He would be glad to have all drop in to take a look at his goods, provided the weather is fair. If, however, it should happen to be raining he will leave on his front step one of the best DOOR MATS, to wipe the mud off your shoe, and his nice and novel umbrella stands in which to place that ever-lovable umbrella.

COMMON SENSE
Tells anyone that it is an utter impossibility for a merchant to sell goods continually

—A—T—C—O—S—T—
A legitimate business can never be conducted on such a basis, as taxes, rent, insurance, etc., must be paid and a living earned. We do not conduct our business upon such a principle, and we only ask a reasonable advance on all our goods. We believe in FAIR AND SQUARE dealing and know that our goods and prices prove what we say. Give us a call and be convinced.

G. A. R. BOYS.
Their Twenty-First Annual Encampment To Be Held This Year in St. Louis. It Will Probably Be the Largest Gathering in the History of the Organization.
The Grand Army of the Republic holds its twenty-first National encampment at St. Louis September 28, 29 and 30, 1887. It is now over a quarter of a century since the shot was fired on Fort Sumter, and which led to the civil war. The memories of that terrible struggle have cemented the members of the Grand Army of the Republic as comrades in the bonds of fraternity. Every year for twenty years these old veterans have met in annual encampment and recounted the anecdotes, incidents and events of the war.

General Fairchild. Funds to meet the comfort and entertainment of the comrades. The work of this committee has been very satisfactory, and one hundred thousand dollars has been subscribed. This amount was obtained from the citizens of St. Louis, and is considered an evidence of their appreciation of the compliment paid the city in selecting it for the twenty-first National encampment. On Tuesday, September 27, the day before going into encampment, the great parade takes place. General Fairchild has determined that G. A. R. men and veterans of the late war with sons of veterans only, shall participate in it. The order was issued because of the large attendance expected, but even with this restriction it is known that sixty-five thousand men will be in line.

Wednesday morning, September 28, the business session of the encampment will be held. At these meetings, the laws and rules governing the Grand Army Posts are created, and old ones modified, if necessary. While some of the G. A. R. Posts will take up accommodations at the hotels, camps will be set up in the different parks of the city. Tents are to be pitched and ready for occupation upon the arrival of Posts. Nothing will be expected of comrades other than furnishing their own blankets. Ex-Governor Thomas C. Fletcher has charge of the arrangements for the reception and entertainment of the few surviving "War Governors."

James A. Sexton, camp commander department of Illinois, will establish his headquarters at Lyon Park. About thirteen thousand comrades will represent the State of Illinois at the encampment, eight thousand of whom will be accommodated in tents, the remainder having applied for rooms at the hotels. Kansas has applied for tent accommodations for seven thousand. Ransom Post, at St. Louis, has raised $5,000 to entertain comrades that may visit that post.

The illumination on the evenings of the encampment will be on a grand scale. The principal streets will have gas-pipes running along their entire length with thousands of gas-jets and flags, transparencies, Chinese lanterns, and other decorations will be used in abundance. Thursday evening during the grand illumination, the St. Louis Trades Display Association will parade. This will be similar in character and design to the pageant of King Rex at New Orleans—a sort of carnival and source whereby the industries of the city are made manifest. Arrangements have been made for daily excursions to Jefferson Barracks and National Cemetery, down the Mississippi river, also to Pilot Knob and Iron Mountain; to Springfield, Ill., in order to visit the tomb of Lincoln; to the battle ground of Wilson Creek, and to Nashville, Tenn., so as to visit the battle grounds and National cemeteries.

On Friday evening the officers, delegates and representatives to the encampment will be banqueted by the citizens, and there will be a camp-fire at Schneider's garden, with illuminated grounds and display of fireworks. During the encampment there will be a sham battle to be fought by old veteran soldiers, showing a mimic batt'le fought by men who will be but rehearsing actual events in which they have all participated in all their stern and bloody realities, showing the attack, the defense, the repulse, the charge, the victory.

The excursion to Pilot Knob, or Ironton, Mo., will be on the days commencing on the anniversary of the battle at Pilot Knob on September 26, and 27, 1864, in which the regiments participating were the Forty-seventh and Fiftieth Missouri, the Fourteenth Iowa, Second and Third Missouri Cavalry, Battery H, and Second Missouri Light Artillery. Union loss, 28 killed, 56 wounded, 100 missing. Confederate, 1,500 killed and wounded. On the 27th of September, GRAND ARMY BADGE, 1864, at Centralia, Mo., three companies of the Thirty-ninth Missouri were massacred by Price. Union loss 122 killed, 3 wounded.

A printed statement compiled from the records of the Government will be circulated.

showing that January 1, 1881, the army of the United States for active service consisted of 14,963 men. May 1, 1865, there were 797,807 men on active duty, while 332,709 more were absent. During the struggle there were 44,000 killed in battle, 186,000 died from disease, 28,000 died in rebel prisons, 49,000 died from wounds, 280,000 were wounded, and 180,000 are recorded captured and missing.

The city of St. Louis, where the encampment is to be held, was a century and a quarter ago a trading post established by Pierre Laclede. In 1763 Laclede arrived from New Orleans and located the post. The town was named in honor of Louis XV., monarch of France. Spain claimed it, took possession August 17, 1763, relinquished it to France in 1803, and the same year ceded it to the United States. At that time there were in the town 180 houses, two hotels, two mills and a bakery. The first newspaper, the Missouri Gazette, now the Republican, appeared in 1808. In 1809 St. Louis was incorporated as a town, and as a city in 1822. The city now comprises an area of 90,000 acres and extends along the Mississippi river for over twenty miles, with a breadth of seven miles. It has a population of about half a million.

BURGLAR'S TOOLS.
Implements Used for Cracking Safes—Expert Crooks Who Make Their Own Tools.
"Burglar's tools!" said a veteran police officer to a Chicago Herald reporter, "why, yes; there's lots of them around. A good many are in the police stations, but a large number are left in the hands of experienced men to keep us busy, and the owners of well-filled safes nervous."
Then leading the way to a closet the officer took down a heavy bundle wrapped in rubber cloth. Opening this he displayed an assortment of tools, of sufficient variety of sizes and shapes to stock the shop of any locksmith.

purpose of forcing safe doors and was the latest product of the profession that defies locks and locksmiths. It is the latest outgrowth of the old breast bit and brace, and is capable of applying enormous pressure. In commencing operations on a safe with this instrument three small holes are first bored in the outer sheeting of the safe door, and the brace for such it really is, fastened firmly to the door by means of the three screws, T, T, T, in the triangular piece of wrought iron, I. When this is done the hardest labor of the thieves is over, for after placing the drill, D, known in the thieves' slang as a "tap," in the brace, the simple turning of the crank F, and the use of the wheel E will speedily cut through any plate of iron or steel however hardened. The machine is so arranged that the crank F merely revolves the drill, while the wheel E, which closely resembles that used aboard ships, regulates the pressure of the drill against the metal to be cut. After having reached the lock a plain steel rod is inserted in the brace C, and the rod being turned the lock is broken and the bolts left free to be opened by turning the safe knob. The triangular piece of iron, I, is made of wrought iron, while the remainder of the instrument is made of the best steel. The steel braces, G and H, are over an inch in diameter, and fastened firmly to the triangle and to the perpendicular piece, A. The entire instrument is the work of an expert machinist, and shows that the greatest care has been taken in its construction.

Among the braces and drill, marked K in the diagram, was found a little hand vice, evidently made for the express use of the thieves, as it bore no manufacturer's stamp or date of patent. The vice, though only six inches in length and operated by a thumb-screw, was a very powerful one, and in addition to its use as a vice added that of a wrench. The gang of thieves from which this "kit" was captured had secured entrance to the office of Norton Mills through an adjoining building, and were hard at work upon the safe when discovered by the night watchman. Instead of summoning the police the watchman stood outside the latest specimen of "burglars' tools" at the highest pitch of his lungs, and the thieves took the alarm and made their escape.

The query of "Who makes these tools?" was propounded to a dozen detectives and police officers, but brought only the one response. "The burglars themselves."
"A good cracksmen," said a detective, "has, necessarily, to be a good machanic. He naturally relies upon himself for the manufacture of his instruments, and as he grows more expert in his work he grows more inventive. The brace over at Des-plaines street is but an improvement on the old breast brace. An ingenious cracksmen evidently discovered that the pressure of his body was not sufficient to enable the drill to work well, and thought of the plan to compel the safe itself to hold the brace and furnish the pressure. "Oh! Those fellows are ingenious enough," added the detective, as he lit a cigar. "The only trouble is that they spend so much time in their inventions that they keep us hustling night and day to keep track of them."

Wanted Insurance.
"Is this a fire-insurance company?" he inquired, as he hesitatingly entered the office of one of the best-known companies in the country.
"Yes, sir. Any thing we can do for you?"
"Well, yes. I'm a traveling man, and I've just got a situation. I've been unfortunate in every other job I've had. Always struck dull trade, and got Brod. Now, if you will insure me against fire in this case I'll be perfectly willing to pay whatever is reasonable for a policy."
"But the company wasn't filling that kind of a long felt want.—Merchant Traveler."
WHEN a man not only lives, but knows that he lives, then first the possibility of a real life commences. By real life I mean life which has a share in its own existence.—Maddonald.
"Why do not women get bald?" asks an exchange. It seems to us that any one ought to be able to answer that. It's because they don't have wives.—Fosker's Statesman.
