

FARM NOTES.

SORGHUM FOR STOCK FEED.—In experimenting with the various kinds of food to fatten quickly and with least expense, I find nothing equal to sorghum cane. I cannot say that my experience has extended sufficiently far for me to give you an article on the subject that will be of benefit to your readers, for my feeding experiments have thus far been confined to mules and young cattle, and at a time of the year when grain was abundant. The latter, however, would have made but little difference in an experiment, had I been making a test, for as long as they could get the cane they would not even nibble the richest blue grass. I have tried chopped food, bran, corn meal, oil cake, and everything else that I thought would tempt a mule to eat; and they did eat and fatten on sorghum, but I struck the sugar plum for them, or rather they struck it for themselves, for they jumped into my patch of three acres and helped themselves. I don't think I am over-estimating it in saying that those three acres, cut and fed to the mules, fattened them more than six acres of corn gathered and fed in the ear. I was so favorably impressed with it that I intend trying it next year in a silo. If it only proves half as good in winter as it has in summer, I can recommend it to all who wish to put the "big fat" on cotton mules, or to carry young steers through the winter in good condition; but, with the limited experience I have had with it already, I can say sorghum for stock feed.

THE COW IN HER STALL.—The stall to the cow is what the room of a house is to an individual. She becomes accustomed to it, is familiar with every part of it, and it is to her something to be remembered all the time. It is there she finds her most tempting meals, and it is in her opinion the most attractive place on earth. The stall helps to make the disposition of a cow, for her happiness and comfort depend upon its condition. If the stall is kept clean and clean, with a bright straw bed for rest at night, and the floor dry and free from urine, the cow will always rest well, make more milk, digest her food better, and in every respect enjoy her life and give satisfaction to her owner; but if she is compelled to wade to the door of the stable in a mire of filth, walk along a slippery avenue leading to her stall, and there find herself in complete darkness and surrounded by dirt, droppings and wet, with nothing but the bare floor to rest upon, she will just as surely be influenced by her condition as would any of us under corresponding circumstances; and when she emerges into the open air in the morning, after her unhappy night, she is inclined to feel like kicking or being cross. It is necessary, therefore to pay some attention to the stall.

THE first few years of the life of an apple tree is the most important period for exercising care and diligence in regard to pruning. A well-known pomologist once said that he could grow a model apple orchard and never prune with any other implement than a jack-knife. He would begin with the tree as soon as it was taken from the nursery, and would at once begin to form the future top. Then is the time to avoid crotches, which will be almost sure to split in after years, and to be on the top at the right height and in the proper shape. One is apt to begin at the top too low; it looks higher on a small tree than on a large one. It may not be desirable for the general grower to undertake to do all his pruning by means of a knife, but he can always use it to good advantage. Excessive pruning of large trees should always be avoided.

THE unreliability of the cream-glass as a test for milk is shown by the experience of Horace McBride, an Orange County dairyman. The milk of one of his cows showed only 10 per cent. of cream upon repeated tests in the tubes. Another cow's milk indicated 34 per cent. of cream. Upon analysis the former milk showed 3.04 per cent. of fat, while the latter contained only 3.95 per cent. of fat. Mr. McBride says in the Orange County Farmer: "Had the cream test been reliable there should have been more than three times the amount of fat in the latter than in the former. Therefore I am convinced that the only proper test of milk is by analysis; the lactometer and cream-test are so uncertain that no reliance can be placed upon them."

THOSE farmers are most successful in the long run who grow a sufficient variety of crops to have something to sell at all seasons. The dependence on specialties sooner or later proves a broken reed, which pierces the hand that rests upon it. Besides, few farmers have enough working capital, and having some odds and ends to sell at different seasons saves the needs of borrowing or running into debt. The little additions to incomes from these sources help more than their amount, for if the debt-making habit is not formed it is with any family the saving of a good many dollars per year.

A GRAPE-GROWER, who greatly dislikes earth-worms, tells me that last summer he killed a large striped snake, swollen full, as he supposed, with hapless toad or frog swallowed. On examination, the swollen mass proved to be earth worms, and my friend repented the killing. For my own part, I cannot as yet believe that earth worms are particularly injurious. As plenty as they are in our richest clay loams, I am forced to think that, if injurious, we should grow nothing where we often get our best crops.

Professor Richard Proctor maintains that most of the comet streams which with the earth comes in contact are derived from the earth itself; that is, thrown off by volcanic action at a time when the internal forces of our planet were sufficiently active to give them the initial velocity requisite to carry them beyond the earth's attraction, some twelve miles a second. Comets, which he regards as the parents of the meteor streams, he thinks may have originated outside our solar system. Most of the comets whose orbits belong to our system he thinks originated in the larger planets. The sun is now perhaps giving birth frequently to comets which probably pass beyond the limits of its attraction.

Ivan Levinstein has exhibited to the London Society of Chemical Industry a new sweetening agent he calls "saccharine." It is a fine white powder to the naked eye, but the crystals from an aqueous solution were short, thick prisms. It is 230 times sweeter than the best cane sugar, nullifying even the bitterness of quinine. Mr. Levinstein said it was extracted from gas tar. The laboratory price was about $12.10 a pound, and bids fair to be very useful in materia medica.

A GOOD feed for young pigs that are nearly ready for weaning is equal parts of metal, ground oats and shorts, one quart of the mixture in a pair of skim milk, allowing them all they can drink of it, three or four times daily.

ALL wools are divided, writes Stephen Bowers, for manufacturing purposes, on two bases—first, the basis of length; second, that of diameter of the fibre or fineness. Wools are long and short; they are superfine, fine, medium, coarse or carpet wools (as carpet wools are generally reckoned a grade below "coarse").

"Ah," he exclaimed, as he pressed her tenderly to him at parting, "shall I hold you in these arms again to-morrow, and paint our future with the bright pigments of the imagination?" "No," she said, calmly, "not to-morrow; to-morrow's washing-day!"

When you visit or save New York City, save baggage expressage and $2 cartage fare, and stop at the Grand Union Hotel, opposite Grand Central Depot. 600 elegant rooms, fitted up at a cost of one million dollars, $1 and upwards per day. European Plan. Elevator, Restaurant supplied with the best. Horse cars, stages and elevated railroad to all depots. Families can live better for less money at the Grand Union Hotel than at any other first-class hotel in the city.

CLARA (shyly).—"Of all the months of the year, George, dear, which do you think is the happiest one for lovers?" George (of a thrifty nature).—"May is the happiest, because it is the cheapest."

CLARA—"Cheapest? How?" George—"It is too late in the season for oysters, and too early for ice cream."

W. H. Worthington, editor of "Patrons of Husbandry," published at Columbus, Mass., writes Feb. 25, 1882: "Your great remedy, Allen's Lung Balm, I have used in my family for fifteen years for coughs and colds, and know it to be the best." 25c., 50c., and $1.00 a bottle.

Luxury is an enticing pleasure, a bastard mirth, which hath honey in her mouth, gall in her heart, and a sting in her tail. You can learn how to get rich by sending your address to Hallett & Co., Portland, Maine; they will send you full information about work that you can do and live at home wherever you are located. Work adapted to all ages and both sexes. $5 to $25 a day and upwards, easily earned. Some have earned over $50 in a day. All succeed grandly. All is new. You are started free. Capital not required. Delay not. All of the above will be proved to you, and you will find yourself on the road to a handsome fortune, with a large and absolutely sure income from the very start.

Patience, the second bravery of man, is perhaps greater than the first.

Sixtieth Year. THE Youth's Companion celebrates this year its sixtieth anniversary. It might well be named the "Universal Companion," since its readers are found in 400,000 families. It is so wisely edited that its pages are as interesting to adults as to the young people. Besides the best Short and Serial Stories it contains a great variety of popular and useful information on Natural History, Science, Home Arts, Games and Sports, and is fully illustrated. It costs but $1.75 a year, and a subscription sent now is credited to January, 1882.

Every activity proposes to itself a passivity, every labor, enjoyment.

Two Gold Medals in 1886.

Messrs. Mason & Hamlin have had again the excellent honor to be awarded the highest golden medals over all the exhibiting Americans and Europeans at both the most important exhibitions of the year 1886, at Edinburgh and Liverpool. Since the first grand exhibition of Paris, in the year 1867, the Mason & Hamlin organs have received invariably the highest prizes at all the grand world's exhibitions.

Catarrah Cured

Catarrah is a very prevalent disease, with distressing and offensive symptoms. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives ready relief and speedy cure, from the fact it acts through the blood, and thus reaches every part of the system.

"I suffered with catarrah fifteen years. Took Hood's Sarsaparilla and I am not troubled any with catarrah, and my general health is much better." L. W. LILLIS, Postal Clerk Chicago & St. Louis Railroad.

"I suffered with catarrah 6 or 8 years; tried many wonderful cures, inhalers, etc., spending nearly one hundred dollars without benefit. I tried Hood's Sarsaparilla, and was greatly improved." M. A. ABBEY, Worcester, Mass.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is characterized by three peculiarities: 1st, the combination of remedial agents; 2d, the proportion; 3d, the process of securing the active medicinal qualities. The result is a medicine of unusual strength, effecting cures hitherto unknown. Send for book containing additional evidence.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla tones up my system, purifies my blood, sharpens my appetite, and seems to make me over." J. P. THOMPSON, Register of Deeds, Lowell, Mass.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla beats all others, and is worth its weight in gold." I. BARRINGTON, 130 Bank Street, New York City.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Made only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Lowell, Mass. 100 Doses One Dollar.

For Good Purposes. Mrs. M. A. Dauphin of Philadelphia, is well known to the ladies of that city from the great good she has done by means of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She writes Mrs. Pinkham of a recent interesting case. "A young married lady came to me suffering with a severe case of Protrusion and Ulceration. She commenced taking the Compound and in two months was fully restored. In proof of this she soon found herself in an interesting condition. Influenced by foolish friends she attempted to evade the responsibilities of maturity. After ten or twelve days she came to me again and she was indeed in a most alarming state and suffered terribly. I gave her a tablespoonful of the compound every hour for eight hours until she fell asleep, she awoke much relieved and evidently better. She continued taking the Compound, and in due season she became the mother of a fine healthy boy. But for the timely use of the medicine she believes her life would have been lost."

Your Druggist has the Compound. $1 per bottle.

"Ah, good morning, ma'am. Beautiful morning. Nothing like the early fresh air for mending the ladies look rosy. Make 'em look ten years younger, especially young ladies."

"How much are peaches?" inquired the lady. "Well, ma'am eating peaches are $1.25 a basket. You want eating peaches?"

"No, preserving peaches." "Well, they are $1.15. I've only got a few more baskets left. As it's only got I'll let them go for $1 apiece. How many, please, and where shall I send them?"

"I only wish one." "One basket? Why, you couldn't get more than a couple of jars out of that. If you should get married before peaches come round again and go to housekeeping you will need more than that."

"I—I am married?" "Married! Who'd a thought it, Well, I'll send one basket. What's the number?"

"Perhaps one basket will not be enough, you had better send me four and one of eating," was her reply, as she handed out a $5 bill and 25 cents in change.

"Thanks, ma'am," said the dealer, and she was gone.

OLD Mr. Snooks is an inveterate wag. He lives at a large boarding house on West Fourteenth street. In the same house live a couple of young dry-goods clerks. They are both of the genus dude, and affect an air of extreme and feminine languor which Mr. Snooks declares makes him sick at his stomach.

The other morning, just after Mr. Snooks had taken his seat at the breakfast table, the two young exquisites lolled into the room and sank into their chairs.

"Geawge," drawled one of them to the waiter, "wait on us immediately." "But," said the waiter, "Mr. Snooks was in ahead of you, sir; I'm waiting on him."

"Weah in a hulwah, Geawge, and must be waited on!" In despair George turned to Mr. Snooks. "What shall I do sir?"

"George!" said Snooks, severely and audibly, "always wait on the ladies first!"

The dudes now express the opinion that Mr. Snooks, is a coarse, brutal man; "sells potatoes on Chambers street, y'know."

"Who was that rang the bell, Jane?" asked the lady of the house. "The grocer, mum."

"With a bill, I presume?" "Yessum."

"You told him to come next week?" "Yessum."

"What did he say?" "He said, mum, he had been here a dozen times already and he wouldn't come again, and to tell you so."

"How considerate. I didn't think it of groceryman."

"WHAT is the difference between an accident and a surprise?" asked Mrs. Spelter at breakfast. "All accidents are surprises, but not all surprises are accidents," replied S.

"If I were to tip over the lamp it would be an accident. If you were to say nothing about it it would be a surprise."

"I see," said Mrs. S., dangerously. "And if you were to come home from the club sober would that be both an accident and a surprise?"

"No, my dear; that would not be an accident. It would only be an incident."

MAGISTRATE—"You say you are a tourist?" Prisoner—"Yes, sir. I love nature in all her radiant beauty—"

Magistrate (hastily)—"Never mind that! How much money have you about your clothes?" Prisoner—"Seventy-five cents!"

Magistrate (severely)—"Then I shall commit you as a tramp. We draw the line between tourists and tramps at $1."

"MA, what do you think? There's a rumor that Mr. Blicks is a married man! Ain't that too bad?" "Tush! Don't you believe it. If he ain't a bachelor there never will be one."

"But how do you know he is?" "Why, hehah, child; anybody could tell that by the agonizing look that comes over him when he sees a baby."

A PRETTY young mamma, with a little girl by her side nearly as pretty as herself, was being entertained by a male stranger, who had struck up an acquaintance through the usual and always convenient mediumship of the little girl. The stranger did all the talking. He was one of those men who think they know everything, but only rarely get a good chance to tell it. The lady only answered in monosyllables. The little girl listened patiently and demurely for some time, and then began to fidget about in her seat. Finally, as the stranger stopped for breath, she said: "Mamma, you've found one, ain't you?"

"What, my dear?" "Why, don't you remember what you told papa when he said you'd be long-some on the train? You said you'd find some more to talk you to sleep."

Mamma looked out of the window, and the stranger suddenly thought he had better change into the next car.

"I HEAR that your wife's left you, Mr. Bluff."

"Ya-as, 'Riah's gone."

"But don't it make you feel kind of anxious?" "No, 'Riah was a woman of strong determination. I ain't got no anxieties. She won't come back."

"JOHN," said a bright girl to her lover the other day, "I am afraid you are forgetting me." "Yes, Jennie, I was the brave answer, 'I have been for getting you these three years, in fact, ever since I knew you."
