

A Serious Mistake.
(Gazette, York, Pa February 17th, 1892 Fditoyial.)
The Philadelphia Record abandons the splendid defense of the Pennsylvania Constitution which, for many years, it has so ably and strenuously made, and with the rest of the Philadelphia newspapers, hastens to surrender the city and the State to the new and lawless monopoly of the Reading coal combination. It cries with singular disregard of facts, "Nobody objects," and under that caption proceeds:—

"There does not appear to be any corporation or person in Pennsylvania so far aggrieved with the arrangement by which the Reading has suddenly built up for itself a first-class place among the great transportation companies and a first-rate credit among the money kings as to take the chances involved in opposing litigation. The little cloud in the sky puffed out from the lips of Mr. Cassatt in the first moment of surprise has been speedily dissipated. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company, whose great system has been built up piece by piece through a series of magnificent grabs, cannot complain that the Reading has bettered its instruction."

No newspaper in Pennsylvania, nor elsewhere, to our knowledge, has demonstrated more conclusively than the Record has repeatedly done, the total inadequacy of private litigation for the public protection. The "magnificent grabs," by which, the Record informs us the Pennsylvania system was built up were, in many cases, in the face of the law, and that paper never tired of denouncing them and demanding the interposition of the State, with all its majesty and power, to save the people from the oppression and plunder of the monopoly thus accomplished or attempted. But now, that, according to its own confession, the Reading has bettered the instruction, and made a bigger and a more insolent grab, a bolder stride to absolute dominion, than ever did its rival, that paper warns the sworn officers of the States to hold hands off, and crows and sneers over the fact, that no "person" in Pennsylvania shows an immediate purpose to undertake the duty which longs to the Commonwealth. Are the Constitution and laws to be enforced against the Pennsylvania Railroad and not against the Reading? Are railway conspiracies, or innocent and lawful arrangements, according to the parties who undertake them? The Pennsylvania never proposed anything half as bad or as threatening, as this. The Record, indeed, demands immunity for it on the sole ground that it is a bolder and greater grab than ever was made before. At one stroke it lays the State and all her people under the feet of a giant monopoly, formed in conscious, plain, indisputable defiance of the law, which met and checked the Pennsylvania in similar enterprises. It is just precisely such a combination as the Constitution was intended to prohibit, and the Governor is sworn to prevent.

Further on in this flippant article our esteemed contemporary assure us, that "Governor Pattison sees nothing unconstitutional in the arrangement." We beg to deny the right of our contemporary for the Governor. He made a record in his previous administration, in railroad and coal combination cases, which shows how he "sees" such colossal raids upon the laws of the State and the pocket of the people. He cannot see them one way to-day and another to-morrow—one way when the Pennsylvania is the offender and another when it is the Reading. He, like the Record itself, has ever heretofore maintained that it is the duty of the State to defend its people in such cases, and he is certainly not going to surrender the public rights, under the Constitution, merely because as the Record says, the assault is a specially important powerful one. "Let the Reading go on. Nobody objects." But somebody will object. Governor Pattison will object. He must object. There are some things about which a conscientious magistrate has no personal choice.

PETER AND THE BEAR.
An Experience a Lehigh County Man Cares Not to Repeat.
A Lehigh lumberman, Petter Mallory by name, had an exciting encounter with a bear on Wednesday, the particulars of which we give below, taken from an exchange:
Petter Mallory, a Lehigh lumberman met a bear face to face on Wednesday on a ledge of rocks between Trout creek and Gravel run, on the east side of the Lehigh river, in Tobyhanna township, Lackawanna county. Mallory was hurrying along with a log chain over his shoulders when he saw the bear waddling toward him. On the lower side of the narrow path there was a precipice, and on the upper side a steep mass of rocks. Turning out on either side was impossible, and as there was not room enough in the path for Mallory and the bear, to pass, Mallory shook his hat at the bear, imagining that it would face about and give him a chance. Instead of turning around, the bear tramped forward, glaring at Mallory and paid no attention to the waving hat. Mallory hit the bear over the head with an end of the heavy chain.

The bear winced and snarled under the blow, but he didn't turn, and the next instant he rose upon his haunches and made a lunge at Mallory, just as Mallory swung the chain around his head and brought it down on the bear's snout. That infuriated the bear still more, and with a rush and a growl of rage he gave Mallory a cuff with his paw that sent him spinning over the precipice toward the frozen creek, forty-five feet below. At the instant that the bear tumbled Mallory from the path, one of the hooks of the log chain caught in a corner of the bear's mouth. Mallory clung to the chain for dear life, his weight pulled the bear from the path, and man and bear went rolling and tumbling down the rocks together.

Mallory checked his speed on the upper side of a log near the brook, and the bear landed on the lower side of the log. Mallory quickly fastened the chain around the log and had the bear at his mercy. The log was so heavy that the bear couldn't move it and while he was yanking and pawing at the hook Mallory got hold of a big hemlock knot and a club. With the club he drove the knot into the bear's open mouth out of sight, and then the bear began to struggle and flounce about, threshing so violently that he soon tore the hook loose and rolled onto the ice on the creek.

The ice gave way and the bear choked to death while he was making the water fly with his paws.
In Luck Certain.
After trying to sell book's pictures and wringers, and nearly every contrivance imaginable, I became discouraged and thought there was no chance for a man to earn a living. There was nothing to do on the farm, and I could not get a job in town, when I happened to see how a teacher made money selling platters and thought I would try my luck. I bought a $5 Lightning Platter from H. F. Delno & Co., Columbus, Ohio, and from that day my luck seemed to change. I carried the platter from house to house and plated knives forks and spoons, right before the folks, and it is surprising how many want their things plated. I made $3.70 the first day, and in one week $28. I can plate with nickel, silver or gold. The work is fine, my customers are pleased and I am happy. I hope some other fellow, who is down on his luck, will see this and do as I have done and get up in the world.

CRUSHED BY SNOW.
Several Buildings Crushed by Last Week's Heavy Snow Fall.
Among the buildings crushed by last week's snow and not mentioned in last week's issue, are two others, the new stable belonging to the Evangelical parsonage, at Millheim and the barn of Reuben Harter, in Penn township. Mr. Harter's barn was a large one and is so utterly ruined that he will be obliged to build a new one at once.

FREE CRAYON PORTRAITS & FRAMES
To all our Subscribers for 1892.
We, the publishers of "North American Homes," in order to increase the circulation of our journal throughout the United States and Canada, will send this year over one hundred thousand dollars among our new subscribers in the form of artistic Crayon Portraits and a handsome frame (see cut below), to be made free of charge for every new subscriber to "North American Homes." Our family journal is a monthly publication consisting of 16 pages, filled with the best literature of the day, by some of the best authors, and is worthy of the greatest praise we are doing for it. Eight years ago the New York Herald had only about 10,000 daily circulation; today it has over 250,000. This was obtained by judicious advertisement and a lavish expenditure of money. What the proprietor of the N. A. H. has accomplished we feel confident of doing ourselves. We have a large capital to draw upon, and the handsome premium money we are spending now will come back to us in increased circulation and advertisements. The Crayon Portrait we will make for you will be executed by the largest association of artists in this city. Their work is among the finest made, and we guarantee you an artistic Portrait and a perfect likeness to the original. There is nothing more useful as well as ornamental than a handsome framed Crayon Portrait of yourself or any member of your family; therefore this is a chance in a lifetime to get one already framed and ready to hang in your parlor absolutely free of charge.

READ THE FOLLOWING GRAND 30 DAYS' OFFER:
Send us $1.50, price for one year subscription to "North American Homes," and send us also a photograph, lithotype or cut-out of yourself or any member of your family, living or dead, and we will make you from some of our best artists a life-size Crayon Portrait, and put the portrait in a good substantial gilt or bronze frame of 2 inch moulding absolutely free of charge; will also furnish you a genuine French glass, boxing and packing same free of expense. Cut this out and send it with your photograph at once, also your subscription which you can remit by Draft, P. O. Money Order, Express Money Order, or Postal Note, made payable to
