

A LEVEL HEAD.

The Advantage of Presence of Mind in an Emergency.

During the late strike on the New York Central Railroad, the militia were ordered to be in readiness in case of a riot, but they were not called out.

In an interview, Gov. Hill said that troops were not to be called upon except in case of an emergency. The emergency had not arisen, therefore they would not be ordered out. He remarked that this was the first great strike which he had had experience, and he did not propose to lose his head; the only point at which there had then been serious trouble was at Syracuse, and there a deputy-sheriff had lost his head and precipitated an encounter.

The strike continued several weeks and there was riotous action at various points along the road, but the civil authorities were able to cope with it without calling on the militia.

The test of a man's real ability comes when an emergency arises which makes a hasty call on his good judgment and discretion. The man who retains his presence of mind, maintains his equanimity and exercises sound discretion at such critical junctures, is to be relied on and will be put to the front.

Men with level heads have the staying qualities which do not falter in the face of danger. Otis A. Cole, of Kinsman, O., June 10th, 1890, writes: "In the fall of 1888 I was feeling very ill. I consulted a doctor and he said I had Bright's disease of the kidneys and that he would not stand in my shoes for the state of Ohio." But he did not lose courage or give up; he says: "I saw the testimonial of Mr. John Coleman, 109 Gregory street, New Haven, Conn., and I wrote to him. In due time I received an answer, stating that the testimonial that he gave was genuine and not overdrawn in any particular. I took a good many bottles of Warner's Safe Cure; I have not taken any for one year."

Gov. Hill is accounted a very successful man; he is cool and calculating and belongs to the class that do not lose their heads when emergencies arise.

FACTS FOR FARMERS.

AGRICULTURAL NOTES AND HINTS FOR THE HOUSEHOLD.

How to Make Farm Work Easier and Homes Brighter.

Our farmers, as a rule, do not make the most of the turnip crop. To get a good crop of rutabagas requires good land and careful culture, and to be sown early. Between these, the rutabagas and the flat strap-leaf kind, which are often sown broadcast among corn or in stubble, are several intermediate sorts, of which Yellow Stone and Aberdeen are examples, are very good table turnips, and nutritious for stock. They may be sown any time this month. They should be sown in drills, and if the soil is not rich, apply a dressing of superphosphate, say 300 pounds to the acre.

Apply sulphur to the grapevines, at the first appearance of mildew, and follow it up. We are surprised to find that some well-known pomologists, if they do not advise, speak favorably of ringing the vines. This is done by removing a ring of bark a quarter of an inch wide, or by twisting a wire firmly around the shoot, just below the lowest cluster. This causes early ripening and fine-looking, fruit but is destructive to flavor. Most grape-growers, with a conscience about them, look upon ringing grapes that are to be marketed in the light of a fraud. Horticultural and similar societies should speak on this matter.

The many peach orchards planted, often in the most unpromising localities, a few years ago, should this year, if ever, be "coming in." The chief trouble where peaches have heretofore been almost unknown, will be a want of pickers. The returns from peaches marketed depend largely upon proper picking. The fruit should not be at all soft nor yet too green, but in just that condition that it will be "in eating" by the time that it reaches the consumer. If the fruit will yield to slight pressure it is too ripe for the basket or crate. Over-ripe fruit should be gathered for home use or the pigs. A skilled picker must not only use his fingers but his judgment, and assort as he goes.

FARM NOTES.

The run of good pasture will bring the pigs into excellent condition for fattening.

Root crops will be infested with weeds this month, and the cultivator must be kept in use as long as the leaves will allow.

Budding may be done as soon as the bark on the stock will "run" freely, and buds in the proper condition of maturity can be had.

Heavy soils are so much improved by winter exposure that as much as possible of such soil should be plowed up this fall, and left rough for the winter.

The elm leaf-beetle.—In some localities where this pest was exceedingly abundant and destructive last year, very few or none at all are seen this summer.

Now is a good time to kill off (and eat) the mongrel fowls that have accumulated, and start anew with pure stock of whichever variety may be preferred.

Some of the best varieties of apples are very showy. Care in picking, assorting and packing will pay with them, and bring ready sale, even in years of abundance.

Strawberries.—Plants from early runners, struck in pots, may be planted as soon as strong and well established, and will usually have a very fair crop the next year.

Wean the lambs, giving them rich grass or a clover pasture. Prepare for early lambs; a Southdown makes the best cross for quality. Whatever breed is used, be sure that the ram is pure blood.

As soon as the potato tops are dead, dig the crop. Expose the potatoes to the sun as little as possible. A slight exposure even to diffused light will cause some varieties to become green and unfit for food.

As soon as blackberries and raspberries are gathered, cut away the old canes. Select new canes needed for fruiting next year, stopping their upward growth at the desired height. Treat all others as weeds.

A sun-struck cow is ruined as a milker for this season, if not forever. Avoid such a calamity, if there are no trees in the pasture, by putting up a frame and roofing it with leafy brush, for an artificial shade. Later plant trees.

Early pears ripen up very quickly, and no soft fruit should go into the package. A fruit grower should know the peculiarities, in this respect of each variety. The Bartlett, the most popular, is much improved by gathering early and ripening in the house.

Lawn sprinklers.—There are numerous varieties, but if much benefit is to result from watering it must be kept up. If grass be revived by a moderate watering, and then left to continued drought, its case will be worse than had it been left without this watering. It is very difficult for some men to place the large fruit in the bottom of the basket. While "topping" with the fruit is poor policy, it is not dishonest to make the peaches show at their best by turning the top layer so that the sunny or colored cheeks will be uppermost. Women's fingers are expert for this.

Wet and low places may often be converted into fertile meadows. Draining and cutting and burning the natural growth must, in most cases, precede the breaking-up. Such places will sometimes be found to be unsuspected store-houses of muck, which may be drawn out and allowed to dry, and finally go to the stable, barn-yard, etc.

Horses enjoy greatly a bath after work. Where there is a stream with a safe bottom easily accessible, give them and the boys a treat. But always let them cool off before bathing. Horses hard at work through the day get hardly satisfied upon grass only. Give a feed of grain before turning out to pasture, and another early in the morning.

The variety, as well as the time of sowing wheat will be decided by the experience to each locality. Sowing late to avoid the fly of course is unfavorable for a good autumnal growth, and of course brings a diminished yield. Drills are now in general use, and many have drilled the seed in rows far enough apart to allow the use of a cultivator between them, and think it pays.

In any city or other place where good horses are kept there is a ready market for rye straw, which is threshed with a flail and put up in small, neat bundles, and will often bring as much or more than the value of the grain from the same field. If sown on fairly good land, rye will make an excellent pasture, or better, can be cut for the cows; and again, it gives an excellent soiling crop in the spring.

Insects must still have attention. If the apple-worm was not poisoned early in the season, bands around the trees will be of service to entrap the worm as it seeks a place to form its cocoon. Bands of hay, bagging or other coarse fabric, or even heavy paper fastened around the trunk with a single tack, should be looked to every week or ten days. This, if supplemented by picking up all fallen fruit, will materially diminish the number of worms.

Col. Webb, of Chester, N. J., is in the ninety-sixth year of his age. He can stand upon a chair, bend backward, touch his head upon the floor and rise up again without aid of his hands. He goes fishing nearly every day in the Black river, stands in the water up to his knees from morning until night, and sometimes lands as many as fifty catfish a day.

Hints to Housekeepers.
He was a thin man, so thin that his clothes did not touch him, particularly around the waist. He shuffled into the World office, took a seat and said: "See newspapers are taking considerable interest in kitchen economy, and the many letters from housewives describing how they furnish their tables and the cost thereof are read by me with much interest. My wife asked me if I wouldn't call and tell you how she manages to supply our table on seven dollars a month."
"How many dollars?" asked the reporter.
"Seven dollars," said the man and then proceeded:
"In the first place, my wife doesn't keep a girl. She is not strong enough to do the additional work that would be required, and so she gets along without one. We live in the top flat, and by means of an improved apple-picker we gather a great many apples from the roof for household purposes. The children are quite fond of them. We find also that snow pudding makes a very nice and economical dessert, but we have not had much pudding this winter on account of the mild weather.
The reporter made a note of it.
"If you use discretion, and buy when the Meat Inspector is not around you can get a piece of meat at the butcher's for five cents that will last for a month. This can be prepared in many ways, and though you keep a dog he will not touch it; therefore, all the nutriment contained in it goes to the family."
The reporter lost none of these points.
"It is a mistaken notion that only the rich and proud can have fruit and nuts for desert. For the sake of variety, get an apple with a green and a red side. Look at the green side one day, and for the next day turn the other side. When you get tired of fruit and want nuts you will find that a double-jointed North Carolina peanut will do very well for two persons, to be eaten, of course, without attracting the attention of the children, as nuts are too rich for their blood."
The reporter was matrimonially inclined himself and was all attention.
"One day in the week we have salt mackerel, and if salt mackerel is scientifically and economically prepared you will not want anything else for several days but water. When the landlord pays the water rent this is a point worth knowing."
"And these are all facts that will interest housekeepers?" asked the reporter, who didn't know whether there was anything new in them or not.
"Oh, decidedly."
"And this costs you?"
"To be exact," said the man, "it costs me just seven dollars and eleven cents per month," and taking a section of dried apple from his pocket he looked at it awhile, carefully replaced it and then withdrew, picking his teeth with a pine sliver.

There are some patent medicines that are more marvelous than a dozen doctors' prescriptions, but they're not those that profess to cure everything.

Everybody, now and then feels "run down," "played out." They've the will, but no power to generate vitality. They're not sick enough to call a doctor, but just too sick to be well. That's where the right kind of a patent medicine comes in, and does for a dollar what the doctor wouldn't do for less than five or ten.
