A New Swindle

Here is a new swindling scheme that is liable to catch a good many. A stranger goes around insuring property, and delivers a handsome policy. If the farmer's buildings never burn he never knows that he has been swindled, but if they do and he begins to look around for his money he finds that there is not nor never was any such company. The pretended agent pockets the premium, and that is the last you ever hear of his money.
