While Acme Blacking will endure a month through snow or rain, and can, if the shoe is soiled, be washed clean, the other dressing will not last a single day in wet weather. Your shoes will look better, last longer and be more comfortable if dressed with Wolff's Acme Elacking.

FRENCH LEADER. A Jules Grevy, Ex-President of the Republic, Passes Away. ALWAYSAN ARDENT REPUBLICAN

His Opposition to Louis Napoleon's tions-Finally Overwhelmed by the Rascality of a Son-in-Law.

PARIS, Sept. 10.—M. Francois Jules P. Grevy, ex-president of the French republic, died yesterday. M. Grevy had for four days been suffering from a se-vere attack of congestion of the lungs, which was the immediate cause of his death death.

M. Grevy was born at Montsous-Vaudry in the Jura mountains, in 1813. He went to Paris when only 15 years of age, and was studying law there when the revolution of 1830 broke out. He joined the insurgents and fought with them until Charles IX abdicated.

He then returned to the study of law, and was graduated with honor and admitted to the bar. He made himself particularly conspicuous by his chival-rous defense of those who were accused of holding liberal opinions during the regime of Louis Phillipe.

Opposed to a President.

In 1848 he again came to the front and won respect by his moderate though strong Liberal opinions. He was elected to the house of deputies and was chosen as vice president of that body. The chief event during this period in which M. Grevy was a very important factor was the question, or rather the parlia-mentary debate arising out of the ques-tion, relative to the presidency of the republic. The authorities who were then in the cabinet, thinking it well that then in the cabinet, thinking it well that one man should be appointed for the space of four years to the presidential chair, and having brought forward a proposition to that effect before the house, M. Grevy introduced his cele-brated amendment, known in history as the Grevy one, wherein it was provided that the presidency of the republic be abolished, and that the supreme power be vested in the hands of the prime minister elected for an indefinite period, and always liable to be removed from office by a vote of the assembly. His amendment was supported by Carnot, Eteinne, Arago, Ledru Rollirs and others, but was defeated. Imprisoned by Napoleon.

Napoleon was elected president. Jules Grevy's words were true. The presi-dent became emperor, but Grevy re-mained Republican. The former, remembering the famous amendment. thought it dangerous to allow its author at large. Accordingly orders were given to arrest M. Grevy. He was arrested and imprisoned in Mazas, where he was detained for several months, on the ex-piration of which he was released. He returned to Paris, but retired to private life, where he remained until 1868, when he was induced to stand once more as a candidate for the department of jura in the corps legislatif. Once more was he triumphantly elected. He was re-elected in 1869, and opposed the plebiscite started on the part of the emperor. He sat with the Republican members, and upheld the same flag as ever. As President of France.

He was an oposition member of the corps legislatif when the Franco-German war broke out and opposed with all his strength that disastrous movement. Elected to the national assembly, he was chosen president of that body and held that difficult and stormy position in a manner that won the applause of his enemies.

He was re-elected four times, and finally was elected third president of the French republic in 1873. This position he maintained with so much credit to the nation and himself that on the expiration of his term of office in 1885 he was re-elected.

M. Grevy had not taken any part in public life since his resignation of the presidency in 1887 on account of the scandals arising from the trial of his son-in-law, M. Wilson, for selling decorations

The Taormina Disaster.

ATHENS, Sept. 14.—The corrected es-timate of the number of persons drowned, as a result of the collision off Cape Co-lonna between the Italian steamship Taormina and the Greek steamship Thessalia shows that fifty month later Thessalia, shows that fifty people lost their lives by the sinking of the Taor-mina. Of this number ten were saloon passengers. The Taormina had fortysix passengers, among whom was an American named John C. Oliphant. Her crew numbered forty-nine persons. Of the whole number on board the steamer only the second officer and thirty others were saved. According to these figures sixty-six persons were lost.
