Gov. Beaver Takes a Tumble.

General James A. Beaver almost broke his neck at Bellwood a few days ago. As the affair did not turn out seriously nothing was said about it, and the story did not leak out till Saturday, when a gentleman who was a witness to the affair told it. The ex-Governor had been on a business trip up the Bell's Gap Railroad, now the Pennsylvania and Northwestern. On returning he walked across to wait for an east-bound train on the main line. It had been raining and the half-dozen steps at the depot were wet and slippery. General Beaver had almost reached the top when one of his crutches slipped off the edge of a step which caused him to lose his balance and to the dismay of those standing about he went rolling down to the bottom of the steps. The fall would have a man not so crippled as the General, but it apparently did not do any serious damage to him. He was picked up ed millionaire. But it is only part of and helped into the depot, but refused the truth. It does not show the full and soon after took the train for the people's clothing. It shows only such

The Highest Republican Tax. From the St Louis Republic.

Under the Republican tariff system the average taxes on the woolen clothing of the people are higher than the average taxes or any other class of articles whatever. The following table showing this to be the fact is from the eighth page of the introduction to the Treasury report on imports, issued by the Harrison administration for 1891:
