There is not a remedial agent in the world that will cure Fever and Ague and all other headache is produced by a disordered stomach and consequent imperfect circulation of the bood which causes a congestion in the bead. The physicians therefore call it gastrie headache, while it is more commonly known as sick headache. It appears in different forms, Sometimes it occurs as a dull pain in the forehead, again as a sharp acute pain, then again as a recling of general oppression, and finally a violent throbbing of the arteries against the temples.
