Young Men of To Day May do Likewise if They Follow Advice Given.

General B. F. Butler being asked for come suggestions on gaining success, stated that when he was a young lawyer, practicing in Lowell, Mass., a bank president advised him to take his little deposit and buy real estate, from which he could be deriving some revenue. The general said that he had but little money and was uncertain as to his future.

"Never mind," said the bank president, "go to the next public auction of real estate, bid off a lot with a building of some kind on it. pay down what bushels. money you have and give your promissory notes for the balance. You will come out all right."

General Butler says this advice was When a man has obligated himself, by his notes, to pay money at a certain time, it inclines him to economy. He followed the advice, and in time became the owner of several parcels of valuable real estate in Lowell.

Two classes will not be likely to heed such advice-the improvident and the over-cautious. The latter will be apt to say: "It would be all right but for those dreadful promissory notes. They are always running on and if a man falls sick they do not wait for him to get well."

There is this danger, of course, but one can make no business venture without some risk, and with the knowledge acquired by recent investigations of the cause of most ordinary ailments, and the means of cure, one runs little risk from that source. It is now known that most of the common ailments have their origin in deranged kidneys. They are the chief blood purifiers of the system and when disordered a breaking down somewhere is soon inevitable, because the poison, which in their healthy condition is eliminated, is carried through the entire system. Put them in order, and health re-

C. D. Dewey, a successful man, President of the Johnston Harvester Company, Batavia, N. Y., gives his experience as follows:

In 1882 my health was failing, my head pained me constantly, my appetite was uncertain, I could not sleep fields drained so that he can work them soundly. I attributed this to the extreme pressure of business cares, but I grew worse, and finally was confined to feetly for the seed, and can keep free my bed for two months. It seemed as from weeds and thoroughly cultivated. former health. Under the aid of stimulants I gradually gained strength, so that in a few months I was able to attend to business, but I could walk only with the assistance of a cane, and then in a slow and unsteady manner. ENGLISH farmers think that ensllage may be preserved by being pressed very compactly into bales. They state that in Belgium it is customary to bale it. The outer portions of the bale, however, become slightly injured, which may be avoided by using straw for an outer covering, which may be also pressed with the ensilage.

CARROTS are said to be excellent food for horses, giving a sleek, oily appearance to their hair. As from 500 to 1000 bushels may be raised to the acre on good land we think they might be made profitable for home use.

COPPERAS is a splended medicine to keep on hand for poultry. When they have the roup wash their heads with a solution of it, and put some of the solution in the drinking water as a tonic. It provides them with solute iron which is necessary.

CLOVER hay is much better for milch cows than timothy. It produces a large quantity of milk, and also a quality. All butter-makers know how yellow the butter is which is made from the milk of cows fed on clover hay.

DON'T suppose that you can jam the roots of fruit trees into small holes of poor soil and have them do well. Unless you are willing to do the thing thoroughly and to give them a fertile soil, better not plant fruit trees at all.

WHEN it is considered that beets require only about seventy days in which to mature from the seed; radishes, fifty day; tomatoes, fifty-five days; lettuce, forty five days, etc., it will be seen that fertilizers to help these crops must be very soluable.

IT is supposed, and with reason, that farm-work is subject to a very great variety of risks which convert apparent and hopeful success into defeat, and ruin all the work and expectation of the season. The changes of the season seem to make a plaything of the farmer, and lure him into disaster and loss. But yet, while one farmer experinces precisely this condition of things, another goes through it all with composure and safety. What is the reason of the difference, may be asked. It is very plain. The farmer who has good crops in spite of the seasons has his early. He works no more land than he can manure liberally and prepare perthough I would "never recover" my His crops are then always in advance of the season, deep rooted and vigorous, so as to resist drought, and are harvested in season and out of the way before the next requires attention. An Important Arrest. The arrest of a suspicious character upon his general appearance, movements or companionship, without waiting until he has robbed a traveler, fired a house, or murdered a fellow-man, is an important function of a shrewd detective. Even more important is the arrest of a disease which, if not checked, will blight and de-stroy a human life.
