

The Funeral Month of March.

An observant metropolitan barber says that he can tell one's physical condition by the state of the hair!

The Bible tells us that with his hair gone Samson lost his strength. The Romans considered baldness a serious affliction and Julius Caesar was never quite satisfied with himself because his hair was thin.

The face, however, is the open book and one can readily trace in its various expressions, lines, changes and complexion the state of the system.

The eye that is unusually bright and yet has a pallid brightness, the face upon whose cheeks nature paints a rose of singular beauty and flush, more marked in contrast with the alabaster appearance of the forehead and nose and lower part of the face, is one of those whom the skilled physician will tell you will die during the funeral month of March, because it is then that consumption reaps its richest harvest. Consumption they tell us is caused by this that and the other thing, by microbes in the air, by micro-organisms in the blood, by deficient nutrition, by a thousand and one things, but whatever the cause, decay begins with a cough and the remedy that will effectually stop the cause of that cough cures the disease of the lungs.

That is all there is of it.

The cough is an evidence of a wasting. To stop it effectually, a remedy must be used that will search out the cause, remove that and then heal the lung and do away with the cough. This is the power, special to itself, possessed alone by Warner's Log Cabin Cough and Consumption Remedy. This is no new-fangled notion of narcotics and poisons, but an old-fashioned preparation of balsams, roots and herbs, such as was used by our ancestors many years ago, the formula of which has been secured exclusively by the present manufacturers at great trouble and expense. It is not a mere cold remedy. It is a system-searcher and builder and a consumptive expellant. Where others fail, it wins, because it gets at the constitutional cause and remedies it from the system.

J. W. Henshaw of Greensboro, Pa., on Jan. 15, 1888, reported that "he had derived more real benefit for the length of time, from Warner's Log Cabin Cough and Consumption Remedy than he had for years from the best state physicians."

"If you have a cough, night sweats, 'positive assurance in your own mind that you, oh—you, have no consumption,' and yet lose flesh, appetite, courage, as your lungs waste away, you may know that soon the funeral month of March will claim you, unless promptly and faithfully you use the article named. If other remedies have failed try this one thoroughly. If others are offered, insist the more on trying this unequalled preparation.

Some persons are prone to consumption and they should never allow the disease to become seated.

FARM NOTES.

LENGTH TO CUT CORN FODDER.—

Numbered with interesting experiments reported upon by Professor Shelton, of the Kansas Agricultural college, is the one relating to the proper length to cut corn fodder. According to the professor's report the finely cut fodder was much less attractive and palatable to the animals than when cut into coarser lengths, and the uneaten portions, the "waste," were greatly increased by the excessive reduction.

A number of the cows were fed for one week upon corn fodder reduced to quarter inch lengths, the week following the same corn fodder cut into inch lengths, and the week following they were furnished fodder cut into two-inch lengths. Care was taken that each animal received just about what previous experience had shown it would "eat up clean." The cows were fed night and morning as usual, but before feeding the next day the residue in the mangers was carefully weighed. The result of these trials is shown in tabular form as follows:

Length of Cut. lbs.	Waste. lbs.	Per Cent. waste.
One-fourth inch. 480	235	49
One-half. 440	150	34
Two inches. 480	115	24

Professor Shelton offers the following explanation of the above results: "As ordinarily prepared, the blades of the corn plant are the only part having nutritive value. The stalk portion and the husks are, for the most part, indigestible, tasteless, woody fibre. When fodder is cut into very short lengths, these dissimilar parts are inextricably intermixed; the animal is unable to extract them, and in rejecting the worthless portion, is forced to discard much that is valuable; hence, the greatly increased 'waste' when the shorter lengths were used. The addition of advantage in the use of the longer lengths in the great saving of power required to cut a given weight of fodder is a very considerable item, not likely to be lost sight of."

IT IS HUMAN NATURE.—

"I'd like to know," he began, as he entered police headquarters yesterday, "if we have a police force?"

"We have," replied the sergeant.

"Then I want it to protect me! I am a taxpayer."

"You shall be protected, sir. What is the case?"

"Why, I got some paint on my overcoat, last night and my wife sponged it off with benzine and left it out of doors to air. It's gone! Yes, sir, gone!"

"Well, we'll try and find it for you."

The wrathful man had scarcely departed when a second stranger entered and demanded to know:

"Have we a police or have we not?"

"Well, here's an overcoat I found in the yard this morning, where some burglar had probably left it. Just smell the chloroform will you?"

A messenger was sent to overtake the first man and he returned and identified the coat, which had blown over the fence.

"Yes, sir, it's mine," he said, as he started off, "and I hope the police will be more vigilant in the future."

"And it was my yard, sir," said number two as he went out, "and if any more burglars come around, you police will hear from me!"

Some Foolish People

Allow a cough to run until it gets beyond the reach of medicine. They often say, "Oh, it will wear away," but in most cases it wears them away. Could they be induced to try the successful medicine called Kemp's Balsam, they would immediately see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. A bottle, 50 cents and $1.00. Trial size, 25c. At all Druggists.

CHAFED THE WRONG MAN.—

A citizen who had just laid down $900 for a span of carriage horses was driving out Woodward avenue the other day when he met a farmer coming in with a load of apples. Desiring to chaff the stranger a bit he drew up and inquired:

"Say, how'll you trade teams?"

The farmer halted, got down from his vehicle, looked the team over and slowly replied:

"Waal, by gosh!"

"What's the matter?"

"If you hadn't stopped me I wouldn't have known the team."

"Did you ever see these horses before?"

"Did I? Why I raised 'em! Sold 'em both to a horse trader in town three weeks ago. That high one has the heaves, and the other is a cribber and has two spavins. I'll trade with you for $75, and that's allowing $25 apiece more on your horses than I got."

The owner of the "sparkers" hadn't seen a peaceful hour since that meeting.

A GROWING CITY.—

They were twenty miles from the Missouri River, round east.

"Conductor," said a passenger, "when do we reach Kansas City?"

"We're there now."

"There now? Why, there isn't a house in sight!"

"No house, no. But look at the building lots! The prairies are full of 'em."

CITIZEN (to coal-dealer)—Say I want a ton of coal.

Coal-dealer—All right. Shall I send it up right away?

Citizen—O, no. If it's anything like the last I'll just call for it on my way home and carry it up in my overcoat pocket.

ALL THE MORE.—

Wife (pleadingly)—I'm afraid, George, you do not love me as well as you used to.

Husband—Why?

Wife—Because you always let me get up to light the fire.

Husband—Nonsense, my love. Your getting up to light the fire makes me love you all the more.

COLONEL YEEGER.—

D-d you get me that reserved seat at the box office as I told you?

Sam Johnson—No, boss, I dun forgot it.

Well, for asinine stupidity you take the cake. Why, Sam, if you were ten times as smart as you are, stupid you would still be ten times as stupid as an ordinary donkey!

A STRANGE THING.—

Jones—Strange thing, Mirandy; every time you draw a breath somebody dies.

Mrs. Jones—Well, I ain't going to stop breathing on that account.

A FORTUNE HUNTER'S BAD BREAK.

Sweet Girl—Isn't Mr. Fortunehunter splendid? He's been such a traveler.

Rich Widow—Splendid, indeed! He's the most unmannerly man I ever met.

"Unmannerly?"

"He's positively insulting. I never want to speak to him again."

"Oh, I'm sure there's some mistake. What did he say?"

"He asked me if I'd ever heard Jenny Lind."

WHAT HE HAD.—There had been some illness in a family, and an inquisitive neighbor asked Johnny, the youngest son of the family, who had been sick and he answered:

"Oh, it's my brother; that's all."

"What's the matter with him?"

"Nuffin, only he's just sick."

"I know; but what ailed him?"

"Oh, I dunno."

"Who had the doctor?"

STRANGER (to boy)—Boy, can you direct me to the nearest bank?

Boy—I kin for twenty if cents.

Stranger—Twenty-five cents isn't that high pay?

Boy—Yes, sir, but it's bank directors what gets high pay.
