

VOL. LXII.

CENTRE HALL, PA., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1889.

NO. 9.

THE CENTRE REPORTER.

FRED KURTZ, -- EDITOR

Tickets to the inauguration ball are $5 -- as we can't dance, we won't go. This is the price all will have to pay except Mr. and Mrs. Harrison.

The Democrats of West Virginia have gained a member of congress by a decision of the circuit court, which seats Anderson, the investigation showed that McGinness, Republican, had received illegal votes. This may leave the next congress about three Republican.

Whoever may constitute the cabinet nobody has a right to complain. President Harrison will be responsible for the success or failure of his administration, and for that reason he has the unquestioned right to select his own advisers.

An Indiana doctor has successfully removed a patient's rib. Though the oldest one on record, the operation is extremely rare, says an exchange.

The Reporter thinks there is a far older operation -- the one performed on Adam, and so successful that it grew to be a woman.

This is Mr. Cleveland's last week as President. On Monday, at 2.30 p. m., President elect Harrison and family left his home in Indianapolis, by special train, for Washington. They reached Altoona Tuesday morning at 7, where a stop of 15 minutes was made, and then on to Washington, which was reached on Wednesday. On Monday the inauguration takes place, and after the ceremonies President Cleveland and wife will leave for New York.

The Harrisburg Patriot hits old Piolet a sharp dig for working in the last campaign to have the farmers taxed by high tariffs. As soon as he and one or two cranks who are tied to his tail are banded from the grange, which they tried to prostitute to base political uses, the farmers of the grange will only be true to the first principles of the order. The sooner these blabbering frauds are hustled out the better for the good of the honest granger.

The temperance people throughout the state seem to be waking up, and hold conventions in every county to organize for the amendment campaign. They must be up and doing or the liquor interest will get ahead. The battle will be a desperate one by the latter. It is only by the most perfect organization and inch by inch contest that the "spirits" can be ousted. The amendment people seem to have realized this all at once, and are rolling up their sleeves for the fight.

At the late election in Lancaster county the Republicans nominated in one of their strongest townships a colored man for a township office. He was defeated and the Democratic candidate elected by Republican votes. Republicans raised the race issue to defeat the man and brother and succeeded in doing so. This is not specially important, but illustrates the question of theory vs. condition. The colored man is good enough to vote, provided he votes the Republican ticket, but he must not put in a claim to office if he does he gets the grand bouce.

The New York Press has sent a young lady reporter, very poorly but decently clad, to various churches for a few Sundays past to see whether poor people are welcome or not in such places.

The story of the reporter is printed, and is to the effect that out of eleven fashionable churches visited she was cordially welcomed at four; tolerated but rather coldly treated at two; given good seats at three, though regarded with apparent curiosity, and told that there were no seats at two. She was the only poorly dressed person visible at any of the churches.

Mr. Carol D. Wright, commissioner of the national bureau of labor, has submitted to congress a special report on marriage and divorce in the United States during the period from 1867 to 1888 inclusive. In that time 328,716 divorces were granted, showing that nearly 700,000 persons in the country were made so unhappy by their matrimonial ventures that divorce was their only resort. The increase of population during the twenty years was 69 per cent., but the increase in divorce was about 157 per cent. or a good deal more than twice the increase of population. These figures show that the effort now being made to secure uniformity of divorce laws in the several states is a most important one, worthy the earnest support of every citizen who loves his country and who realizes that the preservation of the family life is essential to the prosperity or even the existence of the republic.

DESPERATE REPUBLICANS.

They Will Try to Unseat Breckinridge Now at Any Cost.

Mr. Breckinridge is a Democratic congressman elect from Arkansas. His opponent, Mr. Clayton, was making arrangements to contest the election when he was shot dead by an unknown villain. Mr. Breckinridge is a member also of the present house, and at the time of the tragedy he was in Washington attending to his duties. The murder of Clayton was a shocking affair, as all such deeds of violence are, but it furnishes no evidence that he was elected to congress, or that his assassination was due to his political prominence. The deed has been condemned by the entire state, and a reward of unusual value has been offered for the murderer.

The next house of representatives has a Republican majority so small that many Democrats must be unseated to give the majority party a safe grip on legislation. With this policy well understood and thoroughly indorsed, Republican newspapers now demand that Breckinridge be one of the Democrats to give up his seat. No evidence is presented on which to base this extraordinary proposition, and the right and wrong of the matter is not even discussed. Breckinridge's seat is wanted; an excuse, though a feeble one, can be found for excluding him; a wholesale indictment for murder has been found against the people of a state, and he must go. This sort of government is not new in America, but it is unlike anything seen here since the troops were called out of southern state houses. If there is to be a return to the methods of Grantism, here is the place where the policy will first manifest itself. --Chicago Herald.

A Sectional Affair.

This is the Washington talk now: The subscriptions to defray the expenses of the inaugural ceremonies amount to over $500,000, the largest sum ever raised for such a purpose. The total of military certain to be in the parade foots up 21,187, and the other organizations number 20,961 members. None of the military comes from the south. There will be a marked difference in this respect from four years ago, when Gen. Lee was honored with the "Rebel yell." --Macon (Ga.) News.

Partisanship in the Senate.

The rejection of the extradition treaty with Great Britain, notwithstanding its amendment in such a way as to remove the entire ground on which opposition to it has been based, is another exhibition of the extremely narrow partisanship which has controlled the action of Republican senators throughout the administration of President Cleveland. --New York Times.

Shameful Senatorial Partisanship.

The proposed extradition treaty with Great Britain follows the fate of the fisheries treaty with the same country. The United States senate is evidently determined that no treaty, good or bad, shall be negotiated under the present administration. Meanwhile the exodus of embezzlers to Canada continues. --Boston Herald.

"Blocks of Five, Blocks of Five!"

The grand master of ceremonies who is to outrival the drum major at the inaugural ceremonies has issued an order dividing the whole business into five divisions. Five seems to be a favorite number with the coming administration. It was Dudley's blocks of five that did the business in Indiana. --Chicago Times.

The Soup Yearning for Allison.

Senator Allison's reason for rejecting the proffered portfolio of secretary of the treasury is that he expected to offer himself for the presidency in 1892. His offer then will be rejected, however, precisely as he rejects Harrison's offer now. A Western Democrat will be elected president in 1892. --St. Louis Republic.

Remember That.

In the whole country the Democrats secured a popular majority of nearly 100,000 upon the tariff issue, and that in the twenty-one manufacturing or producing states, wherein the tariff mainly affected the result, the Democrats gained 65,000 more votes than did the Republicans. --New York World.

He Is Sadder and Wiser Now.

One prominent manufacturer, who was a stalwart supporter a few months ago of the Republican candidates, has said that if he could only live the last six months over again he would do all that he could to secure the success of the Democratic party. --Boston Herald.

Narrow, Partisan Kansas.

Arkansas never had a law disfranchising Republicans or Union soldiers. But Kansas still retains a law denying the right of suffrage to men suspected of being Democrats because they served in the southern army. --St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The Man for the Place.

The new congress should create a department of election claims and put Mr. Goff at the head of it. What Mr. Goff cannot claim it would be useless for any other citizen to try to conjure up. --Louisville Courier-Journal.

Lamont's Success Money to Life.

The senate is talking of raising Private Secretary 'Lige Halford's salary from $3,250 to $5,000 a year. 'Lige seems to be about to profit by Dan Lamont's efficiency. --Chicago News.

Amendment Notes.

PHILAD. TIMES' HARRISBURG DOTS.

While the cat plays the mice get their fine work in. Here are all these rabid Apollinarians, soft cider and Hunyadi Janos statesmen up here on the Hill debating, wrangling, setting up pins, kicking, praying and swearing -- indeed, doing everything but taking a potion for the stomach's sake -- and while they are so busy the other side are hustling at the spring elections. "One man inside," said Demitocoles to an Athenian ward-bummer, when oyster shells were balloted in the Greek's hand, "is worth fifty outside." And while the amendmentists were here doing the sublime burrah act in three numbers, the Republican and Democrat anti-amendment heeler was quietly choosing election officers all over the state. Whatever cometh on the memorable June 18, it is certainly the cold water people, by their singular myopy, in fixing Tuesday last for their meeting, will have lost a good many election officers, to the selecting of which the anti-amendment liquor men have devoted not a little quiet attention. You may bet your bottom dollar, though, if you are a better, that these amendmentists are going to make the business of converting Pennsylvania to the Kansas idea a downright hustling match. They will have plenty of boodle to start with, and are thinking of inviting John Wanamaker to be chairman of their advisory committee. Ex-Chief Justice Agnew, Judge White and Ex-Attorney General Henry W. Palmer will give them all the law they want. In point of fact, Judge Agnew is already doing this for them. To day I heard an eminent lawyer -- one ranking among the first -- rather go for the venerable ex-chief's utterances.

"Why," said he, "the Judge is writing unofficial law tracts for these amendment folk, that, while they may make these people happy, would make a judicious constitutional lawyer grieve. His last unofficial dictum would not only make a horse grin, but would cause a whole squadron of cavalry to laugh. For instance, he says sweet cider, made by art of man out of crushed apple, is without the amendment, but that if allowed to stand and nature take effect it becomes hard cider and within the pains and penalties of the amendment. If this does not seem like entering an injunction against the laws of God I do not know what is. Again the Chief Justice has boxed over in another of his papers the great Cooley. But it only shows where fanaticism can land good men."

New Mode of Voting.

A bill has been introduced in the legislature to adopt the Australian system of voting in this state. By it all the voting is done in a room fitted up for the purpose, into which but few persons will be permitted to enter at one time. Upon entering the room the voter receives from two election officers appointed from opposing political parties an official ticket, printed at the public expense, containing the names of all the candidates nominated by the various parties for the respective offices. He then steps behind a guard rail into a private shelf apartment where he marks a cross in a blank space opposite the name of the person for whom he wishes to vote. After thus quietly preparing his ticket the voter steps to the inspector, who deposits the ballot in the box, then leaves the room. All the tickets are officially stamped on the back, only one is given to each voter and if in preparing his spoils he must return it before he can get another. If the voter is unable to read or from any other cause is unfitted to make up his ticket a sworn official enters the booth with him. The details are long to print but very simple, and as the system is as near being a perfect preventive of fraud as can well be desired, and will prevent all undue influence at the polls and corruption on election day ought to become a law.

The four new States will bring an area about equal to that of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky, and Indiana combined. It is an area three times as great as the British Islands, more than three times as great as Italy, more than a hundred and fifty thousand square miles in excess of Germany. A very thriving area it all is, too, which will soon add to the census wondrous figures of products and population as well as of acres.

The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania has decided that the State law limiting damages recoverable from corporations for injuries resulting in death to a maximum of $5000 is unconstitutional, the State Constitution declaring that no act of the Legislature shall limit the amount. This decision reverses one of ten years' standing, Judge Paxon delivering the opinion in each case.

Spring Mills.

Mr. Daniel Bitner and family have returned to their home in Nebraska.

W. C. Horner expects to leave for the far west the last of this week.

Mrs. E. F. Wolf is on the sick list.

W. P. Hosterman has resumed his duties in the school room after a two week's vacation, caused by an attack of measles.

A number of citizens of this place are making efforts to have the hotel building, formerly occupied by John H. Bibby, turned into a school building. They want to establish a first class select school or Academic institute. They would like to secure Prof. Lieb as principal, and at their request, he made a visit to this place one day last week. It is not likely, however, that the citizens of Bellefonte, will let him leave them, as they know too well what a treasure they have in him as the principal of their schools. He was the guest of Prof. Wolf during his visit here.

Walnut Grove.

Misses Amanda Meyer and Jennie Galbraith were to Spring Mills over Sunday.

Mrs. Cyrus Durst left on Monday for a visit to her parents and other relatives at Glen Iron.

The young man who lost a hat on a bet had better travel up the road and hand over his hat; you lost this time C., no getting out of it, two against one.

Messrs. Wm. H. and David Bohn attended the festival at Lemoat on Saturday evening.

Mr. John Toner, of Millfin county, has been visiting at Samuel M'Clintock's the past week.

Miss Lizzie Tyson, of Benore, and Miss Bess Searson spent Monday with Cora E. Durst.

The party who is raising false reports and circulating them about some of our young people, had better attend to their own affairs, is the opinion of not only a few.

Penn Township.

This week it becomes my sad duty to announce the death and burial of Sarah Smith, of Smithville. I had made mention of her sickness before, and at times she had rallied some, but still grew worse until last Thursday morning when the grim messenger was the victor. She was the widow of Henry Smith who died about 8 years ago, and since his death she lived mostly by herself. The time Mary Smith, her mother-in-law, was sick, four weeks ago, Sarah was one of her attendants, and the day before Mary was buried, Sarah took sick, and now she lies in her silent grave. She was a member of the Lutheran church and her funeral services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. Deitzler, on Sunday forenoon, when he preached a very influential sermon from the text, "I bow down heavily, as one that mourneth for his mother," Psalms 35 14, after which she was taken to Fairview cemetery for burial. She had reached the age of 59 years and 21 days. Peace to her ashes.

At this writing a number of farmers are busy filling their ice houses.

The long wished for German exhibition came off at last, on last Friday evening, as announced, and long before the time for opening the hall, there were more people with tickets than the hall would hold and nearly as many were left out as were in -- your correspondent being one of the left ones, therefore I am unable to give an account but of those who were in speak very highly of it. They will have it over again this Saturday evening and give the rest a chance to hear it.

Rev. Deitzler's protracted meeting in the Penns Creek church, is still in progress and he is meeting with very good success. 23 souls have already yielded to the warnings of the Holy Spirit. May many more yet seek to know and find their Redeemer.

We understand that M. C. Gepheart, one of Millheim's rising young men, who conducts a large and fine music store, has purchased the Journal book and stationery store which he intends to move and unite with his music store.

Benj. Frankensperger and wife spent part of last and part of this week in Nittany valley visiting relatives and friends.

Quite a number of our folks were up to John Decker's sale. We were surprised to find one of our commissioners way back in the mountains, but he is none of ours, he belongs to the other tribe, Fiedler's goat tribe, and they all stick in the mountains.

Legislative.

In the house, among the bills reported were the following:

Designing the character of the security to be given by corporations or individuals taking or injuring private property in the exercise of the right of eminent domain; making the first Monday of September a legal holiday to be known as Labor Day (negative recommendation); providing for jury trials before justices of the peace and aldermen.

The amendment to the constitution abolishing the poll tax came up on final passage and went through by 142 yeas and one nay, the single nay being Mr. Stocking of Washington.

The Dry Count.

Centre county prohibitionists are wheeling into line for the June battle, and if they can maintain their present enthusiasm and don't let "dry" out they will likely carry old Centre by a handsome majority for the amendment. The ball has been opened and the army of prohibition is ready to attack the "spirits." There will be a lively campaign for the June battle, as much so, we opine, as the old parties were battling for the court-house places.

Death of Mr. A. C. Hinton.

Mr. A. C. Hinton, of Moshanon, died a few days ago. He was a well known citizen of this county, and was a lumberman. His death was caused by erysipelas, and occurred on Saturday night. He had not been ill very long as it was only a short time ago he was in this place apparently in excellent health. He was at one time a county commissioner and a staunch Democrat. It is not two weeks since we met Aust in Bellefonte, apparently well and cheerful as usual.

Points for Prohibition.

The liquor traffic, broadly defined, is the business of making and selling distilled and fermented liquors. Prohibition does not usually cover all phases of the liquor traffic. There are proper uses for alcohol and wines and perhaps a few other liquors. Alcohol is used extensively for medical, art, scientific and industrial purposes. Wines are used in sickness and in the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. With these exceptions, some of which are necessary and all are allowable, State prohibition forbids all manufacture and sale of all distilled and fermented liquors. The liquor traffic as condemned is the making and selling for drinking purposes of all intoxicants. It is to the making and selling, not to the drinking, that prohibition applies.

The moral right of prohibition of the liquor traffic as thus defined does not rest upon the wrong of drinking. It is not a sin per se to drink a glass of liquor, and if it is not a sin per se to sell a glass of liquor, nor is it a sin per se to make a glass of liquor. If it were a sin per se to drink or sell, or make a glass of liquor, it would be as wrong to license it, under any circumstances, as it would be to license prostitution, which is a sin per se. The moral right of prohibition rests upon the indubitable fact that the liquor traffic produces an enormous train of evils. It aggravates existing evils. That which affects the individual in all his relations affects the society of which he is a member and the state of which he is a citizen. The purpose of prohibition is to remove the cause of these evils.

A Williamsport woman of unsavory reputation has attempted to get S. Q. Mingle, of that town, into trouble, which the paper thinks is for purposes of blackmail. Sampeon has resolved to face the music and show that it is a set up job of the female.

They have an immense stock of new goods which embrace everything in the line of foot wear. Lumbermen's gum boots, and all kinds of boots for teamsters, and workmen, at lower prices than ever. Ladies' and gents' dress shoes and in fact anything you want to see in the line of boots and shoes at low prices, at Powers' shoe store, Bellefonte.

--- The predominating feature of the Bellefonte election was the settlement of the question as to whether the cows should be permitted to make pasture lots of the streets of Bellefonte. This question has occasioned no little agitation in the past in council, socially and through the local press but when it came up for a final settlement by a vote of the people the cows were given full permission to roam at their own sweet will to and whenever their fancy is led by an overwhelming majority of 302, the cows received by any candidate on the ticket, so that now it will be -- cows, of course.
