Rule to Close the World's Fair on Sunday Enforced.

A Comparison Between the Paris and Columbian Exposition.

The World's Fair was closed Sunday. President Higginbotham announced the fact Saturday afternoon. He said, however, that it would be closed in the exact sense of the term and that no one, whether he be Commissioner or Director, would be admitted unless he had genuine business to transact.

STATUE FOR THE WOMAN'S BUILDING.

President Higginbotham had nothing to say about the second Sunday. He will probably have something to say, however, after the board of directors meets. The question will come up and be thoroughly discussed.

The display of flags from the different buildings is magnificent. Each structure only the American flag is shown. About 100 poles, each occupying a prominent place, adorn the building, from which float flags of various sizes, but all American.

The strike system is the most damnable, outrageous and injurious to American workingmen of any system that was ever practiced in the United States, and there is no denying the fact that it exists in almost every city of this country, where there is an Italian colony.

NATIONAL BANKS CLOSE.

Trouble in Chicago and Indianapolis.

The Failure of R. R. Robinson & Co., Wilmington, Del.

The Columbia National Bank of Chicago closed its doors and Mr. Sturgis, the bank examiner, is in charge. Its capital is $1,000,000.

The statement of its condition at the close of business on May 4th showed deposits of $1,458,000, loans and discounts $1,625,000, United States and other bonds, $341,000; cash and sight exchange, $616,000.

The concern held a lot of local securities, which had been raised to the danger point. It was also carrying a lot of grain for local parties, and was said to be loaded with real estate.

The concern had been in business about six years. It was formerly the United States National Bank, but changed its name, as it claimed then, in order to put it higher up in the alphabet in the bankers' directories, and thus get considerable business which would not come to it further down the list.

Zimri Dwiggin is the president. L. Everingham was formerly at the head, but retired about the first of the year. A great many board of trade firms carried accounts there, and the line of grain carried by it will now go to other concerns.

The bank had offices in the Insurance Exchange. Rumors that the institute was in trouble have been current for nearly a week. It did business with small country banks, and was not in esteem with the other banking concerns in the city.

The New York correspondent of the Columbia National Bank is the First National Bank. The surplus and undivided profits reported in January last were $91,762.

INDIANAPOLIS BANK TROUBLE.

The statement is made that the closing of the bank doors was made necessary by the failure of the Chemical National Bank of Chicago last week, which institution owed the Capital Bank $100,000.

The bank is the depository for a number of building associations. The announcement of the suspension of the bank came as a great shock to the people, especially in Meridian street, where the news was first circulated.
