We since learn that Mr. Fiedler, who had been waiting upon the little sufferer as an affectionate parent, has now also an attack of the same disease, diphtheria. The afflicted family have our deepest sympathy.

The Centre Hall band is treating the residents of the town to serenades. They have not forgotten the good people in the country either and on Monday evening made quite a trip, serenading everybody along the route. The reason of all this is that they have their new horns and in order to get rid of an excess of exuberance they tapped the safety valve and are letting it blow off through the bran new instruments, and no damage is done.

A two year old Hambletonian colt, belonging to John Conley, whose farm adjoins this place, broke its neck last Friday in a singular manner. The colt, evidently, was about to take its first lesson in jumping, without a proper conception as to heights, and tried to clear a fence of medium height. The spring was made, the front feet got mixed with the top rail of the fence, and its coltslip landed keratone on its head on either side, breaking its neck. It never kicked again.

THE CULVEY MURDER TRIAL.

LUTHER SHAEFFER TRIED FIRST, IMMENSE CROWD PRESENT.

Lock Haven, December 5.—The trial of Luther Shaeffer, James Johnson and Essec and James Kline for the murder of Isaac Colby and his wife Nora was called this afternoon at a special session of court, Judge Mayer presiding.

Just before the opening of the court the lawyers in the case, with their books and papers, entered and took their seats, District Attorney Brown and T. C. Hipple, esq., for the Commonwealth, T. T. Abrams and W. C. Hollahan, Esqs., for Luther Shaeffer, and W. H. Clough and John B. Meyers, Esqs., for John W. Johnson and James and Essec Kline.

Immediately after court was called W. H. Clough, attorney for the defense, read a petition asking for a separate trial for each of the accused. The petition was granted and the District Attorney elected Shaeffer as the first to be put on trial.

After the preliminaries incident to the opening had been concluded the prisoners were brought in by Sheriff May in the following order: Shaeffer and James Kline handcuffed together and Johnson and Essec Kline together. All wore an anxious and somewhat troubled look. Not having been allowed to shave since his arrest Luther Shaeffer wears a full beard.

When Sheriff May brought Luther Shaeffer into the court room this morning he was quite a different looking man from yesterday, as he had been to the barber shop and had his heavy beard shaved off and his hair cut, leaving him a fine moustache with a rather good-looking countenance, and he smiled as all eyes looked upon him in surprise at the transformation.

District Attorney Brown opened the case for the Commonwealth by stating to the jury the nature of the case, telling how the victims had been found, and giving a full history of the murder. While Mr. Brown was speaking to the jury a scene of a somewhat dramatic nature was caused by the entrance into the court room of Mrs. and John Culvey, with the two children of Isaiah and Nora Culvey, the murdered people. The poor little one that was left in the house alone to starve when its parents were killed and the other child, a little boy, who was at the home of John Culvey. When Mr. Culvey entered and took her seat she wept as if her heart would break.

The first witness examined was John Culvey father of Isaiah Culvey then Mrs. John Culvey, Chas. Culvey and others whose testimony merely corroborates the facts of the finding the murdered couple as published.

The circumstantial evidence against Shaeffer is strong. It has been proven, by eye witnesses, that he was within a stone's throw of Culveys, on the morning of the murder. Then is the fact of Culvey's watch having been found on Shaeffer's person.

On last Thursday Mr. John Lingle, of Poe valley, while out on the mountain chopping wood, cut a dangerous gash in one of his feet. He was alone, and walked quite a distance to his home, which he reached in an almost exhausted condition from the loss of blood. By the time the physician, Dr. Emerick, could be called and reach him, the bleeding had nearly ended his life.

Mr. Lingle died at midnight of same day. The accident happened in the morning, and he was about 1 1/2 miles from home. The cut was on the inner side of the foot across the instep, severing the main artery. He started for home at once and after going about a mile he was met by two men, who took him home, but he was unconscious before getting there. The stream of blood could be traced from his home to the top of the mountain where the accident occurred.

Mr. Lingle, some years ago, had the misfortune to cut off the lower part of the same foot, by a slip of the axe, and the severed parts were healed together again.

AN EXCITING RACE.

A valuable horse belonging to Rev. Stambach, of Aaronsburg, was killed by a passenger train near Coburn one day last week. As we are told, the animal was tied to a tree in a strip of woods near the track, and when the morning train came thundering along, the animal broke loose and started down the track, ahead of the engine, at a break neck speed. It was a dead heat for over a half a mile, the sports and toots of the iron horse only spurred the excited animal on, thus it went for over half of a mile—it was a genuine race. The engine kept creeping up closer and closer until it finally struck the unfortunate beast and drew it under the ponderous wheels. Later in the day the horse was found near the scene of the accident still alive, but he will never race again, his four legs were taken off below the knee.

THE DOXOLOGY SUNG IN CONGRESS BY A CRANK.

When the clock struck 12 the Clerk of the forty-ninth Congress called the House to order. During the momentary lull a crank up in one of the galleries stood up and, in a loud voice, said: "This meeting ought to be commended with prayer and praise. Let us sing the Doxology." With that he commenced to sing in a cracked and wavering tone with his hands stretched as if he was leading a prayer meeting. There was an uproar of laughter and everybody turned to see the singer who was promptly hustled out and locked up in a police station. He gave the name of Patrick Dagan. He belongs to the Salvation Army and wanted to touch the souls of the Congressmen through their ears.

THRILLING EXPERIENCE OF A COUPLE OF WILLIAMSPORT HUNTERS IN CLINTON COUNTY.

ATTACKED BY A LARGE BLACK BEAR.

Messrs. Jordan and McNaughton, the two Williamsporters who have been hunting at Sandy Run Camp, in the wilds of Clinton county, have returned to their homes, bringing with them one bear, a wild cat and a deer.

Suddenly the noise of breaking twigs, such as an animal might make, was heard in the neighborhood of camp, at night. The first sound had brought them to their feet, rifles in hand, ready for a fight. They had not long to wait, for hardly had the rifles been cocked when into the clearing in which the fire was burning bounded a large black bear. Both rifles were point blank, but the balls failed to kill, and the next moment bruin was rolling over and over on the ground, locked in a death grapple with Jordan.

First the bear was on top and then the man, while McNaughton was jumping round, afraid to shoot lest he should kill his companion. It was a critical time and trying, indeed, must have been the situation to McNaughton as he jumped about with a loaded rifle unable to shoot and save his companion, who was, to all appearances, being

SLOWLY SQUEEZED TO DEATH. Suddenly Jordan shifted the position of his head, and the bear's head was brought within easy range of McNaughton's rifle. But he must be careful. The bear was liable to twist around at any moment and fix things so that the ball intended for his brain would penetrate that of the friend whom McNaughton wanted to save. It was one chance in a hundred, and McNaughton fired. The strain upon his own nerves had been too much even for a hunter, and as the smoke of his rifle cleared away McNaughton fainted, and fell to the ground. When he revived Jordan was standing over him, bathing his head with water. The shot

HAD KILLED THE BEAR and saved both lives. Had it failed Jordan would have fallen an easy victim to the grip which was slowly smothering him, and Bruin would then have had an easy task with the man who had swooned away. Half an hour afterwards the wildcat which the hunters brought home with them was discovered prowling around the fire and was killed by Jordan. This story as it is told by the Williamsport Nimrods. They swear it is true, and as they have the bear, the deer and the wildcat, and as both men look as though they had been through some trying situations, they find many believers.

RAILROAD ACCIDENTS.

HORSE KILLED—MAN HURT—FREIGHT WRECK.

A few days ago Rev. Stambach, of Aaronsburg, drove to Fowlers, to look at some timber. He had a valuable black horse, which he unhitched and tied to a tree, and then went off into the woods. The freight soon after coming along caused the horse to frighten and break loose. The animal ran on the railroad track, was overtaken by the engine, and thrown from the track, having four legs broken. The horse was killed by the railroad men to relieve its sufferings.

On Monday night Mr. George Mensch, of Millheim, was seriously injured while coupling cars at Pleasant Gap. He was standing between two freight cars, and the darkness prevented his seeing an iron pin which protruded from one of the cars moving toward him. The pin struck him back of the eye, crushing the bone, and almost forced the eye from its socket. Mensch is a young man and married. He has been quite unfortunate. Eight weeks ago his hand was hurt on the railroad and this was the first trip since recovering from that injury.

On Tuesday evening there was a freight wreck this side of Laurelton, which caused a detention of the evening passenger train some two hours. Six freight cars were smashed; no one was injured.
