The President Returns from the West

LEAVING A TRAIL OF ELOQUENCE

In Mansfield He Lands Senator Sherman and in Canton Commends Maj. McKinley—At Alliance He Confesses That He Is Tired of Speech Making—Termination of the Tour.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—The president and party arrived here at about 9 o'clock this morning.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 14.—The time of arrival of the president's party was not generally understood by the citizens of Pittsburgh, and there were but few people upon the depot platform when the special train arrived last night.

The representatives of the city papers were accorded a brief interview. The president looked somewhat wearied and remarked concerning the remarkable October weather. He had made thirteen speeches during the day and upon reaching Washington will have traveled over 3,000 miles.

The president's train left for Washington via the Pennsylvania railroad at 8:45 o'clock. There was no speech made or demonstration of any kind while the train was in this city.

Tributes to Sherman and McKinley. In the course of the president's speech at Mansfield, O., he paid the following tribute to Senator Sherman:

I am glad to be permitted to stop at the home of your distinguished senator and my friend. I am sure, however you may differ from him in political opinion, the people of Mansfield and Ohio are proud of the eminence which he has attained in the councils of the nation and of the distinguished service which he has rendered to his country.

Getting Tired of Speaking. Alliance was the next station. The crowd here, too, was very large and enthusiastic. The president was introduced by Hon. Daniel Fording. He said: My fellow citizens there is no man in America who has harder upon their public servants than in the insatiable demand they make for public speeches.

An elaborate programme has been arranged for the entertainment of the members of the Iron and Steel Institute and the Verein Deutscher Ingenieure who arrived at the Union depot at 8 and 9 o'clock respectively this morning. They were met at the station by deputations of some of the reception and transportation committees, who escorted them to the various hotels, where quarters were already bespoken.

JUDGE MILLER DEAD

Last Hours of the Distinguished Jurist.

SOME CHARACTERISTIC TRAITS.

His Cutting Industry and Sterling Integrity—A Self Made Man. Twenty-eight Years on the Bench. Gen. Belknap's Sudden Death.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Associate Justice Miller, of the United States supreme court, who was stricken with paralysis several days ago, and whose death was looked for hourly since the time of his prostration by the fatal stroke, died last night a few minutes before 11 o'clock.

Justice Miller was stricken with paralysis last Friday afternoon, while walking from a Massachusetts street car to his home on Thomas circle. He fell down on his face, and when picked up and carried into his house was unconscious. He soon regained intelligence and appeared quite cheerful, but at no time was much hope of his recovery entertained.

Samuel Freeman Miller was born in Richmond, Ky., April 5, 1816. He graduated at the medical department of the Transylvania university in Kentucky in 1838, and practiced medicine for a few years, but afterwards became a lawyer.

In 1850 Judge Miller removed to Iowa, where he became prominent among Republicans in that state. In 1862 President Lincoln appointed him associate justice of the supreme court of the United States. He was at the time of his death the oldest justice in continuous service on the court bench.

A Hard Worker. The paralytic stroke of Justice Miller was a surprise to every one in Washington. His constitution has, apparently, been one of iron, and he has for years worked more than twelve hours out of the twenty-four. It was his habit to go into his office, at his home on Massachusetts avenue, as soon as he had finished his breakfast in the morning, and to work there upon his cases until the supreme court met at noon.

Self Educated. He started life as a drug clerk and spent three years in making prescriptions. He then went to a medical school in Kentucky and practiced medicine after he had gotten his diploma, for eight years. When he began to study law he took up the study of Latin and acquired a thorough knowledge of the language.

Justice Miller has always been a strong Republican. He made his first political speeches when he began to study law and he was an ardent follower of Henry Clay. During his long career of twenty-eight years on the bench, there has never been a whisper of scandal concerning him. He has never speculated upon his information received as a justice of the supreme court, and though he has received more than $250,000 in salaries from Uncle Sam, he has not worked the machine at both ends and made a fortune out of it.

GEN. BELKNAP DEAD.

The Remarkable Record of President Grant's Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—The autopsy has disclosed that the death of Gen. W. B. Belknap, who was found dead in bed yesterday, was due to inflammation of the inner lining of the heart.

Mrs. Belknap, who has been at Newport and other eastern seaside resorts during the summer months, but in New York city during the last few weeks, was summoned by telegraph, and also the general's son Hugh, from his home in Chicago, where he is employed in the office of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company.

William Worth Belknap was born in Newburg, N. Y., on Sept. 27, 1829. He graduated at Princeton in 1848. He then studied law, was admitted to the bar and began practice in Keokuk, Ia. When the war broke out he joined the army as major of the First Iowa volunteers. He was engaged at Shiloh, Corinth and Vicksburg, where he did good service, and also attracted attention to himself by his services in Sherman's Atlanta campaign. In July, 1864, he was promoted to be brigadier general, and in March, 1865, he received a brevet as major general and was put in command of a division.

At the conclusion of the war he was appointed collector of internal revenue in Iowa, a position which he held until October, 1869, when he entered Gen. Grant's cabinet as secretary of war. This office he held during Grant's second administration until March 7, 1876, when he resigned in consequence of the charges of corruption which made his name notorious. He was impeached and tried before the senate, the specific accusation being that he promised to appoint Caleb P. Marsh to maintain a trading establishment at Fort Sill, a military post of the United States, on consideration of a certain sum of money to be paid quarterly.

The testimony was of the most conclusive description, and the accused could only avoid conviction by pleading that the resignation before impeachment had left the senate without jurisdiction. On this technical plea he escaped, the vote being 35 to 23 against him and a two-thirds vote being necessary to absolute conviction.

An International Case. NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—The arrest of Mrs. Field and Mrs. Miller, the wives of the absconding American bankers of London—who did business under the name of Field & Co.—promise to become one of international importance, in which congress, and probably the president of the United States, may be called upon to act. They were released from custody by Judge Barrett yesterday, and Mrs. Miller passed outside the city or she was arrested by Deputy United States Marshal Bernard and taken before Commissioner Shields. He adjourned the hearing till Oct. 27.

A Dakota Bank Falls. AUBURN, Dak., Oct. 14.—The well known and established banking house of F. H. Engert & Co. closed its doors, having succeeded to Ira Barnes and J. O. Braden for the benefit of creditors.
