The Legislature.

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 8. The sessions of senate and house Wednesday night were exceedingly uninteresting, the members of the legislature showing no disposition to work after their experience at the inauguration. In the house Representative Fow, of Philadelphia, introduced a bill which he thinks will inaugurate a needed reform in the appropriation of moneys by the state. Under existing law the money is drawn from the treasury in bulk, and, as a consequence, a surplus occasionally remains in the hands of managers of institutions. Under Fow's bill the money appropriated can only be drawn out of the treasury as it is required.

The senate Thursday passed the special pro-hibitory amendment election bill, by a vote of 29 to 11. A resolution was introduced and adopted in both houses congratulating Gen. Simon Cameron on having reached his 90th birthday, and providing that the legislature in a body call upon him Friday at his resi-

Mr. Lafferty's "poel" bill came up on second reading in the house Thursday and was passed after a lively debate. The bill legalizes pool selling and wagering on horse races within the inclosed grounds of agricultural and horticultural societies and driving park associations. It is made optional with directors of any society or association whether or not pools shall be sold on their race tracks. The bill providing for the holding of the special election on the prohibition amen iment to the constitution was received from the senate as amended by that body. The amendment was read, and many other amendments of a technical character were made by Mr. Dravo. Mr. Hassett questioned the constitutionality of the bill, because it contained two distinct subjects, and raised the point of or-The speaker ruled that the subjects could be properly considered at one time. Mr. Hassett gave notice that when the bill same up before the house he would again raise the estion and call for the yeas and nays. The bill went over for printing.

The bill providing for the conduct of the special election, June 18, when the prohibitory tution are to be voted upon, was sent to the governor Friday. The house Friday morning concurred in the senate amendments to the bill. It was then sent to the senate, which agreed to the house's amendments. High Water, PHILADELPHIA, March 6.-The waters of the Delaware and Schuylkill rivers and the Wissahickon creek are much swollen in consequence of the heavy rain storm which began on Saturday evening. At Manayunk the Schuylkill rose fourteen feet above its level, and a number of manufactories were compelled to suspend operations. In the Delaware river and bay the storm is said to have been unusually severe.

HARRISBURG, March 5.—The rain bas caused a material rise in the river and smaller streams in this locality. Paxton creek, which flows through the city, has overflowed its banks and inundated the lowlands, and Rutherford's dam, a mile east of town, has burst, entailing a considerable loss.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., March 5 .- The rain has swollen the streams running through here to a dangerous height. The lowlands on the eastern side of the town are all under water, and the creek is still rising. The track of the Western Maryland railroad between Chambersburg and Waynesboro is under water for several miles and all trains are delayed.

READING, Pa., March 7.-Iron men in this section are much put out by the failure of the Reading iron works. The Keystone rolling mill, in this city, closed for want of orders. Their entire product was taken by the Reading works. The Reading mills at Gibraltar and Naomi, near here, closed for the same reason. Over 600 hands are thrown out of employment. The Reading works are running as usual, but an order issued by the Reading Railroad company, which stops the shipment to the suspended firm of coal, ore, iron, lime, etc., for the mines, etc., controlled by the railroad company, will cause it to close for want of supplies if continued in Dozens Dying of Diphtheria. PITTSBURG, March 9. - An epidemic of diphtheria has prevailed at Gallitzin since November, and about 100 deaths from this disease alone have occurred during that time in a total population of 2,000, the average having been five deaths a week. The disease is attributed to the disregard of the common rules of sanitation. The town has no water supply. The outhouses and wells stand close together, and since the McCoy mines have been opened more than half the wells in the town have gone dry. The inhabitants have used water from the few living wells, which have become impure. Of this even the phyaicians were unaware until the epidemic broke out. Some of the victims have been afflicted with a black vomit, and death en-

Milwaukee Mobs Prevented from Wholesale Lynching by the Police.

MILWAUKER, Wis., March 12.—The Chinese in Milwaukee are fleeing for their lives. An anti-Chinese crusade has set in, brought about by recent revelations regarding the wholesale debauchery of young children in some of the laundries of the city. On last Thursday Sam Yip Ja, who keeps a laundry on Fourth street, and Ha Ding, whose laundry is on Fifth street, were arrested for as-saulting a number of little girls. The police, with Superintendent Whitehead, of the Humane society, began an investigation of the case. Within twenty-four hours they had discovered twenty-two children, ranging from 8 to 13 years of age, who had been subjected to treatment of the most revolting kind from the two Chinese On Saturday the two Chinese were taken down to the criminal court for examination. They were taken down before the crowd had gathered. When they were returned to jail about 1,000 people followed, shouting and yelling. The determined front shown by the police prevented a lynching. Fearing trouble, Sheriff Burnham yester-May took the two prisoners down to the city hall very early. It was well he did. An hour later a mob of 3,000 people filled the streets within two blocks of the court room. They stood patiently waiting hour by hour. They were not allowed to congregate near the city hall, but were kept moving by the Sheriff Burnham, instead of taking the prisoners to the jail, locked them up in the jury room under a strong guard. Cheated out of its prey, the crowd began gradually to disperse. About 200 men passed up Chestnut street and gutted a laundry near Sixth street. The two inmates fled for their lives out of a rear door. The mob then dispersed before the police arrived.

The concentration of the police near the city hall left the nortwest part of the city unprotected. This opportunity was taken advantage of by mobs to wreck six or eight laundries scattered over that section. There were no collisions with the police, as the mob invariably dispersed as soon as its work was

Early in the evening an attack was made on a laundry near Fifth street on Wells. The entire front of the building was stove in. Another mob gathered on Grand avenue, but before it could do much damage was dispersed by the police. It is not safe for a Chinese to appear on the streets. One was chased into the St, Paul depot by a mob of 200 men and boys, and protected with difficulty. Nearly every laundry in the city has one or more policemen standing guard over it.

So far the mobs have been content to wreck the laundries. The Germans are slow to move and are very conservative. The greatest excitement is in the German wards. When their blood is up wrecking laundries will not INDIANAPOLIS, March 12 .- A joint comnittee of the house and senate made a report on the insans hospital, the members being equally divided between the two parties and the report was unanimous. Contracts for goods were not awarded according to law, the members of the board and some of the contractors were in collusion and the greatest abuses existed in every department of the institution. The request was approved by the two houses.

Searching for the Missing Clergyman. Boston, March 12.-The police have thornighly dragged the Charles river basin, between Craigle's and West Boston bridges, without finding any trace of the body of the Rev. Charles Hudson Smith, who has been missing from Dorchester since Saturday, and whose hat was found near the Charles river embankment at the foot of Allen street. The railing at that point had been newly painted, and from the fact that it bears no marks of hands or feet convinces the police that Mr. Smith did not drown himself at that place,

Horrible Atrocities Committed by Legitime's Forces on Vanquished Formen. NEW YORK, March 11. - Capt. Fraser, of the steamer Coban, just arrived from Port de Paix, gives an account of a battle between the forces of Legitime and Hyppolite Capt. Fraser said he found Port de Paix in a wretchedly filthy condition, but no worse than he had often seen Port au Prince. Half naked soldiers patrolled the streets. Provisions were high and the people were apparently subsisting chiefly on sugar cane and yams. Pork sold at $35 per barrel, flour brought $18 per barrel and Irish potatoes were not to be had at any price. Occasionally a small schooner load of salt came in and it sold at a good figure.

On March 1, two days before the Coban sailed for New York, the pilot came on board and told about a big battle reported to have taken place somewhere on the west coast. Between 200 and 300 were reported to be killed. The people in Port de Paix were greatly excited, but they had no definite information except that the slaughter was supposed to have occurred on or about

A copy of La Patrie, published at Gonaives, dated Feb. 23, gives an account of the battle at Grand Saline, in which Gen. Hyppolite's troops were reported to have been victorious. La Patrie, however, asserts that the southern troops were the victors, and that after having carried the outposts by assault and taken a large number of prisoners they killed them without mercy. The poor wretches were bayoneted even while crying for quarter. After this slaughter a scene of rapine followed, the details of which, according to La Patrie, are indescribable. The dead were ruthlessly robbed and the bodies kicked to one side afterward by the despoilers.

Gen. Piquant, commanding Legitime's forces, made no effort to stop his men in their flendish course, and after satisfying their brutal passions to the utmost the houses were fired and the town laid in ashes.

This change of front is made. it is alleged, in view of the recent events which have made it desirable, if not absolutely necessary, for the prosecution to make further attempts to bolster up its case so that demolish it. There is not much left of The Times' original indictment against the Parnellites as it is, and there will likely remain next to nothing of the vaunted accusations when the final adjournment takes place.
