Democratic State Ticket.

FOR SUPREME JUDGE: J. ROSS THOMPSON. FOR STATE TREASURER: B. J. McGRANN.

TARIFF REFORM AND A STRONG TICKET.

The Democratic state convention a Allentown on Wednesday, nominated Hon, J. Ross Thompson, of Erie, for supreme judge, and B. J. McGrann, esq., of Lancaster, for state treasurer. Mr. Thompson is one of the brightest and best law. yers at the bar of the northwestern portion of the state. He is a son of ex-Chief Justice James Thompson who was for many years one of the chief ornaments of the state supreme court. Mr. McGrann is a well-known business man and financier who is very favorably known through out the state. His election will give the people an able, efficient and thoroughly upright administration of the treasury

The platform adopted by the convention is generally acceptable, and especial* ly so in its unequivocal and emphatic endorsement of the domocratic national administration. It contains the first demand for a reduction of duties on imports that has been inserted in the platform of any state convention held in Pennsylvania since the war of the rebel-

On the whole the convention did its work well, and the party need only to go to work in good earnest to secure a vic tory in November. The Democratic line of battle is formed. Now for a dash for the enemy's breastworks.

Reports of cold weather come from the north west.

Daniel Rhoads, for Judge, will seek a biding place behind some cool Grove.

FORAKER AND WILSON.

The other day the citizens of Wheeling irrespective of politics, including ex-Union and ex-Confederate veterans, had made most elaborate arrangements, spending their money prodigally, to make the reunion a success. It was a success in every sense of the word, until the wild ranter Foraker flung to a mixed crowd, representing all parties, a choice collection of partisan insults, characterizing President Cleveland as a New York copperhead and Secretary Endicott a Massachusetts mugwump. This is in line with Foraker's recent efforts denouncing Cleveland as a cringing and sneaking coward. The wild ass of Ohio never puts a bridle on his tongue when he thinks an insult or blackguard epithet will win him the approving yells of a crow as rabid as he is. His speech in the afternoon preceding the night discussion was insulting to Democrats and maliciously and falsely unjust to the president. Mr. the good feeling so appropriate to the occasion. In fact the dignity and manliness with which our Pennsylvania governor oore himself was in marked and venerable contrast to the demagogism and parsan bitterness with which Foraker opwas disgraceful to all concerned, considering the occasion that brought the people together. Of course the crowds had become excited in the meantime, and the leaders, whose duty it was to have calmed them by talking sense, did their best to aggravate them by talking non-
