

What Good Roads Would Mean.

The following article is by an unknown author but is worthy of reprinting: What would good stone roads all the year round mean to the American farmer? The answer to this question is not necessarily a speculative one. Good roads are to be found in Europe, and in certain localities in this country and Canada. It is not to be questioned that the effect on the American farmer as a rule would be about the same as it has been in the favored localities, and judging from the experience of those communities which have been blessed by good public highways, we may mention the following as some of the desirable results which would follow their general adoption: They would make it possible for the farmer to take advantage promptly of the highest market, no matter at what season of the year. They would save him days and weeks of time which he wastes every year wallowing through the disgusting mire of dirt roads. They would reduce to a minimum the wear and tear on wagons and carriages. They would lessen the expense in keeping horses in working order, and vastly less horses would be required in a country to perform the farmers' work. They would require less expense to keep them in repair than do the dirt roads. They would make it easier for a team to pull several tons over their smooth surface than to drag a wagon through the mud. They would afford ready communication with the outside world and spare the farmer many vexations and nervous strains. They would practically shorten the distance to local markets. They would increase the demand for country and suburban property. They would be free from dirt in summer, and mud and ruts in fall, winter and spring. They would bring every farming community into closer social relations. They would make an evening's drive a pleasure instead of a vexation as it is now. They would do away with the absurd poll tax and supervisor system in places where it is still in use, they would be, in short, the best possible investment to the taxpayer, if built and cared for by the national government and paid for by a national tax. All these they would do unless experience goes for naught.—Farmers' Review.

will be paid for a recipe enabling into make WOLFF'S ACME BLACKING at such a price that the retailer can profitably sell it at 10c. a bottle. At present the retail price is 20c.

ACME BLACKING is made of pure alcohol, other liquid dressings are made of water. Water costs nothing. Alcohol is dear. Who can show us how to make it without alcohol so that we can make ACME BLACKING as cheap as water dressing, or put it in fancy packages like many of the water dressings, and then charge for the outside appearance instead of charging for the contents of the bottle?

SPECIFICS

It can be any alarm clock ever invented in waking a family up in the morning. In a given time it can smash more dishes than the most industrious servant girl in the country. It can fall down oftener and with less provocation than the most expert tumbler in the circus ring. It can choke itself black in the face with greater ease than the most accomplished wretch that ever was executed. It can be relied on to sleep peacefully all day when his father is in town, and cry persistently at night when he is particularly sleepy. It may be the naughtiest, dirtiest, ugliest, most fretful baby in all the world, but you never can make its mother believe it, and you had better not try. It can be a charming and model infant when no one is about, but when visitors are present it can exhibit more bad temper than both of its parents put together.
