THE AIR SHIP AT SEA

Aeronaut Hogan Believed to Have Met Death on the Ocean.

THE STORY TOLD BY A PILOT.

The Balloon Sighted About 200 Miles East of Atlantic City, Where It Collapsed in Sight of a Pilot Boat—A Theory of Death by Suffocation—All Hope Abandoned.

NEW YORK, July 19.—Captain Phelan, of the pilot boat Caprice, who brings news of the fate of Campbell's air ship and of E. D. Hogan, who had undertaken to steer it on a trial trip, was seen at the office of the pilot commissioners. He said:

"At 5:30 o'clock on the afternoon of Tuesday last, when we were about 150 miles southeast of Sandy Hook, running before a twenty-five mile north-easterly breeze, the lookout aloft sighted two balloons and a peculiar looking object flying near them on the surface of the ocean. One of the two balloons was to leeward of the object, which the lookout took to be a square rigger, and was bearing northward. The second balloon was bearing east-south-east, and a half after 6 made her out to be a balloon, about 50 to 60 feet in diameter. She was in longitude 71° 30', latitude 30° 46'.

The Balloon Breaks Away. "As it was getting dark and we knew that probably some one was in danger in the balloon, we crowded on extra sail and fairly flew over the water towards it. At about 7 o'clock, one hour and a half after we had first sighted the balloon, when we were about 100 yards from it, the balloon parted from the heavy object in the water, which it had been dragging along and flew up into the air.

"When several hundred feet above the surface of the sea it was caught in the northwest wind and went forward east southeast at the rate of about twenty-five miles an hour. When we first sighted the balloon and drew close enough to make her out she was egg shaped and tugging very hard at what must have been the line. About five ropes held her to the car, which was buried several feet under water. The balloon was assuming all kinds of shapes, inflating and collapsing.

Where is Hogan? "If Professor Hogan was in the balloon when we came up with her, then he was drowned. Assistance could not have been rendered to him by the schooner I spoke of as having been to leeward and bound northward. It is not at all improbable that the schooner bound east southeast may have something to say when she arrives at her destination. We cruised over the spot in which the balloon and its car parted. There were no signs of life, no evidence that a human being had found his death in the water. There were no floating objects. Everything was as quiet and as calm as a mill pond. At the time a heavy haze prevailed, though the sky was clear."

A CURIOUS CASUALTY.

Four Lives Lost Under Most Peculiar Circumstances at Cambridge, N. H.

LEWIS, N. H., July 18.—At 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon four men lost their lives in this city under peculiar circumstances. A watch was dropped in a cess pool and the men were endeavoring to recover it. They dug a large hole at the side of the pool. This hole was filled with water by the rain. One man stood on a ladder above the water and made an opening into the cess pool. The foul air and gas rushed out and overcame him and he fell into the water. A friend went to his assistance and was likewise overcome. One by one seven men fell into the water. They were rescued, some by men who afterwards perished in attempting to save the others.

The dead are James Crawford, bricklayer; Alfred Knicker, cooper; John Cleary, blanchard; and Frank Maloney, plasterer. Crawford and Cleary were married.

JACK THE RIPPER.

Another Added to the Victims of the Whitechapel Fiend—Intense Excitement in East End of London.

LONDON, July 17.—One more murder has been added to the long list credited to Jack the Ripper in Whitechapel. The body of a woman, evidently one of the disreputable frequenters of the district, was found in Castle alley last night only a short distance from where the other murders were committed. The body was horribly mutilated and bears undoubted evidence of the work of the fiend whose atrocities in Whitechapel have terrorized the whole district.

The police are as far as ever from a clue to the identity of the murderer and seem perfectly paralyzed. The excitement throughout Whitechapel where the news of the discovery of a fresh victim of the "Ripper" has spread with lightning like rapidity is at fever heat.

Graham's Barrel Went to Pieces.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 22.—Carlie D. Graham sent another so-called "life barrel" over the falls at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and it met the same fate as the one sent over the cataraact on June 23. The barrel was seen to go over the falls but must have had several ribs badly shattered, for after emerging from the mass of whirling water it quickly went to pieces. Graham had announced that if the barrel came out all right he would make the trip himself. In the near future he will construct another barrel of more strength than the two already sent over.

The Pair Overpowered.

Word was passed along the river and fifteen to twenty men gathered at a designated place and galloped to the cabin of Averill and Kate Maxwell without unnecessary noise. The rustlers were at home and a peep through a window disclosed the thieves and a boy in their employ sitting beside a rude fireplace smoking cigarettes. As half a dozen men rushed into the room a Winchester was poked through each window and a command to throw up their hands given with unmistakable earnestness. The trio sprang for their weapons, but were quickly overpowered.

Couldn't Gag the Woman.

An attempt was made to gag her, but the rustling was so violent that this was abandoned. She called for her own horse to ride to the tree selected for a scaffold, and vaulted astride the animal's back from the ground. Averill did not resist, and the boy, who had been told that he would not be harmed, followed. The end of the same rope was fastened about the necks of the rustlers as they sat in their saddles. The boy made a pass with a knife at the man who was preparing Kate for hanging. He was knocked insensible by a blow with the butt of a revolver. The lad was a nephew of the bandit queen.

Their Dying Request.

When preparations for the execution had been completed Averill and the woman were asked to speak. The man spoke only of his office, saying that he did not wish a certain man to be his successor. He was promised the influence of the party for another candidate. Kate made quite an address. She wished the affair kept as quiet as possible, desiring that her mother be kept in ignorance of her disgraceful career and tragic death. It was useless to deny that their herd had been stolen from the ranchmen of that section, but if they did not wish to divide it among themselves she would like to have it sold and the money given to a home for wayward girls.

She Died Cursing.

Kate bade her nephew good-by and commenced to deliver a blasphemous harangue. The horses were led from under the park while Kate was still cursing. Both kicked in lively style for ten or fifteen minutes. A few bullets were fired into Averill's body and the rustlers rode away. It is doubtful if an inquest will be held and the executioners have no fears of trouble. The cattle men have been forced to this and more hangings will follow unless there is less stealing.

STRUNG UPTOGETHER

Kate Maxwell and James Averill Lynched by Cowboys.

THE RANGE QUEEN DIED GAME.

The Bodies of the Celebrated Cattle Queen and Her Guilty Partner Dangled from the Same Limb—They Stole Their Neighbors' Cattle—The Woman's Horrible Blasphemy—A Vacancy in the Sweetwater Postoffice.

CHEYENNE, W. T., July 23.—James Averill and the notorious cattle queen, Kate Maxwell, have been lynched by cowboys. The bodies of the rustler and range queen dangled from the same limb of a cottonwood tree.

The scene of the lawless but justifiable deed of the midnight riders is on the Sweetwater river, in Carbon county, near Independence Rock, a landmark made historical during the rush overland to the California gold fields.

Averill was postmaster at Sweetwater. The Range Queen's Accomplishments. Kate Maxwell was the heroine of a sensational story which appeared in the newspapers throughout the country three months ago, when she raided a gambling house and recovered a large sum of money won from her employes.

Stockmen of the Sweetwater region have been the victims of cattle thieves for years. On account of prejudice against the large outlaws it has been impossible to convict on this charge, and the rustlers have become very bold. Averill carried his remarkable partner have been very active in thieving. The woman could hold her own on the range, riding like a demon, shooting on the slightest pretext and handling the lariat and branding iron with the skill of the most expert vaquero.

The Vigilantes Decide to Act.

Fifty freshly branded yearling steers were counted in the Averill and Maxwell herds Saturday morning. A stock detective whose suspicions were aroused was driven from the place when he was noticed viewing the stolen property. This circumstance was reported to the ranchmen, who determined to rid the country of the desperate pair. Averill and the woman were several times between ordered to emigrate or cease appropriating cattle, but had disregarded all warnings.

After her celebrated gambling house escapade Mrs. Maxwell degenerated from a picturesque western character into a reckless spiteful virago of loose morals and low character. She followed, but continued partnership with the postmaster.
