—Lock Haven Democrat of September 13: We are called on today to record a very sad occurrence, being the drowning in the river between 10 and 11 o'clock this forenoon of little Frank Gearhart, youngest son of C. R. Gearhart, the insurance agent. The little boy was playing just above the Fallon house on the river's edge where Mr. Schuyler has built a sort of wharf, which is rip-rapped on either side with stone, and only one log of which, owing to the high water, stood above the current. In walking on this log to go from one end to the other, the poor little fellow fell into the water and sank. Several persons witnessed the occurrence and did what they could to rescue him, but it was too late. He went down the last time with his hands together as one in the act of prayer and that was the final scene in the sad and heart-breaking tragedy.

THE PATRONS

THE NEW GROUNDS A SUCCESS.

STORM ON TUESDAY

Bad Weather Prevented A Larger Attendance. The Storm Tuesday Morning Blew Down Many Tents A Larger and Finer Exhibit Than Ever Before.

The grange picnic opened on Monday, in their 25 acre purchase near Kurtz' mill, where a park has been planted and a dozen buildings erected and over 200 state tents set up. The grounds are on an eminence, the summit of the valley and within the borough limits of Centre Hall, and bordering on the railroad. In a few years, when the young trees are large enough to afford shade, the one thing needed will be supplied, and the grounds be all that could be desired.

The heads of the various departments to get all in readiness for this week's gathering did their duty well and showed good judgment, and went ahead with energy in the brief time in which to do their work, and Monday, 15, found all in readiness for the big picnic.

Mr. John Dauberman, superintendent of improvements, managed the erection of buildings and the water supply and his indefatigable efforts made a success of it, and up to this time had the heaviest part of the work.

Capt. George M. Boal, superintendent of camp, made admirable arrangements, for having every thing convenient, and his planning is faultless and displays excellent judgment.

Mr. George Dale had charge of the exhibitors' department, and those having any display to make could not have been better suited for that purpose.

The live stock department in charge of George Gingerich, received every attention from that gentleman and exhibitors will find nothing undone for that class of exhibits.

Mr. J. J. Arney, in charge of sutler privileges and amusements, had all arrangements complete for boarding and refreshment stands, music, shows etc.

With all these heads of committees working together harmoniously all work went on successfully.

We might add that the real opening of the picnic was on 5, when bro. Rhone flitted to the ground with camp equipage and cooking utensils, as the first inhabitant of the grounds. After that we may add the merry-go-round, was the first on the ground, the flying jenny having arrived and planted itself on Thursday of last week, ready for a swing around the circle. To bro. Rhone and the merry-go-round must therefore be accorded the honor of being the first occupants of grange park.

Monday opened threateningly and cast a gloomy look upon all. The morning being cloudy and cool with threatening rain all forenoon, but which broke about noon allowing the sun to shine. The exhibitors were all busy at work getting things in shape for display, and all morning parties who had engaged tents were arriving with camp equipage from all parts with loaded wagons and vans. The park presented an animated and lively appearance. Wagons darting hither and thither and everyone seemed to have something to do. The trains Monday were heavily loaded with baggage and passengers, the specials not running until Tuesday. The entire day was passed in fixing up and getting things in ship shape for the opening, Tuesday. The speakers tent, which the Cumberland valley railroad kindly loaned the management was erected, along with many small ones for booths, etc.

Following is a list of those occupying tents on the grounds:

The ground at night with its scores of lights, when viewed from a distance presented a fine sight, like a little city illuminated. Alas, Monday night a heavy rain storm set in, which drenched the grounds and played havoc with some of the tents, blowing some over and drenching the occupants of others with rain. The bicycle merry-go-round canvas tent was also blown down.

The storm was terrific in its force and dismantled many private tents. The bicycle carousel tent was torn almost to shreds, while the auditorium flapped helplessly and had to be reconstructed Tuesday morning. Many of the private tents and shops were unhoused and the heavy rain drenched everything completely, doing much damage to property. The booths suffered severely from the driven rain, soaking their stock and with some ruining it. A slight rain was falling all morning Tuesday but near noon the sky became clear and the sun shone. The grounds were very muddy and swampy, but the management allowed no vehicles to pass through except when absolutely necessary thereby avoiding having it cut up.

An efficient police force was appointed. Five men patrolled the ground at night, but seem to have little to do. Police headquarters are established near headquarters in a tent. The first arrest was made Tuesday morning on complaint of a young man who had lost his watch, and accused his bed fellow of purloining it. Policeman David Sweetwood arrested the accused and he was brought before squire Boal, but for want of sufficient evidence, the accused was discharged. He was searched, but the watch was not found in his possession.

The specials began running Tuesday morning, but brought in few passengers in the forenoon. It was rather quiet Tuesday on account of the inauspicious weather. Following is the list of the exhibitors on the ground: J. B. Shannon, Philadelphia, general hardware, Mariette, Masten & Allen, Philad., clothing, Thornton Barnes, Philad., groceries, D. Garman & Son, Bellefonte, dry goods, etc., Taylor, Aultman & Co., Akron, Ohio, reapers and mowers, D. F. Luse, Centre Hall, patent buggy top, Henry Booser, Centre Hall, farm implements, Adriance and Platt Co., Poughkeepsie, N. Y., farming machinery, Peter Hoffer, Centre Hall, farming implements, McCalmont & Co., Bellefonte, wagons, farming implements, etc., Walter A. Wood and Co., reapers and binders, Allen, Philad., farm implements, E. Ross & Co., Cumberland Co., embroidery machine, W. W. Boob, Coburn, road carts, T. P. Vonada, Rebersburg, road carts, J. J. Woodland, patent fence, Grove, patent fence, Vannell, Mingle & Co., Centre Hall, implements, Joseph R. Hill, wax flowers, T. R. Krape, Rebersburg, organs, Montgomery & Co., Bellefonte, clothing, Penna. State College, experiment station, Guiser Manufacturing Co., Pa., implements, J. R. Smith and Co., Milton, pianos and organs.

Wednesday opened cloudy with a slight sprinkle of rain, which no doubt kept scores at home, still the roads were full of vehicles from all directions and four morning trains were filled with visitors, and the ground soon showed the life of a little city.

Wednesday afternoon was fine and there were not less than 8000 people on the ground, and over a mile of rigs hitched to the fence. The most of visitors seem to be pleased with the ground and its arrangement. There is ample room for tying any number of horses at the fence encircling the ground, which is accessible from Church street, from Main street at the Presbyterian church, and also from near the depot, and there is perfect safety against any jam of vehicles.

Dedication. At 10 a. m. the dedication ceremony was held in the large tent, and the exercises were appropriate. The auditorium was crowded. The music excellent by the local choir, with Miss Annie Keller presiding at the organ.

The chairman of the committee then handed over the grounds to the county grange. Mr. Isaac Frain, master of the county grange, received the gift in the name of the organization and in an appropriate address thanked the committee for the good work, and thanked the great Master of the grange above for His mercies and for the good will shown the order in its entire existence, vouchsafing peace and prosperity in all its doing.

The religious services connected with the ritual were conducted by the Chaplain, Col. James Weaver. Miss May Rhone as Florist, made a short address, Pomona, which represented fruits was personated by Mrs. Frank Brown. Series, by Mrs. Dauberman. Mr. Downing then read a paper entitled "Let us Reason Together." The large tent was crowded and the services were very impressive.

Col. Weaver, leader of the county grange, delivered an address which was well received.

Grumbings. Having given a commendable account of the picnic ground and its arrangement—which is admirable and almost faultless in our opinion, and a credit to the good taste of Messrs. Dauberman, Boal, Arney, Dale and Gingerich, the managers of the different departments. No committee could have performed its duties with better satisfaction, in the main, than did these gentlemen.

Fault is found because the woods is abandoned and the open field taken where there is no shade. This will be obviated in a few years when the young trees will rise into a beautiful park, and the spot have every needed charm.

Some complain that the charges for stands were exorbitant. Learn to bear a little in this, we would say—the price for the ground was high, the expense of planting several hundred trees, putting up buildings, etc., was large, and when all is completed, charges for future exhibitions may be satisfactory, you can't please all.

Several grangers felt hurt and complained that non-grangers and favorites of the worthy master, were given the front tents and best quarters, while farmers for whom there is a great plea made from that quarter, were stuck back in the rear. We give this as it was made direct to us, and if true, is the one complaint of all others that we can see no excuse for. It is just the kind of small favoritism that might be looked for from the party charged with it.

Scholl-Williams.

Sunday evening last, the Union church at Farmers Mills, was the scene of a pretty wedding. Mr. John Scholl, son of William Scholl, about two miles east of town, was united in marriage to Miss Sadie C. Williams, of near Spring Mills. The church was crowded almost to overflowing, despite the threatening weather. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fischer. At half past seven the wedding party entered the church and proceeded down the aisle, J. Witmer Wolfe performing the wedding march. Mr. Thomas Williams and Mr. Charles Hason as groomsmen and Miss Sadie Scholl sister of the groom, and Miss Blanche Deek as bridesmaids. The groom is an employe at the Altoona electric light station and is well known in this section. The bride is a popular and interesting young lady of her section and Mr. Scholl has made a good choice in a help-mate. The Reporter extends congratulations and wishes them a life of unalloyed happiness and pleasure. They will take up their residence in Altoona.

Given a Hearing.

On Saturday last, the murderer of Harry Waterhouse was brought to court before Judge Farst on a writ of habeas corpus. The prisoner, who gives his name as John Wilson, is defended by W. F. Reeder, law partner of General Hastings and C. P. Hewes. District Attorney Meyer is assisted in the prosecution by John H. Orris. The evidence given by the four witnesses examined was entirely sufficient to prove that it is a case of murder in the first degree, and Wilson was held without bail to be tried at the November term of court. The evidence shows it was a cold-blooded murder of an innocent, unoffending person.

Death of Mr. Irvin Leech.

Mr. Irvin Leech, residing about three miles west of Centre Hall, died on Monday forenoon last. He had been afflicted the last two years with an ailment of the stomach, which of late took a more serious turn and terminated in his demise. He was a member of the Presbyterian church, and was unmarried, residing on the farm with his brother John. His age was near 70 years. During his life he had assisted in raising over one hundred barns in this section, the last few years his mind became slightly estranged at times. Thus another old resident has gone to the beyond.
