A RAILWAY ENTERPRISE.

A New Reading Railroad Branch Soon to

Be Opened. WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., June 22.—The branch of the Reading railroad from Rupert to Bloomsburg is nearly completed, and the line will be finished and opened for traffic within a month or so. The line has been graded throughout, and is now ready for the rails. A bridge across Fishing creek remains to be built, but the contracts have been given out for this, and the structure will be up by the time the rails are laid. 'At Blooms burg the Reading will connect with the Bloomsburg and Sullivan road, and it was to get this traffic that the Reading was built.

Col. B. K. Jamison and other Philadelphia capitalists who control the Bloomsburg and Sullivan road, are ar-ranging for the purchase of 45,000 acres of land adjacent to the road, in addition to the 15,000 acres already owned by Col. Jamison and his associates. The land is heavily timbered, principally with pine, and there is said to be enough timber standing on the 60,000 acres to give traffic to the Bloomsburg and Sullivan road for years to come. It is the intention to erect sawmills on the line of the road and convert the logs into lumber, which will be shipped to market over the Reading road. The tract of land in question is said to be the nearest to market of any uncut timber land in eastern Pennsylvania. The Reading is expected to derive a large revenue from the new district, and will be able to secure at a moderate cost timber for its mines.

As all of the Yale freshmen crew are in the class of 1892, they are much younger and less mature than their opponents from the Pennsylvania professional schools.

FIRE AT JOHNSTOWN

Flames Threaten the Ruins of the Stricken City.

TWENTY-FIVE HOUSES BURNED.

The Flames Started in a Boys' Bonfire and Extinguished After a Hot Fight Lasting Over Two Hours-The Panic Stricken Populace Prepare to Desert

Johnstown, Pa., June 25.-It was only due to the direction of the wind that the remains of Johnstown were not entirely wiped out by fire yester-day afternoon. The blaze began with the First ward school housa, which stood on the bank of Stony creek. That build-ing stood on the upper side of the dismal waste which the torrent of water swept clear across the town. Close by the school building, all jumbled up together, were about thirty buildings, some of them in a good state of preservation and inhabited. Next to these houses was a street, the only one not yet cleared of debris, and on the opposite side was a wide stretch of ground tightly packed with frame buildings in all manner of decrepit attitudes. Still further above were some of the best preserved buildings in the city.

The Populace Panic Stricken. Had the wind carried the flame in the opposite direction, fire would have de-stroyed what the flood had left; as it was the fire caused a veritable panic in the immediate neighborhood, as it enveloped one house after another in rapid succession. One of the abandoned houses had been a hardware store and the explosion of a keg of powder in it sent the burning roof flying in frag-ments, thus increasing the danger.

Men were put to work smothering the bonfires that stretched across the open space, with earth and in this manner cut off the fire line of communication to the threatened buildings, whose occupants were already moving the remnants of their furniture. This banking the bonfires with earth and the veering of the wind so that the burning embers were carried into Stony creek ended the danger in this direction.

A General Stampede. On the other side the fire met no opposition until it had reached the ruin packed street. The militia and a gang of laborers worked hard at clearing the street and then tore down a number of houses on the opposite side. By this time the streams of water from the fire engines had their effect and the fire was under control after burning for two hours, and twenty-five or thirty houses were in ashes.

The whole population of the valley turned out to watch the conflagration, and so general became the belief that everything remaining would go up in smoke that in all directions people were loading their effects on wagons prepara-tory to fleeing to the hill. The money loss will be about $35,000. The fire was caused by three small boys setting fire to a pile of rubbish.

PITTSBURG IRON CONVENTION.

The Amalgamated Association Adjourns After a Seventeen Days' Session.

PITTSBURG. June 22-The fourteenth annual convention of Amaigamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers reached a final adjournment after a session of seventeen days. William Weihe was unanimously re-elected president, William Martin re-elected secretary, and Steven Madden reappointed assistant secretary. There is but little doubt but that the wage scale as adopted by the convention and submitted to the manufacturers will be accepted by the latter without alteration The difference between the employes and managers of the Carnegie Home-stead mills remains unsettled and will probably so remain until July 1, the end of the present scale year. There is now no prospect of an amicable adjustment of the differences between the managers and their employes, and a strike is almost certain to occur at that time.

Jones & Laughlin signed the scale of the Amalgamated association for the American Iron works. This is the first firm to accept, but other signatures are expected.

Pennsylvania's New Stock. PHILADELPHIA, June 25 .- This is the last week in which the stockholders of Pennsylvania Railroad company have the right to subscribe to the new capital stock, and as the stock still remains above par, in spite of the heavy losses by the Johnstown flood, there is little doubt that all the stockholders will avail themselves of the privilege.
