PITTSBURG, July 7.—A battery of boilers at the tannery of A. & J. Groetzinger, on River avenue, Alleghany City, near Herrs Island, exploded shortly after 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, wrecking several buildings and seriously injuring six persons, three of whom will probably die.

A large number of others, mostly employes, were slightly bruised and cut by being struck have occupied a

The cause of the explosion is believed to the daily parades, have been high pressure. A few minutes after 4 o'clock William Wetzell, the engineer, noticed that the pressure was higher than usual, and he started for the furnace to turn down the natural gas. Before he had time to do so, however, the explosion came, and Wetzeil was blown up through the roof of the tannery, and landed in the yard outside.

One side of the main building, a brick and frame structure, 200 feet long, was blown out, and a portion of the front was badly wrecked. The boiler house, fifty feet long by forty-two wide, built of brick, was totally demolished, and the office, which was situated across the street, was completely shattered. A heavy double wagon was blown against Wetzell's residence, sixty feet away, side of the well drilled and disciplined reguand the side of the house crushed in.

Pieces of the boiler flew in every direction. One section was carried across the Allegheny river, a distance of over 1,000 feet. Another piece struck the Third ward school house, 1,200 feet away, and tore out one end of the building. A third piece struck a horse and killed it, and a fourth piece almost cut in two a Grand Rapids and Indiana railroad freight car that was standing on a side track.

Fully sixty men were at work in the tannery. The building caught fire, but before the flames got much headway they were ex-tinguished. The injured were then taken from the wreck and removed to their homes. The boilers that exploded were 26 feet long by 42 inches in diameter. They were made of steel, and have been in use six years. The damage to property by the explosion will not exceed $20,000.

Robbed on the Road.

FRANKLIN, Pa., July 7 .- J. J. Kilgore, a young farmer living six miles south of here, on the Pittsburg road, came to town and re- Potomac society, read a portion of the poem ceived $2,000, the proceeds of a sale of land. After making a few purchases he started for home on horseback with $2,000 in his pocket. It was reported that the Newport Iron company, of Newport, Ky., had also signed, but no official notification of it has been received by the manufacturers or Confessed to Killing His Roommate. PHILADELPHIA, July 7 .- Thomas Cole, arrested for the premeditated murder of his roommate, Walter McAllister, at No. 708 Salter street, has made a full confession. Salter street, has made a full confession. Cole says he had quarreled with McAllister and blamed him for his discharge from the Pennsylvania railroad. He arose early and pawned his trousers for $1, of which he spent eighty cents for strong drink. Then he took a hatchet and went up stairs to the bed upon which McAllister was still sleeping and cut his head off.

Tound to Wolf's Hill and Culp's Hill, then sweeping back, with desperate fury striking the Peach orchard, and dashing with flash and roar upon Little Round Top and Round Top, raging in Devil's Den, the earth trembling, the air quivering, the sky obscured; with shouting charge and rattling volley and thundering cannonade piling the ground with mangled, bleeding blue and gray, the old, the young, but always and everywhere the devoted and the brave. Doubtful the battle hung and paused. Then a Cole says he had quarreled with McAllister and blamed him for his discharge from the

Their selection of "Dixie" and "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia" were vigorously applauded. The Ninth, in camp and on the march, alonglar infantry, artillery and cavalry, was the subject of universal and favorable comparison by the thousands of soldiers and officers who witnessed the parade.

The artillery salute from Cemetery Hill, just as the shining bayonets of the long line of military formed in line in the front of the stand on Cemetery Hill, caused the blood of many old soldiers to flow faster, and intinctively some of them felt impelled to sing out the old battle cries: "First gun! Fall in, men, fall in!" or, "We've got them on the run, give it to them!" On the rostrum were a number of distinguished persons, most prominent among whom were Gens. Longstreet, Sickles, Barlow, Hunt, Gordon and Sharpe; Governor Curtin, and ex-Senator Warner Miller. Ex-Lieutenant Governor Robinson, of New York, presided. But the occasion has yet another profound interest of association. It was on the 21st and 25th of June, 1783, that the vote of New Hampshire and Virginia decided the adoption of the constitution of the United States. This year, atmost this very day, is its centenary, and nowhere in the country could the giorious anniver sary be celebrated with such perfect propriety as upon the field where, by the majestic decision of forces from which there is no appeal, the con-stitution was decreed to be an imperishable bond of national union and liberty. For three long, proud, immortal days it raged and swayed, drifting from Seminary Hill far round to Wolf's Hill and Culp's Hill, then sweep-beadlong against men as brave, and the next moment that awful bolt of daring courage was melted in the fervent 820 OHIO INFANTRY. eat of an equal valor, and the battle of Gettysburg was fought.

If the rising sun of the Footth of July, 1863, looked upon a sad and unwonted scene, a desolated battlefield upon which the combatants upon eithestide had been American citizens, yet those combatants, could they have seen aright, would have hafied that day as more glorious than ever before. For as the children of Israel beheld Moses descending amid the clouds and thunder of the sacred mount, bearing the divinely illuminated law, so from that smoking and blood drenched field, on which all hope of future union might seem to have perished utterly, they would have seen a more perfectifulon rising, with the constitution at last immutably interpreted, and they would have heard, before they were uttered by human lips, the words of which Gettysburg is the immortal pledge to mankind—"government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

Quite a number of Confederates are in the city. As a rule they have come as individuals from different sections. Among the organizations present are the Norfolk and Portsmouth camps. Wherever a gray uniform is seen, it is found to be surrounded by a crowd of old veterans in blue, anxious to shake hands and express their kindly feeling toward their old antagonists. The fact impresses the old soldier observers with the recollication of former scenes of twenty-five years ago, when the gray were their prisoner guests in this city. ourg was fought.
