—The application for the pardon of Fietta Weaver, will be brought before the pardon board in a few days, in the shape of petitions, letters from many prominent citizens in the county, and from the court and jury which tried and convicted her. We are gratified to know that the labors of the REPORTER towards this end, are likely to be successful. —James Noll, of Pleasant Gap, a law student in Orvis' office, was badly hurt on Monday evening, in attempting to stop a run-away horse of a Mr. Kline, that came dashing into Bellefonte. Young Noll was on Bishop street, as the animal came along and unwisely tried to stop it, and was knocked down, sustaining a fracture of the skull and a broken leg. It was dark at the time and the frightened horse took the pavement for no one was walking that way, otherwise there might have been more accidents. The horse had left the buggy behind before getting into Bellefonte.

That Prehistoric Fort.

A dispatch from Altoona says: A party headed by J. W. Scott, the well-known geologist, has just returned from a trip to Rush township, Centre county to see the famous prehistoric fortifications supposed to exist there. The excursionists report a find far beyond their expectations.

Sayer Ridge is about a mile in length. The west side is guarded by the deep valley of the Moshannon creek. The north end is flanked by Mountain branch and the south end protected by Pine run, while the front of the fortified position looks out over a broad white oak flat. In it lies the old fortification. It was mentioned in the notes of Daniel Turner, who surveyed that country in 1793. From that date it was not known until 1866, when the old ruins were discovered by J. W. Scott while making a geological survey of the Moshannon region in Centre county.

On the north point, after wading through a wilderness of briars, the party found what is called Picket Rock, Eastward, or rather to the south, they came upon a series of ill-looking walls of rock. Searching near the centre of this immense line of fortifications, the party came to the main parapet, with its embrasures and all the fixtures that constitute a modern fortress.

In front were found altars built of stone. These were simply gigantic and equaled only by the big rocks in the main line of works: The fortress is made of Mahoning sandstone, and it must have been constructed thousands of years ago. It is a find for the archaeologists, and when its inner mysteries are brought to light, perhaps much may be added to the meager information now possessed in regard to the prehistoric races of America.

The trip has other interesting features. Panther Den, about two miles from the fortress, is a place of unusual interest. Bears, panthers, wild cats and foxes occupy the den, or cave, in common. The great "natural lick" is just below the right flank of the ridge, and the ruins of the old cabin of Dan Turner may be seen at the north end of the hill. It is adorned with wild roses and rhododendrons planted in the wilderness by Mrs. Turner.

Stopped a Fight With Hot Water.

Last week at Gallitzin, two Hungarian men became involved in a fight. They were struggling on the ground when a woman, who was boiling clothes near by, took up a bucket of scalding water and dashed it over them. One of them escaped, but the other was almost boiled, the flesh coming off his body in stripes. He is now in the Altoona hospital in a critical condition.

Special Notice.

As I contemplate a change in my business, by the 1st of March, I now offer my entire stock of clothing and goods furnishing goods regardless of cost. This is no humbug, but a straight offer. SIMON LOEB.

A Request.

I respectfully ask the boys of Centre Hall not to meddle with the pond and water on my lot. In the summer they can use the pond for swimming and bath in it—but I ask them to keep away from it now and until summer. I would also say that parties have taken away saw dust without even asking for it. I ask that this be discontinued. The saw dust is for sale, and parties wanting dust can procure the same from Leshe. W. A. JACOBS.

Bald Eagle Nursery Fruit, Shade and Ornamental Trees.
