A FEBRUARY THAW.
Western Pennsylvania Threatened by the Rising Waters.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 17.—The steady down pour of rain has had the effect of more or less seriously impeding travel on almost every railroad entering the city. The largest landslide that has occurred on the Baltimore and Ohio railway for several years now covers the tracks for a distance of 300 feet and nearly half that in depth near West Newton. Passengers are being trans-ferred at the slide, but the tracks will not be cleared for several days. The Youghiogheny river is bank full and rising. A big flood is feared.

Reports from Greensburg are that the streams in that vicinity are over their banks, and many of the people living on the low lands have been driven from their homes. The Manor Valley and Alexandria branch railroads are covered in many places with water and slides. The lower end of Greensburg and the fair grounds are entirely submerged. Already the damage to property is great, the water still rising.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Feb. 17.—The highest water in Stony creek and Conemaugh river since the flood is reported. The Poplar street bridge, Cambria railroad bridge, a temporary bridge at East Conemaugh, Eleventh ward bridge and the partly constructed Walnut street bridge have all been destroyed. The cellars in the lower part of Johnstown are filled with water, and work at the Cambria Iron company's plants have been suspended, owing to the water leaking up through the sewers into the mills and furnaces.

The water is still rising and the lower end of the city is almost entirely under water. Reports come from several sections of the town that thieves are taking advantage of the excitement attending the high waters and are plundering whenever the opportunity presents itself.
