There were no ceremonies at the interment. It was generally known that there would be none. Yet a long line of carriages followed the hearse and behind thesecame struggling through the mud more than a thousand people, impelled by respectful admiration to see the last of their local organizations. Rector Goodrich met the remains at the door of the church and preceded it down the aisle. Their were few decorations. The pulpit was draped, and on its front were a cross of dark purple flowers and a shot and the woman hanged wreath of lilies. On the altar table were two brass vases filled with lillies, which stood out boldly against a curtain of crape. Everything was simple as the service.

The pallbearers, wearing white sashes, were Wm. H. Comstock, Wm. H. Watson, Francis Kernan, Henry D. Pixley, Theodore Pomeroy, Wm. Blaklie, Publius V. Rogers, E. Prentiss Boiley and Charles M. Denni-

The procession reformed and slowly bore the body to the hearse, when it was conveyed to the cemetery, as already stated, followed by a large crowd which had stood outside the church during the sermon.

IMPORTANT TO FARMERS.

A Bill Prohibiting Gambling Transactions on Farm Produced Articles.

Washington, April 23 .- Mr. George O. Jones, of New York, appeared before the House Committee on Agriculture this morning to argue in behalf of the adoption of the bills recently introduced by Chairman Hatch and Representative Enjoe prohibiting fictitious and gambling transactions on the price of articles produced by American farm industry.

The bill provides that it shall be held to be a felony for any individual, firm, comcorporation or associati tract, agree or bargain to sell, for future delivery, any grain, pork, lard, butter, cheese, cotton or other articles of farm products, or to settle any contract, agreement or bargain relating thereto, unless from the sparks of a passing locomotive. every such transaction shall be accompanied with a true bill of lading of warehouse receipt fully describing the exact lo cation of the actual property to be delivered; or to charge or receive any premium beyond its current cash value for the future delivery of any such article, unless such charges represent money actually paid for storing and insuring the precise property specified for delivering.

In speaking of the questions involved in the Hatch and Enloe bills Chairman Hatch said: "The subject is certainly as important to the people of the country as any now before Congress. To the farmers it means more than even they can realize. I have asked four of the best lawers in the House, among them Mr. Culberson, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, to address the committee upon the constitutionality of the bills. Their argument will be heard with great interest, and their conclusions will attract general attention."

Raliroad Don't Like the Rule.

St. PAUL, Minn., April 23. - Railroad men regard the decision of the Supreme Court n the case of the Railroad and Warehouse Commissioners against the St. Paul, Chicago and Milwaukee Railroad Company with disfavor. They say that the decision gives the commissioners the power to dictate rates and force a road into bankruptcy. A prominent official said: "I look for a change in the composition of the commission. Railroad men would be satisfied if this board was compose of practical railroad men, who understood the tariff matters and the cost of running a railroad, but they did not. Is it not folly for this board simply to give a hearing in which certain parties tell the story of the rates paid, and with simply this information take a tariff sheet and cut it down ten or twenty per cent. I Under this decision the Commissioners have final power."
