CRUDE COTTONSEED FOR CATTLE. For the information of the dairyman and cattle raisers North and West I give the result of my long experience in the use of raw cottenseed as a feed. Last year two cows of equal worth, both giving about one gallon of milk twice a day, morning and night, ran on the same pasture. One of them was fat with one gallon only of cottonseed morning and night, and immediately the flow of milk increased. In one week the cow fed on cottonseed was giving two gallons at each milking; the other one held her own, one gallon, without cottonseed. At the end begins to lose flesh, and the fattening Rochester, N. H. of the first week I stopped feeding the first cow any cottonseed, but left her to run on the same pasture and began teeding the second cow. In exactly one week the yield of milk was reversed-cow No 1 had dropped back to one gallon each milking, and cow No. 2 advanced to two gallons. I then began to feed both alike, adding one quart of corn meal to each feed, and the result in each was alike in the space of one week. Oxen and beef cattle also thrive on raw cottonseed, one gallon twice each day being sufficient, mixed with other food, to bring them up to the highest standard of excellence. Why level-headed dairymen and cattle raisers everywhere have not discovered the merits of this great food at $5 per ton when they use meal at $25 per ton which is distasteful to cows is astonishing.

ON SIX acres we raised enough ensilage corn to feed forty cows once a day for seven months, three pounds of grain being given to each cow. Our ensilage is just what we expected; it takes the place of the root crop, saves the feeding of hay once a day, and with less grain we get better results in milk, butter and flesh. Frost-bitten corn comes out of the silo fresh and green. I think it very fortunate that we had our silos built and giving first-rate satisfaction before the squelcher on ensilage made his report, for very likely there will not be any more silos built after this.

IF YOU contemplate cultivating the soil in your orchard, and have not already prepared for it, have some short whippletrees made with books on the back near the ends so that the traces will pass over the ends of the whippletrees to prevent barking the trees. The American Cultivator remarks that as trees are generally scraped more harm than good results from operation. Great care should always be taken not to disturb or injure the lower and living part of the bark. A common mason's trowel or a never be president. short-handled hoe makes a good scraper.

EVERY weed that secures growth on a field deprives the soil of so much fertility and robs the crops to that runs away but is never gone. degree. The labor of eradication greater the stronger the weed, and it is a well-known fact that the majority of weeds are not only gross feeders but tenacious in habit, doing greater injury in occupying and seeding the ground than by depriving it of its fertilizing elements.

A Famous Detective.

James Jackson, the famous State detective, resides in Sing Sing, and is generally in attendance at the prison. His duties are to examine carefully the face of every convict as he enters, and to scrutinize every visitor in order to prevent any discharged convict from seeing his pals. Occasionally he has to make long journeys in pursuit of runaway prisoners or to identify criminals convicted in other States. He never makes, a mistake, if once he looks a man in the eye he will know him under any disguise, as he tells his man by the look of his eyes. Once an escaped convict had his nose pared down one-third, but Jackson detected him at once, notwithstanding this remarkable change of feature. On his long journeys he eats very moderately and always takes one Brandreth pill at night. When much fatigued by the jolting of the cars on his tiresome trips he uses two Allcock's Porous Plasters on the small of his back, which give him renewed vigor and quickly relieve him of all weariness. These are the only two remedies he uses, and he attributes his vigor and remarkable health to Allcock's porous Plasters and Brandreth's Pills. - Sing Sing, N. Y., Daily Register.

THE London Agricultural Gazette, speaking of the Brittany cattle, says: These small, silky-skinned, docile and zentle animals, give as rich a milk as one can well desire. Brittany butter, delicate and superior, of which thousands of tons are annually imported into this country, is produced from the u.i.k of these cows. They are also gaturally hardy, thriving on coarse and, and another important characteristic is their freedom from disease incident to cattle generally.

GRAPES FOR HOGS .- A prominent Californian, who has fifty acres in the raisin grape, says whenever grapes become unprofitable for raisins he can make money by feeding them to hogs. He contends that grapes will fatten hogs faster than any other known food -from two to three pounds per day. We think a diet composed solely or even largely of grapes would produce

A Great English Remedy. A famous physician, many years ago, with the aid of an English chemist, formulated a preparation which effected remarkable cures of liver diseases, bile, indigestion, etc., and from a small bsginning there arose a large demand and sale for it, which has ever increased until, after generations have passed, its popularity has become-world-wide. The name of this celebrated remedy is Cockle's Anti-Bilious Pills.

this celebrated remedy is Cockle's Anti-Bilious Pills.

To such traveled Americans as have become acquainted with the great merits of these Pills (so unlike any others), and who have ever since resorted to their use in cases of need, commendation is unnecessary. But to those who have not used them and have no knowledge of their wonderful virtues, we now invite attention.

The use of these Pills in the United States is already large. Their virtues have never varied, and will stand the test of any climate. They are advertised in our columns—not in a flagrant manner, but modestly; for the great praise bestowed upon them by high authorities renders it unnecessary, even distasteful, to extol their merits beyond plain, unvariabled statements.

UVILLA, W. Va., Nov. 17, 1886. S Recently I bought a young horse. . He was taken very ill with Pneumonia. I tried to think of something to relieve him. Concluded what was good for man would be good for the horse. So I got a bottle of Piso's Cure and gave him half of it through the nostrils. This helped him, and I continued giving same doses night and morning until I had used two bottles. The horse has become perfectly sound. I can recommend Piso's Cure for the horse as well as for N. S. J. STRIDER.

"IT's just a little poem, my dear," she said, timidly, to her husband, on his return from his editorial labors; "a stray thought that came to me to-day, and I've tred to put it in verse. It's very crude, of course, and I'm quite ashamed to show it to you; but I thought, perhaps-" and the lady anxiously awaited the verdict.

"Not so bad," he said, handing it back to her. "How near's dinner ready?"

He found out that dinner wasn't anywhere near ready.

"WELL, how do you like the rooms?" asked Mrs. Dotonart, who was showing the Smithingtons over her new house. "Oh, they are perfectly lovely!" exclaimed Mrs. Smithington; "and they are furnished so sweetly! What exquisite plaques those are, aren't they, Smithington?"

"What, them dishes on the wall?" asked old Bill Smithington. "Yes, they is perty enough, but why didn't they have some closets in the house to put the crockery in?"

Mrs. Dotonart goes into very mild hysterics, and Mrs. Smithington gives hubby William such, oh such! a look.

LOVE'S LABOR LOST .- He had taken her to hear Patti at $7 a seat, and afterward to Delmonico's, where the two together ate up $9.75 worth. As he reached for his hat later that same night, she said:

"I have been troubled with rheumatism for several years. This spring I had a very severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism and was attack of inflammatory rheumatism and was compelled to leave my train. I suffered intense pain. My arm and hand were badly swollen and inflamed. I took various kinds of medicine, but obtained no relief. I was urged to try Dr. Pardee's Remedy, but it was with great reluctance that I did so, as I had no faith whatever in it. But I am fully convinced from personal experience that it is a positive cure for this dreaded disease, and I can recommend it as a remedy worthy the confidence of all. Am feeling better than I confidence of all. Am feeling better than I have for ten years, and attribute it all to Dr. Pardee's Rheumatic Remedy."
