CORMORANT FISHING.

How the Japanese Fish at Night with Voracious Hirds.

One of the papers read before the annual congress of the American Ornithologists' Union was particularly interesting. It was by Pierre Loais Jouy, who went to Japan on a Government scientific mission for the National Museum, and who refated as follows his story of a night's fishing with a cormorant:

"In the clear mountain streams of Central Japan there is found a peculiar fish of the family Salmonide, the plecoglossus altivelis. This fish, the 'ai' of the Japanese, is something between a trout and a smelt in appearance, grows to a length of twelve to fourteen inches, and is bright silvery in color, with a golden spot on each shoulder. It is very delicate in flavor and is much prized for the table. In a cellence of its fish, this species holds the highest place and commands the best price in the market. Many ingenious methods are employed for its capture, among the most interesting of which is the use of cormorants. We are all familiar with the stories of cormorant fishing in China, where the fisherman has his birds trained to obey a call note or whistle, and where they sit around the edge of the boat and go and return to and from the water like a well-trained spaniel, but cormorant fishing in a rapid mountain stream in Japan is quite a different thing from fishing in a sluggish, muddy river in Chi-na, and I believe that the Japanese methods are quite unknown, being carried on at night and in remote and out-of-theway places. * * * I made a journey of about twenty-five miles from Tokio to a small river, the Banugawa, on purpose to witness this interesting and, to me, novel sight. September 8, 1886, we left the teahouse about eight o'clock to keep our appointment with the cormorant fisher. It was a bright moonlight night, said to be a bad night for fishing, a cloudy or dull evening being preferred, as the fish are then not so active. The river consisted of two branches, running very swiftly, and each from twenty to fifty yards wide, but in flood time it extended over a space of two hundred yards or more, running between high bluffs. "The man with his bird was waiting for us on the stony bed of the river, with his torch of pine fat burning brightly. The bird (Phalacracoraz species) was very tame and sat perched on a rock close by. A cord was tied pretty tightly around the lower part of the throat and between the shoulders, from which was attached a piece of bamboo (having a swivel at each end) long enough to extend beyond the bird's wings and prevent fouling of the cord while the bird was in the water. The man carried a basket at his side to put the fish in, and a sort of apron in front to hold the pine chips for the light. The lantern was a wire cage or basket, placed on the end of along bamboo pole. This, with the cord attached to the bird, which gives him a range of about twenty feet, is held in the left hand, the right being employed in guiding the bird, replenishing the fire and taking the fish. Every thing being ready, the fisherman takes the torch in his left hand and, clasping the cord to which the bird is attached, wades out into the stream, the bird following him, and after performing a hasty toilet, dipping his head and neck in the water, and preening himself, begins the business of the night. The fisherman holds the fire directly in front and above the bird's head, so that it can see the fish in fectly fearless, and, as he comes up, sparks of fire are constantly falling on his head and back. The fishing Is done up-stream, the man finding it all he can do to keep pace with the bird as the water surges up nearly to his thighs. In fact, it was hard work for us on shore to scramble along among the rocks in the uncertain light and watch the bird at the same time. "The bird dives, swims under water for eight or ten yards, comes up and is down again, working very rapidly and constantly taking fish. When the fishes are small, the bird is allowed to retain two or three in his throat at a time, but a fairsized fish is immediately taken from him and put into the basket. During a space of half su hour fifteen fishes were taken, which was pronounced a good catch, considering the brightness of the night. The largest of these fishes, which were all of the same species, were nine to ten inches in length, and, having been taken immediately from the beak of the bird, were scarcely bruised. The largest and best of these we had the

NO RIOTING YESTERDAY.

The Striking Poles Spend the Day in Safloons Discussing Their Future Plans, SHENANDOAH, Feb. 6. - All was quiet here yesterday and nothing occurred to mar the peace of the Sabbath. The rioting Poles have kept themselves in the saloons that are their headquarters, drinking and discussing their plans for to-day. It is currently understood that they do not propose to allow anybody to work at either the Reading or individual collieries, either at "dead" or other work, if they can stop it. They believe, too, that they have the power to prevent it, and boast that the moral support of many others is at their back, and that the labor agitators have approved their acts. They speak in the warmest terms of admiration of Chairman Lee of the Railroaders' Committee, and insist that what they do is in conson ance with his advice to maintain a solid country celebrated for the variety and ex- strike, and will be adhered to. They will do their utmost to block Kehley Run and William Penn mines by whatever means they can. What will be done at Kehley Run to-day has not yet been determined, but it is believed by many that the superintendent will not attempt to start up. Some of his men have expressed themselves as ready to work if protected, but he has given no indication of his purposes. The William Penn mine will be worked, and no violence on the part of the strikers will be permitted. The Coal and Iron police are a picked body of men, armed with Winchester gifles, and they are determined to preserve order in the future, even if it is necessary to use their rifles.

The "Millington Penitentiary," a small operation south of town employing about one hundred men, has been shut down until it shall be determined whether or not the mob or the law is to rule here. The colliery was shipping coal over the Reading road and was paying its men more than 20 per cent. above the basis. The employes were to have been attacked on Saturday evening, but quit work at noon, and so out-witted their foes. In the absence of any indication that the local authorities will take precautionary measures against rioting, there is talk of forming vigilence committees to deal with the leaders of any further disturbances. Potrsville, Feb. 6.-In contrast with the excitement prevailing Saturday morning, yesterday has been characterized by stagnant quiet. But, while there has been no demonstrative excitement, there has nevertheless provailed a strong feeling of uneasy suspense in anticipation of the possibilities.

Sheriff Duffy has issued a proclamation reciting the Shenandoah disturbances, cautioning the turbulent element to desist under pain of the penalties of the law, and calling upon all good citizens of the county to support and assist him in the mainte nance of the peace. This legal formality is likely to have little practical effect upon the unruly element, but in the event of any further outbreak to-day it will probably be followed by sharper and sterner measures.

CAUSED BY A BROKEN FROG. Fatal Wreck on the Pennsylvania and Ohio Railroad.

BRADFORD, Pa., Feb. 6 .- Train 8, the fast day express for the east over the New York, Pennsylvania & Ohio railroad, was wrecked at Steamburg station, twelve miles west of Salamanca, N. Y., yesterday forenoon. The train was running forty-five miles an hour. Near Steamburg station a broken frog or TERRIBLE are Kidney and Liver diseases, and when once they have secured a firm hold on the human system there is no time to be lost if life is to be saved. Many remedies have been tried, but none have been so suc-cessful as Ath-lo-pho-ros. Many un-solicited testimonials have proved that Ath-lo-pho-ros has cured these diseases when physicians and all other remedies had failed. Backache, pain in the side, dullness, weariness, and headache, are often symptoms of these fearful diseases. Athlophoros, in connection with Athlophoros Pills, will give speedy relief. Pasteur's System in Vienna.

Some results of M. Pasteur's system of vaccination for hydrophobis have been published by a Vienna medical journal. In the course of a year 122 persons were bitten were vaccinated within ten days. Out of this number only three have died. In 104 out of the 122 cases vaccination took place six months ago, so that reaction need not be feared. Dr. Ullmann, who has conducted the experiments, has been in con-stant correspondence with all his patients, and has learned in several cases that persons who were bitten at the same time as those vaccinated, but under went no treatment, have since died.

A Terrible Munition of War.

"Lectover" is the name of a new and murderous munition of war in Russia. It was discovered by a Russian engineer, and is as strong as pyroyline and ten times cheaper than saltpster powder. It possesses great superiority over all explosives of the dynamite class by the fact that when fired its force does not strike downward, but entirely forward. It can be used, it is said, for all purposes to which ordinary gunpowder is now applied without any damage to the weapon dis-charged. The Minister of War is having a special factory built for its manufacture. The composition is a secret.

Various Uses for Mummies.

Mummies beaten up into a powder and mixed with a little oil make for the artists in Egypt richer tones of brown than any other substance. Modern perfumers used to prepare the perfumes and spices found inside of mummies in such a way as to make ladies "dote on it." Paper manu-facturers have used the wrappings of mummies to make coarse paper, and the cioth and rags have been used as cloth-
