an old fence has been removed, the crop the first season is no sure test of the quality or fertility of the soil, It takes one year of thorough culture to clear out the sods, bushes and rubbish that accumulate in such places. After this is well done, the fence row will usually be as fertile as any other part of the field.

Hog manure should not be used on and intended for cabbage for at least a year before the crop is grown. Its premature use is a mistake commonly made by farmers who draw manure for the garden from their hog pen. Hog manure breeds worms that work at the roots of cabbage plants and render them worthless.

CANADA thistles should be cut when n blossom or before. Never let them seed. One cutting in a season is not likely to kill them, but by perseverance you can usually kill them out. Plants cannot live without leaves to breathe through. Keep them off and the roots
