FARM NOTES.

GREEN MANURING.-Green manuring is an operation familiar to every American farmer, but, as they do' not all grow clover, vetches or Italian rye grass, they will not all appreciate the value of manuring with these crops, In France, England and northern States the practice is well known, and its success depends on effectually covering the vegetable matter turned under the soil in the operation of ploughing. When it is intended to use the crop directly for fertilizing the ploughing should be done just as the flower is about to open, and when the days are sunny and the soil is dry, in order to facilitate decomposition. Fully three-fourths of the organic matter thus buried has been derived from the atmosphere, and the land so treated obtains its fertility from the even distribution of the nitrogenous crops, which are decomposed at a very ow but certain rate. Practical men of large experience consider the value of a green crop plowed in as equal to the droppings of cattle which have been fed on three times the quantity. The great fact behind this all important action is the decomposition of the nitrogenous compounds which yield ammonia and nitric acid, from which nitrates are formed.

FILLING a horse's rack with hay, as some do and permitting a constant supply to remain before the animal is one of the most probable means of producing disease, and the most positive in rendering animals unfit for fast work. Large supplies of hay have the effect of making the stomach large and weak, the belly in course of time becoming pendulous. Not only does the stomach increase in capacity, but the large intestines also become enlarged.

BLACKING the outside of horses' hoofs to make them shine and show well is an injurious practice, for if done, as is usual, with a mixture of grease and lamp-black, as soon as the horse is brought out on the road, dust begins to adhere to the hoofs, which are naturally porous, and thus stops the circulation of air in them, causing disease. The best treatment of the hoofs is to keep it clean and leave it to show right." its own natural color.

is often lost, owing to the poverty or impurity of the blood, and the weakening effect of the changing season. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a wonderfu medicine for creating an appetite, toning the digestion, and giving strength to the whole system. Now is the time to take it.

"I must say Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine I ever used. Last spring I had no appetite, and the least work I did fatigued me ever so much. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and soon I felt as if I could do as much in a day as I had formerly done in a week. My appetite is voracious." MRS. M. V. EAYARD, Atlantic City, N. J. MINERAL manures are believed to have four modes of action when applied to the soil, concisely stated by Waring as follows: They furnish food for the mineral or inorganic parts of plants; they prepare matters always in the soll for assimilation by roots; they improve the mechanical condition of the soil, and they absorb ammonia.
