GONE TO VISIT SATAN.

The Jocular Manner In Which a Gambler Wrote of His Intended Sulcide.

VIRGINIA CITY, Nev., Aug. 13.-James A. Brown, a native of New York city and a noted gambler, committed suicide here by taking morphine. In his line there were was the proprietor of several of the largest games in the state. He was proud, daring to the point of recklessness, and at one time was influential in political circles. In character and temperament he might easily have been the original of John Oakhurst. Brown left a long letter in which he says:

Life has now become a burden. I am trying an experiment. If it succeeds, I shall be happy. I have started for those realms of shade where each must take his chamber in the silent halls of death. Ad-dress all correspondence in care of his satanic majesty. He is a personal friend, and I think the oldest resident of the camp I expect to visit, and therefore can make it pleasant for me,

In giving directions for his funeral he says:

Just put me in a box, and as you are about to plant me drop in a small flask of whiskey straight. No ice, unless it is purified.

The French condfishing fleet, he says, has done fairly well. Danish vessels were reported lost on that coast, but the destitution prevailed among the natives, many of whom were leaving the country. The Story sailed from Iceland July 31, meeting unmerous icebergs on the Labrador and Newfoundland coasts. Inquiries were made about mackerel, but none had

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 13 .- It was currently reported yesterday that John Perry president of the merchants' bridge company had stated that should the tolls of the St. Louis bridge be reduced the Merchants bridge would not be built, because the object of the organization of the Merchants' bridge company would have been accomplished. This was regarded by those who heard it as a sign of weakening on the part of the Merchants' bridge company, for one of the principal objects of the organization of the Merchants' bridge company was the building of a bridge so cheap that crews were saved. The French fishing the fixed charges on it would be reduced to vessel Sophie, of Morel, was lost at a minimum and the old bridge would not vessel Sophie, of Morel, was lost at a minimum and the old bridge would not Reikiavik with a crew of 22 men.
